City Liquor Tax of 50c Wins Support Of Officials

Commissioners to Ask Lower Levy in Bill for Congress.

Maryland's High Prices Protested

Allen Demands Cut to Curb Business of Bootleggers.

The District Commissioners will propose a local liquor tax considerably below the $1.10 a gallon charged by Maryland and possibly as low as 50 cents, it was indicated yesterday after a day of conferences, including one with Acting Secretary Morgenthau of the Treasury.

Commissioner George E. Allen, who participated in the parleys with Federal and District officials, admitted the Commissioners are reconsidering the question of taxes and stated he favored a low tax for Washington.

"I want to see a tax low enough to discourage bootlegging and to enable the average man to buy liquor from legitimate sources," he said, "and I believe the District will in the long run get a larger revenue from a small tax than a large one."

Bill May Go to Capitol Today.

During the afternoon Allen conferred with Corporation Counsel William W. Bride and Auditor Daniel J. Donovan regarding the local liquor tax.

The District bill was undergoing another revision yesterday in accordance with suggestions advanced by Treasury experts, but it was said that it will probably be sent to Capitol Hill today.

So far the Commissioners have not decided definitely whether to incorporate their tax proposals in the document.

The revisions are all of a technical nature. One provides for the manufacture of double-distilled gin, a provision which had been overlooked by the District drafters, while others alter provisions relating to the appearance of witnesses before the Alcohol Beverage Board and eliminate phraseology which would have prohibited any member of the board from holding an interest in any business organization dealing in any form of alcohol. Federal officials felt the latter prohibition was too broad.

High Prices Protested.

Japanese Heir Receives Name

Age-Old Ceremonies Color Presentation by Emperor.

Tokyo (Friday), Dec. 29 (AP).—Emperor Hirohito, in court ceremonies from the lore of the ages, today conferred a name upon the infant heir to the Japanese throne, born seven days ago.

The name chosen was Akihito Tsugu No Miya, meaning "Prince of the August Succession and Enlightened Benevolence."

As the 125th emperor of Japan, the little crown price will be known as Akihito.

The naming ceremony lasted two hours and was invested with all the pomp that is the heritage of Japanese royalty. The name was chosen, not by the infant's father, but by learned men of the imperial household.

The characters were written by Emperor Hirohito on a sheet of soft, white paper and carried into the presence of the infant.

Included in the procedure was the giving of the ceremonial bath, a rite so ancient its origin has been lost even to court sages. While the bath was in progress, eloquent passages from ancient Japanese literature were read to the infant by attendants hidden from his view. These readings are believed to influence the character and destiny of the future emperor.

Boy, 5, Barefoot on Ice As Father Reaps Alms

Cincinnati, Ohio, Dec. 28 (U.P.).—A father, who forced his 5-year-old son to walk barefooted through icy streets as bait to alms givers was described today by Police Judge William D. Alexander as "absolutely devoid of character."

Raymond Miller, 31, Newport, Ky., the father, was fined $100 and costs. The shoes and stockings of Raymond, jr., 5, were found in the father's pockets, along with more than $6 he had obtained by begging while the child danced and cried in the bitter cold.

Fund Allotted For New Wing To Tax Office

Unit in Triangle to House Bureaus Scattered Over City.

A new unit in the Government District building program was authorized yesterday through allocation of $2,300,000 for an addition to the Internal Revenue Building.

The new structure will extend from the northeast corner of the Internal Revenue Building and occupy the block east of the old Postoffice Department, bounded by Pennsylvania avenue, C, Tenth and Eleventh streets. Its construction will bring the Internal Revenue-Postoffice Department group to three-fourths of completion.

Although plans are not in working order, it is expected clearing of the site can start in a month. The building, with 126,000 square feet of floor space, will house Treasury Department and Internal Revenue units now scattered in many places.

The structure will relieve the present overcrowding in the Treasury Building, officials say, where, in some divisions, the corridors are used for working quarters.

Only Three Steps Remain.

Construction of the building, to provide more than 11,000 man-months of employment here, will leave but three steps to bring the Triangle development east of the Ellipse entirely under new buildings. These steps would be erection of the apex building, demolition of the old Postoffice Department Building, and disposition of the District and old Southern Railway Buildings.

Although the new structure will leave the old Postoffice Department Building an "island" among the new buildings, no plans for its removal could be learned.

The new building will be L-shaped, extending approximately 250 feet along Tenth street and 200 feet along Pennsylvania avenue. It will be connected to the present Internal Revenue structure at a point designed for the addition close to Tenth and C streets. The architecture will follow that of the main building. It will be seven stories high, with the top story re-

McCarl Puts Check on All Relief Funds

Statements of Fact Must Be Submitted With Each Request.

All departmental expenditures from emergency funds must be accompanied by a statement of facts showing they are "legally chargeable" to emergency appropriation, Comptroller General McCarl ruled yesterday.

The decision, considered far-reaching in scope, was expected to govern the use of all emergency funds by every department. The ruling was made for the Secretary of Agriculture in connection with expenditures by the Civilian Conservation Corps.

"Ordinarily," McCarl held, "the nature of an expenditure, the place where the articles are to be delivered or the services rendered and the official title of procuring officer as shown by a voucher will indicate whether the appropriation stated on the voucher is the proper appropriation to be charged therewith.

Must Show Disposition.

"But where, as in the case of these conservation funds, emergency funds are allotted for expenditure by the same administrative organization that is expending regular appropriations, and possibly at the same place and for the same or similar objects, it becomes necessary that there be made a proper showing in connection with each item of expenditure charged to the emergency fund to enable a determination that the obligation discharged was in fact incurred incident to carrying out the purpose for which the funds were made available."

The Comptroller General added that the showing required "is not a perfunctory certificate that the expenditure is incident to the work of the Civilian Conservation Corps, as seems to be assumed by the letter quoted herein, but a statement of facts showing in each instance that the expenditures were in fact expenditures legally chargeable to the emergency conservation fund. The same showing should be made also, with respect to other emer-

Admiral Will Lead Flight Of 6 Planes Over Pacific

Rear Admiral Alfred W. Johnson, of Washington, will lead a flight of 6 Navy seaplanes from the West Coast to Hawaii, it was announced last night at the Navy Department. His present assignment is commander of aircraft, base force.

In making the announcement, Admiral William H. Standley, chief of Naval Operations, said details of the flight—the time and whether it should be nonstop—would be left to the decision of Admiral Johnson.

The formation flight will be made by Patrol Squadron 10-F. The planes are regular Navy patrol seaplanes and are not constructed especially for a stunt flight. They were used in a nonstop flight from Norfolk to the Canal Zone and from there to San Diego, Calif.

Rear Admiral Johnson will make the flight with the officers and enlisted men of the squadron, which is commanded by Lieut. Comdr. Kneffler McGinnis. Admiral Standley said an adequate number of surface vessels would be placed along the route.

Admiral Johnson was in Washington as assistant chief of the Bureau of Navigation until August of this year. His home is at 2137 R street northwest.

Wagner Asks To Be Freed Of Labor Post

Action Will Be Delayed Till President Can Find Successor.

Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, has asked President Roosevelt to accept his resignation as chairman of the National Labor Board as soon after the assembling of Congress as possible.

He may remain as titular head of the important labor board until the President is able to find a permanent successor, since the White House has objected that the vacancy would be one of the most difficult posts in the New Deal to fill satisfactorily from the standpoint of labor and industry.

The names of Alfred E. Smith, Newton D. Baker and John W. Davis have been advanced in discussions of a successor on the ground that the responsibilities of the place demand a national figure who will command public confidence.

Reputation of Fairness.

Wagner has long had the advantage of being popular both with labor and industrial leaders, and his reputation for fairness has been a distinct advantage in establishing the labor board and its authority so far, according to its members.

Besides Wagner as chairman, the board has been composed of Walter C. Teagle of the Standard Oil of New Jersey; Gerard Swope, of General Electric; Louis E. Kirstein, of Boston; Dr. Leo Wolman, who heads the labor advisory board under the NRA; John Lewis, of the United Mine Workers, and William Green, of the American Federation of Labor.

Because of his heavy duties in the Senate, particularly in dealing with relief and unemployment legislation for which he has been largely responsible throughout the depression, Senator Wagner wants to be relieved from the chairmanship, since it is a full time job requiring more attention than he feels he can spare after Congress convenes.

The President has not accepted a resignation from the Senator and hopes to persuade him to remain, even on a part time basis if possible. As Wagner is a stalwart supporter of the Administration there is no question involved of friction or disagreement over policy in his wish to resign.

Reelected Last Year.

Wagner has been in the Senate since 1927 and was reelected last year. He was a justice of the New York Supreme Court and later of its appellate division for seven years, before resigning to run for the Senate. He initiated legislation resulting in the creation of the NRA, the $3,300,000,000 public works program, the $500,000,000 Emergency Relief Administration, the farm mortgage refinancing system, Federal unemployment exchange and its stabilization board for public-works planning, and the centralizing of unemployment statistics.

His program calls for strengthening the NRA, higher minimum wages, shorter hours, some $500,000,000 more of direct Federal relief for unemployed, unemployment insurance, retirement pensions and accident compensation, banking reform, including regulation of investment banking controls over low-term credit, and other measures embraced in his crusade for what he terms "social justice."

Troyanovsky Makes Stop in Berlin on Way Here.

Berlin, Dec. 28 (AP).—Alexander Troyanovsky, Russian Ambassador to the United States, expressed delight here today at his opportunity to work for Russo-American understanding.

"There are many world problems awaiting solution," he told correspondents, "so I'm going to Washington in an extremely interesting period."

The ambassador stopped between trains en route to Paris, where he expects to meet William C. Bullitt, American Ambassador to Russia, and sail with him to the United States.

Mexico City, Dec. 28 (U.P.).—Ramon Franco, Spanish transatlantic aviator, wants to fly to Mars because ocean flights no longer thrill him, he said today. Denying rumors that he might fly back to Spain, he said:

"I might change my mind, but I don't think I shall. Long distance water flights have no more thrill. It is my ambition to fly to Mars, as there is nothing else left to achieve in aviation on earth except to develop safety factors."

Roosevelt Urges World Peace Treaty But Opposes League; Experts Ask Return to Gold

Warren Advises Course Forward

Risk in Setting Metal Value Cited Before Money Experts.

Philadelphia, Dec. 28 (AP).—Economists and Government officials joined today in oratorical battle over President Roosevelt's monetary and industrial recover programs, with 17 authorities of finance by resolution calling on the Government to abandon "monetary experimentation" immediately.

"Efforts to depreciate the value of the dollar by manipulation should be stopped," said a resolution adopted by the executive committee of the Economists' National Committee on monetary policy. "A definite policy of return to the gold standard should be adopted immediately.

Suggestions Ready.

An announcement accompanying the resolution said the committee "will offer constructive suggestions to the Administration whenever the Government will entertain them," and announced intention of presenting "a national roster of speakers."

Its action was followed by an address before the American Economic Association in which Prof. Goerge F. Warren, of Cornell, monetary adviser to President Roosevelt, asserted a return to the gold standard as America knew it is impossible.

"To set any figure that is to hold for a generation involves a considerable element of risk, both to our prosperity and to the future of the gold standard," he said in calling for "some sort of a safety valve" if a new monetary base with lower gold content is to have "a fair chance."

"Announcement of the adoption of this policy would tend to dissipate the widespread fear of inflation and reduce financial demoralization now retarding recovery. The necessary amount of money will flow into circulation with increase in production," the committee continued.

Not a Recovery Attack.

"Criticism of the monetary policy of the Government is not to be interpreted as an attack upon the general recovery program of the Administration."

The resolution was drafted by a committee composed of Dr. E. W. Kemmerer, of Princeton; Dr. O. M. W. Sprague, of Harvard, recently resigned adviser to the United States Treasury; Dean Arthur B. Adams, University of Oklahoma; Dr. James W. Angell, Columbia; Dr. James Washington Bell, Northwestern University; Dr. Neil Carothers, Lehigh; Dr. George W. Dowrie, Leland-Stanford; Dr. J. F. Ebersole, Harvard; Dr. David Kinley, president emeritus, University of Illinois; Dr. Wesley C. Mitchell, Columbia; Dr. John Thom Holdsworth, dean, University of Miami; Dr. Ernest Minor Patterson, Pennsylvania; Dr. Harold Reed, Cornell; Dr. Walter E. Spahr, New York University; Dr. Ray B. Westerfield, Yale; Dr. H. Parker Willis, Columbia, and John P. Young, Occidental.

Inflation Held Doomed.

Prof. Kemmerer followed Prof. Warren with the comment that he was in "substantial disagreement" with much of the Cornell expert's

Paraguay Refuses To Prolong Truce

Leader Opposed to Peace Negotiations.

Montevideo, Dec. 29 (Friday) (AP). Paraguay formally refused today to extend the truce with Bolivia in the Chaco Boreal warfare. Established through intervention of the League of Nations and the Pan-American Conference, the armistice ends at midnight Saturday.

Bolivia already had acceded to extension of the armistice to January 14, urged under the auspices of the Pan-American group, now adjourned, and the league's Chaco commission, which is seeking to establish grounds for permanent peace.

Paraguay's failure to approve the extension was attributed to the opposition of Gen. Jose Estigarribia.

Descendant of Monroe Expires in Baltimore

Baltimore, Dec. 28 (AP).—Mrs. Hortense Monroe Hardesty McIntire, a great-great-granddaughter of President James Monroe, died here today. She was the widow of Representative William Watson McIntire.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at St. Ignatius Catholic Church.

L. C. Garnett Is Slated As U. S. Attorney Here

Formal Announcement Is Not Yet Made; Will Succeed Rover.

Leslie Coombs Garnett, 57, former Assistant Attorney General, has been selected by the President to be United States attorney for the District, according to reports in usually well informed circles yesterday.

Announcement of Mr. Garnett's appointment is expected to be made by the White House in a day or so, although confirmation of his selection could not be obtained at either the White House nor the Department of Justice.

Mr. Garnett will succeed Leo A. Rover, whose term expired last April, and who tendered his resignation several months ago. Mr. Rover intends to enter private practice of law.

Selection of Mr. Garnett ends a long drawn out fight in which friends of several candidates fought hard to have them appointed.

Mr. Garnett was born in Mathews, Va., on December 15, 1876, the son of G. Taylor and Ellen Douglas (Browne) Garnett. He studied at Randolph-Macon College and Georgetown University. He was graduated from the university with the degree of LL. M. in 1900 and began practice of law in his home town. He was Commonwealth's attorney of Mathews from 1904 to 1912, and was assistant attorney general of Virginia in 1916 and 1917.

He served as an attorney in the Department of Justice from 1917 to 1919, after which he served as coun-

U. S. Tightens Grip on Gold In New Call

May Be Answer to Court Rule Voiding Ban of President.

Acting Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau issued an order yesterday which required the surrender of virtually all the gold coin, gold bullion and gold certificates held privately in the continental United States.

The order was issued under section 3 of the emergency banking act of last March. It was a supplement to the President's order of August 28 and had as its purpose the closing of whatever loopholes were left open by the previous decree. The President's order permitted gold holdings of up to $100. That issued by the Acting Secretary called for the surrender even of $2.50 gold pieces. Violators of the Morgenthau order may be more strictly dealt with than those who defied the President. The latter were subject to a fine of not more than $10,000 or 10 years in jail. The former may be fined twice the value of their holdings.

There was speculation as to whether the move did not indicate the forthcoming seizure of all gold, including that held by the Federal Reserve banks, in order to make effective a bill drawn by Senator Elmer Thomas, of Oklahoma. This bill is now receiving Presidential consideration, would concentrate all gold in the Treasury and then halve the gold content on the dollar. It then would be possible for the Government to double its gold currency reserve and issue $4,000,000,000 in new currency.

Five Exemptions Allowed.

The following exemptions were granted under the Morgenthau order:

A. Gold bullion owned by a person now holding such gold under a license heretofore granted by or under authority of the Secretary of the Treasury, pursuant to the executive order of August 28, 1933, relating to the hoarding, export and

Finns Charge Poison Plot To Spy Ring

High Officials Allegedly Marked for Death; Study One Case.

Helsingfors, Finland, Dec. 28 (AP). What officials called a conspiracy to poison Finnish military technicians one of whom died, was linked by government authorities today with an alleged spy ring in connection with which two Americans were arrested here last fall.

The body of Lieut. Col. Fritz Walter Asplund, director of the state munitions works until his sudden death last April, was ordered exhumed in belief he was murdered.

A. A. Oksala, minister of national defense, announced definitely that Asplund had been poisoned, that attempts had been made on the lives of three important men in the army's technical works—Engineer Mantsas, Bureau Chief Tera and Engineer Am.

Lieut. Col. Asplund's death was originally attributed to lung inflammation, said by doctors to be similar in symptoms to certain kinds of poisoning.

Americans Said Russ Aids.

Mr. and Mrs. Arvid Jacobson, former teachers in the schools of Northville and Monroe, Mich., were among those accused of being involved in the alleged espionage syndicate.

Jacobson was said by police to have formed connections with Russian secret political police while in the United States. He and his young wife, Sally, were widely known here in student circles.

The group is accused of cooperating with a Finnish staff lieutenant named Pentikainen, who authorities believe fled to Russia with Finnish military information.

Chief Riekki of the secret service said he believed there was connection between alleged espionage cases here and in Paris. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon Switz, Americans, were arrested in Paris last

Electrical Creation of Matter Measured in Time and Space

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 28 (AP).—A new mathematical theory which explains how matter is being created constantly out of radiation like the rays of light was announced today to the American Association for the Advancement of Science. The theory shows the speed of transformation as an inconceivably small fraction of a second.

This change from radiation into particles of matter takes place in a fraction of a second expressed by scientists as the hundred billionth part of one billionth of a second.

The theory likewise shows that space in which this lightning-fast act of creation occurs is somewhat less than the length of a two hundred billionth part of one inch.

Finally, in this minute space, and fast time, 2 per cent of all electromagnetic radiation is constantly changing into matter. The theory brings out as nothing else previously what scientists call the "fine structure of matter," the infinite smallness of the ultimate units both of radiation and of solid matter.

The theory was proposed by Dr. J. R. Oppenheimer, of the University of California. Many of the Nation's foremost scientists heard him including two Nobel prize winners in physics, Dr. Robert A. Millikan and Dr. Arthur H. Compton.

The first practical evidence of this miracle of creation, by which the material universe may be expected to renew its youth eternally was caught recently in cloud photographs in several of the world's foremost physics laboratories.

But scientists doubted the evidence of their eyes as seen in these pictures. Dr. Millikan, whose own

Ideals of Wilson Cited on Birthday

Nonagression Is Pledged to Nations of New Hemisphere.

By Elliott Thurston.

Political leaders, not their peoples, threaten the peace of the world, President Roosevelt declared last night in an address dedicated to Woodrow Wilson's idealism, which Mr. Roosevelt would achieve, not through the League of Nations but through a world-wide nonaggression pact and abolition of all weapons of offense.

Addressing the Woodrow Wilson Foundation dinner commemorating the seventy-seventh anniversary of the late President's birth, Mr. Roosevelt redefined his proposals for a universal "declaration that no nation will permit any of its armed forces to cross its own borders into the territory of any other nation," and for an end of mobile artillery, war planes, tanks and poison gas.

Statesmen Criticized.

Wilson, under whom he served as Assistant Secretary of the Navy, had fired the imagination of the peoples of the world by appealing to them to "prevent governments from making war," Mr. Roosevelt said. But apropos of the Versailles treaty, Mr. Roosevelt said he saw with his own eyes and heard with his own ears that the appeal meant little to some of the "so-called statesmen who gathered in Paris to assemble a treaty of so-called peace in 1919."

He assailed their counterparts of today who, he said, were "political leaders" now beckoning 10 per cent of the peoples of the earth toward war while the remaining 90 per cent are ready to disarm and declare for nonaggression.

"It is but the extension of the challenge of Woodrow Wilson," he said, "for us to propose in this newer generation that from now on war by governments shall be changed to peace by peoples."

League Cooperation.

While the dinner honored the memory of the great champion of the League of Nations, Mr. Roosevelt, after emphasing that the United States is cooperating with the league more fully than ever today "in every matter which is

Banker Found Shot to Death

Victim Believed Slain and His Body Carried to Delta Island.

Martinez, Calif., Dec. 28 (AP).—Surrounded by evidence indicating murder, Julian C. Whitman, 50, San Francisco banker, was found shot to death today on Jersey Island in the San Joaquin delta, scene of the weird "cult burial" several months ago of Mrs. Celina Novarro, young Filipino.

There was a bullet wound in the left temple. A revolver wrapped in a powder-burned handkerchief lay nearby, but beyond reach of the dead man's hand. Only a few drops of blood were found near the body, indicating, police said, he had been shot elsewhere.

Whitman's grief-stricken family in Palo Alto reported his pistol still was at the home; that he had left yesterday on an inspection trip to Antioch, Benecia and Tracy, and was in good spirits.

Officers said they found auto tracks near the body, but no car. Whitman left San Francisco in his car.

Mrs. Whitman, Palo Alto social leader, said her husband always carried cash, but no money or jewelry was found on the body.

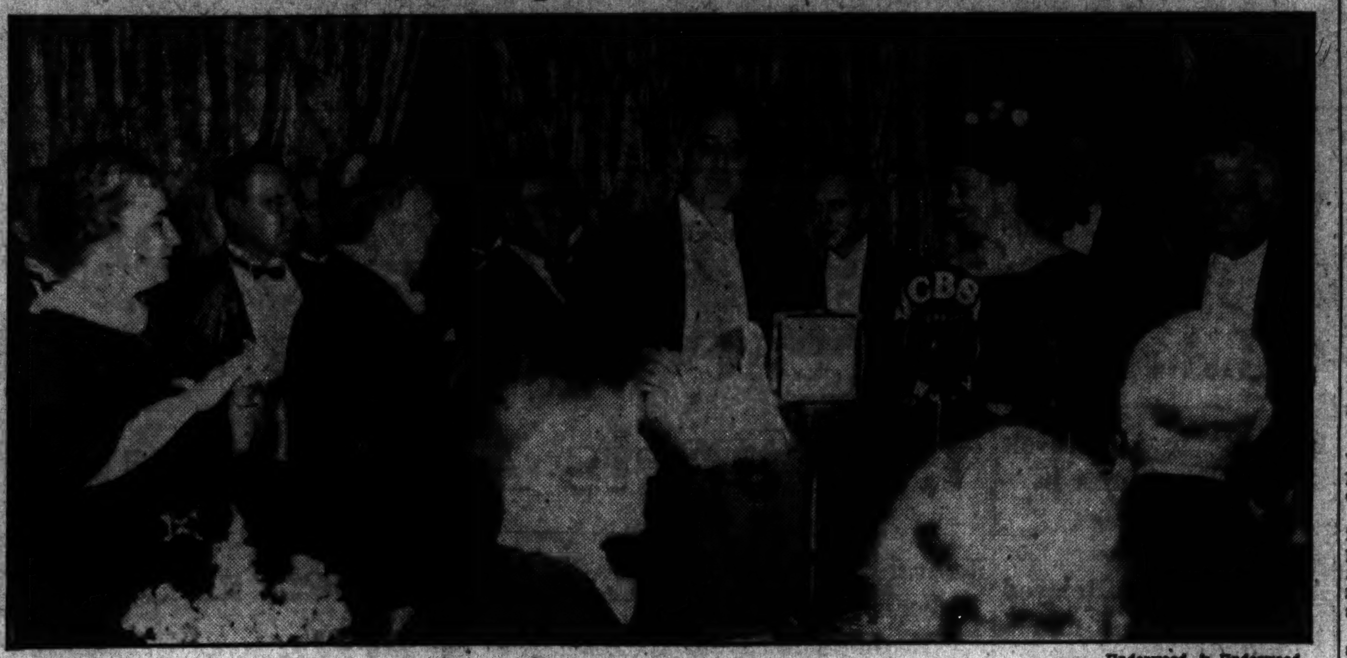
President Roosevelt Speaks at Wilson Foundation Dinner



Underwood & Underwood.

not primarily political," again renounced American membership.

"We are not members and we do not contemplate membership," he told the almost exclusively Democratic audience, some of which has remained devoted to the Wilsonian ideal of American entry into the league.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson was an honor guest at the head table, as was Mrs. Roosevelt, while the Democracy of the New Deal made up most of the guest list from which the names of party notables of other days, such erstwhile Presidential aspirants as James M. Cox, John W. Davis and Al Smith, and such leaders as Newton D. Baker and Owen D. Young, were missing.

Mr. Roosevelt added but little to his original proposal suddenly cabled to the rulers of 54 nations last May 16, on the eve of Chancellor Hitler's threatened speech in defiance of the Treaty of Versailles. The dramatic projection of the nonaggression and disarmament appeal served to focus world attention on peace. Hitler instantly indorsed the Roosevelt ideas then. The expected crisis with France passed for the moment.

No such urgent cause occasioned Mr. Roosevelt's reversion to his former plea last night. But the anniversary called for the theme of world peace, and praise for the league, even if accompanied by another renunciation of membership. And it provided an opportunity for warm commendation of Secretary of State Hull's good neighbor doctrines preached to the Latin-Americans at the now ending Montevideo Conference. Mr. Roosevelt acclaimed Mr. Hull's success in creating a "better state of feeling among the neighbor nations of North and Central and South America."

Once more, Mr. Roosevelt assured Latin America that the United States is committed definitely against "armed intervention."

Mr. Roosevelt did not specify which 10 per cent, some 15,000,000 of the world's billion and a half population, is under the spell of what he described as "leadership which seeks territorial expansion at the expense of neighbors and which, under various pleas in avoidance, are unwilling to reduce armament or stop rearmament even if everybody else agrees to nonagression and to arms reduction."

That Japan's 64,000,000 was meant, and Germany's 62,000,000, despite Hitler's embracing of the Roosevelt program before, was generally taken for granted. The President made no direct allusion to Cuba's revolution or the other disruptions south of the Rio Grande which in the past caused the dispatch of American marines to the scenes of disorder.

He was reinforcing assurance to Latin America that the northern neighbor would no longer countenance "occupation of the territory of other republics, even as a temporary measure." And he remarked that had he been "engaged in a political campaign as a citizen of some other American republic" he would have been tempted to charge that the United States was animated by some form of imperialistic desire for selfish aggrandizement."

Garners Present.

Roland S. Morris, of Philadelphia, president of the trustees of the foundation, and former Ambassador to Japan, presided at the dinner, held at the Mayflower Hotel. It was Mr. Roosevelt's first appearance as a speaker at a public dinner since he entered the White House. He and Mr. Morris were the only speakers. Vice President Garner and Mrs. Garner, who were making their first public appearance of the season, members of the Cabinet and their wives and several hundred Washingtonians identified with Democracy, old and new, were present.

This was the second time Mr. Roosevelt had eschewed entry into the league for which he crusaded in 1920. Pressed to state his attitude early in 1932, Mr. Roosevelt told the New York State Grange on February 1 that he had "no apology to make" for his former advocacy of the league and that he would still be for American entry if conditions were now as they were then.

"American participation in the league," he added at that time, "would not serve the highest purpose of prevention of war and settlement of international difficulties in accordance with fundamental American ideals. Because of these facts, I do not favor American participation."

Political Issues Avoided.

But, he reminded his hearers, last night, the United States is "giving cooperation to the league in every matter which is not primarily political and in every matter which obviously represents the views and the good of the peoples of the world, as distinguished from the views and good of political leaders, of privileged classes or imperialistic aims."

Coming to the reiteration of his peace proposals, he amplified his May 16 declarations by listing these three points:

"1. Let every nation agree to eliminate over a short period of years, and by progressive steps, every weapon of offense (he had previously specified these as war planes, heavy mobile artillery, tanks and poison gas) in its possession and to create no additional weapons of offense." He inserted in his speech last night that this implies the right of a nation to fortify its own border "with permanent and nonmobile defenses," and the right "to assure itself through international inspection" to see that its neighbors are not creating offensive weapons.

World Without Exception.

"2. A simple declaration that no nation will permit any of its armed forces to cross its own borders into the territory of another nation. Such an act would be regarded by humanity as an act of aggression and as an act, therefore, that would call for condemnation by humanity.

"3. It is clear, of course, that no such general agreement for the elimination of aggression and of the weapons of offensive warfare would be of any value to the world unless every nation, without exception, entered into the agreement by solemn obligation."

Mr. Roosevelt then emphasized that this would reveal "which nations in this enlightened time are willing to go on record as belonging to the small minority of mankind which still believes in the use of the sword for invasion of and attack upon their neighbors."

Enlightenment for All.

He began his address by quoting Wilson: "Comprehension must be the soil in which shall grow all the fruits of friendship." He ended it by the phrase urging that the Wilsonian appeal against "war by governments shall be changed to peace by peoples."

He did not recur to the proposal advanced at the defunct Geneva disarmament conference by Norman Davis in behalf of a consultative pact to implement the Kellogg treaty. That pact would have aroused as violent a political storm as the league issue once provoked had it come to fruition.

When Mr. Roosevelt heralded his peace program to the world last May it was soon lost to public notice in the rush of other events at home. By reaffirming his policy last night the President served to revive and perpetuate it as an objective of his Administration.

Roosevelt Scores Imperialism

Wilson's Ideals Credited With Directing World Toward Peace.

Following is the text of the speech by President Roosevelt at a banquet given last night by the Woodrow Wilson Foundation in observance of Wilson's birthday:

"Comprehension must be the soil in which shall grow all the fruits of friendship." Those words, used by President Wilson in the Mobile speech in 1913, can well serve as a statement of policy by the Government of the United States. That policy applies equally to a comprehension of our internal problems and our international relations.

Woodrow Wilson was a teacher, and when he used the word "comprehension" he meant it not in terms of the statesmen and political leaders and business executives and financial kings; he meant it rather in its application to the peoples of the world who constantly are going to school to learn simple truths in order that they and their neighbors can live their lives more safely, more happily, more fully.

Stimulus Yet Lives.

In every continent and in every country Woodrow Wilson accelerated comprehension on the part of the people themselves. It is, I believe, true that events of the last ten months have caused a greater interest in government, the problems of government, and the purposes of government than in any similar period in our history; and yet this recent interest and comprehension would have been impossible for the American people had they not had from Woodrow Wilson the original stimulus and the original understanding of which he spoke 20 years ago.

In that speech in Mobile, President Wilson first enunciated the definite statement "that the United States will never again seek one additional foot of territory by conquest." The United States accepted that declaration of policy. President Wilson went further, pointing out with special reference to our Latin-American neighbors that material interests must never be made superior to human liberty.

Nevertheless and largely as a result of the convulsion of the World War and its aftereffects, the complete fruition of that policy of unselfishness has not in every case been obtained. And in this we, all of us, have to share the responsibility.

Neighbors Absolved.

I do not hesitate to say that if I had been engaged in a political campaign as a citizen of some other American republic I might have been strongly tempted to play upon the fears of my compatriots of that republic by charging the United States of North America with some form of imperialistic desire for selfish aggrandizement.

As a citizen of some other republic I might have found it difficult to believe fully in the altruism of the richest American republic. In particular, as a citizen of some other republic, I might have found it hard to approve of the occupation of the territory of other republics even as a temporary measure.

It therefore has seemed clear to me as President that the time has come to supplement and to implement the declaration of President Wilson by the further declaration that the definite policy of the United States from now on is one opposed to armed intervention.

The maintenance of constitutional government in other nations is not a sacred obligation devolving upon the United States alone. The maintenance of law and the orderly processes of government in this hemisphere is the concern of each individual nation within its own borders first of all.

Concern Rests With All.

It is only if and when the failure of orderly processes affects the other nations of the continent that it becomes their concern, and the point to stress is that in such an event it becomes the joint concern of a whole continent in which we are all neighbors.

It is the comprehension of that doctrine—a comprehension not by the leaders alone, but by the peoples of all the American republics, that has made the conference now concluding its labors in Montevideo such a fine success. A better state of feeling among the neighbor nations of North and Central and South America exists today than at any other time within a generation. For participation in the bringing about of that result we can feel proud that so much credit belongs to the Secretary of State of the United States, Cordell Hull.

In the wider world field a chain of events has led, of late, away from rather than toward the ultimate objectives of Woodrow Wilson.

The superficial observer charges this failure to the growth of the spirit of nationalism. But, in so doing, he suggests a nationalism in its narrower, restrictive sense, and a nationalism of that kind supported by the overwhelming masses of the people themselves in each nation.

I challenge that description of the world population today.

Political Leaders to Blame.

The blame for the danger to world peace lies not in the world population but in the political leaders of that population.

The immagination of the masses of world population was stirred, as never before, by President Wilson's gallant appeal to them—to those masses—to banish future war. His appeal meant little to the imagination or the hearts of a large number of the so-called statesmen who gathered in Paris to assemble a treaty of so-called peace in 1919. I saw that with my own eyes and heard that with my own ears. Political profit, personal prestige, national aggrandizement attended the birth of the League of Nations, and handicapped it from its infancy by seeking their own profit and their own safety first.

Nevertheless, through the league directly, or through its guiding motives indirectly, the states of the world have groped forward to find something better than the old way of composing their differences.

The league has provided a common meeting place; it has provided machinery which serves for international discussion, and in very many practical instances it has helped labor and health and commerce and education, and last but not least, the actual settlement of many disputes, great and small, among nations great and small.

Today the United States is cooperating openly in the fuller utilization of the League of Nations machinery than ever before.

Old Alliance Inadequate.

I believe that I express the views of my countrymen when I state that the old policies, alliances, combinations and balances of power have proved themselves inadequate for the preservation of world peace. The League of Nations, encouraging as it does the extension of nonaggression pacts, of reduction of armament agreements, is a prop in the world peace structure.

We are not members and we do not contemplate membership. We are giving cooperation to the league in every matter which is not primarily political and in every matter which obviously represents the views and the good of the peoples of the world as distinguished from the views and the good of political leaders, of privileged classes or of imperialistic aims.

If you figure the world's population at approximately one billion and a half people, you will find it safe to guess that at least 90 per cent of all of them are today content with the territorial limits of their respective nations and are willing further to reduce their armed forces tomorrow if every other nation in the world will agree to do the same thing.

Plan to Scrap Offensive Weapons Advocated by President.

Back of the threat to world peace lies the fear and perhaps even the possibility that the other 10 per cent of the people of the world may go along with a leadership which seeks territorial expansion at the expense of neighbors and which, under various pleas in avoidance, are unwilling to reduce armament or stop rearmament even if everybody else agrees to nonaggression and to arms reduction.

If this 10 per cent can be persuaded by the other 90 per cent to do their own thinking and not be led, we will have practical peace, permanent peace, real peace throughout the world. Our own country has reduced the immediate steps to this greatest of objectives to practical and reasonable terms.

I have said to every nation in the world something to this effect:

1. Let every nation agree to eliminate over a short period of years, and by progressive steps, every weapon of offense in its possession and to create no additional weapons of offense. This does not guarantee a nation against invasion unless you implement it with the right to fortify its own border with permanent and nonmobile defenses; and also with the right to assure itself through international continuing inspection that its neighbors are not creating nor maintaining offensive weapons of war.

2. A simple declaration that no nation will permit any of its armed forces to cross its own borders into the territory of another nation. Such an act would be regarded by humanity as an act of aggression and as an act, therefore, that would call for condemnation by humanity.

3. It is clear, of course, that no such general agreement for the elimination of aggression and of the weapons of offensive warfare would be of any value to the world unless every nation, without exception, entered into the agreement by solemn obligation. If then such an agreement were signed by a great majority of the nations on the definite condition that it would go into effect only when signed by all the nations, it would be a comparatively easy matter to determine which nations in this enlightened time are willing to go on record as belonging to the small minority of mankind which still believes in the use of the sword for invasion of and attack upon their neighbors.

Feels World Receptive.

I did not make this suggestion until I felt assured, after a hard-headed practical survey that the temper of the overwhelming majority of all men and women in my own country as well as those who make up the world's population, subscribes to the fundamental objective I have set forth and to the practical road to that objective. The political leaders of many of these peoples interpose and will interpose argument, excuse, befogging amendment—yes, and even ridicule. But I tell them that the men and women they serve are so far in advance of that type of leadership that we could get a world accord on world peace immediately if the people of the world spoke for themselves.

Through all the centuries and down to the world conflict of 1914 to 1918, wars were made by governments. Woodrow Wilson challenged that necessity. That challenge made the people who create and who change governments think. They wondered with Woodrow Wilson whether the people themselves could not some day prevent governments from making war.

It is but an extension of the challenge of Woodrow Wilson for us to purpose in this newer generation that from now on war by governments shall be changed to peace by peoples.

3 Boats Go to Aid Distressed Vessel

Coal Freighter Reported Aground Off N. Y.

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—A Coast Guard boat and two police launches were sent to Hell Gate tonight in response to wireless messages from the 2,800-ton freighter Wellhart.

The messages said the freighter had gone aground in the East River. The request for a Coast Guard boat to stand by was a precautionary measure.

The Wellhart is 343 feet long and is engaged in the coal-carrying trade between Norfolk, New York and Eastern ports.

Ickes to Check On PWA Fund, Nearly at End

Slowing Down Sharply on Allotments With Exact Balance in Doubt.

With the $3,300,000,000 Public Works fund practically exhausted, Secretary Ickes yesterday declared there would be no "deficit financing" of projects.

Although a formal statement yesterday accompanying a list of allotments totaling $83,931,000 said that approximately $144,000,000 is left in the fund, there is some confusion as to the exact amount of unexpended balance available. This arises, Secretary Ickes said, because of the failure of municipalities to carry out projects after allocations had been made for them.

Ickes revealed that his associate officials are proceeding on the theory that they have "overshot" the original fund in their allocations, and that they now will slow down. He said a thorough check is in progress to determine exactly the amount of unexpended funds.

Slowness Protested.

Complaints from the administrator about slowness of municipalities in taking out their allocations, climaxed Tuesday by a vigorous statement from him, yesterday brought the Treasury to listing public works payments to municipalities and States separately from other public works expenditures. For the first time, the daily statement, that of December 26, had the municipal payments in a separate category.

In connection with the slowing down of allocations, Ickes said the formulation of projects will be continued. This will be done, he said, in order that if Congress appropriates more money for the public works program, there will be plenty of projects to put under way immediately.

However, because of the uncertainty of the total allotments being put into effect, there is little likelihood that long lists of approved projects will continue to be passed by the works board. There are several hundred projects now being examined, but it is not likely many of them will obtain approval. Instead, they will be held in abeyance for additional appropriations.

Fund Plea Up to Roosevelt.

Ickes stated that he has not prepared any definite recommendations to Congress regarding continuing the program. This, he indicated, he considers a matter for President Roosevelt to determine. Already it has been stated the Administration will ask about $1,875,000,000 for a new program, and it appears obvious around the works administration that further funds are being counted on.

A reserve has been established by the PWA, Ickes said, to take care of any "overages" of allotments beyond a limit set somewhat below the original fund.

With allotments practically exhausting the fund, actual spending of the money is far behind, the Treasury statement showed yesterday. The new listing of actual disbursement of money showed that Federal projects, undertaken by Federal departments, have received $31,676,000 during December and $163,149,000 for the fiscal year. Payments to municipalities and States for non-Federal projects totaled $46,174,000 for December. Allotments to these units for the period amounted to about $600,000,000.

The spending is speeding up, however, the statement showed. December's total of nearly $78,000,000 to date is practically double that of any other month. This figure did not include a $67,000,000 Civil Works Administration pay roll.

U. S. Entering New Era, View Of Roosevelt

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt expressed the view yesterday that "we enter the new year with a realization that we have crossed the threshold of a new era."

This was contained in a letter he wrote to Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. The letter said:

"The dawn of a new year always is a challenge. It suggests new opportunities. It is characterized by inventories, accountings of past performances, making of new estimates and resolutions.

"We enter upon the new year with a realization that we have crossed the threshold of a new era. We have the opportunity of improving conditions and making our country a better home, materially and spiritually, for more than 120,000,000 people.

"To do this will require the concerted aid and continued efforts of many forces—of Government, Federal, State and local; of social, spiritual, industrial and financial agencies.

"I welcome this opportunity to express my thanks for the splendid cooperation which you and members of the General Federation of Women's Clubs have given to me and the Government.

"Your support of the measures initiated by the Government to end the terrible depression and to establish social justice and economic security for all of our people has been and is a real influence for the good we have been able to accomplish.

"I ask that we, men and women of the present and the new generations, continue to work together. With such united effort, we can attain strength and force necessary to cure existing ills and give us a new National health and prosperity."

Girl, 13, Admits Child's Slaying

Playmate, 9, Is Strangled and Stabbed for "Telling Stories."

White Plains, N. Y., Dec. 28 (U.P.). District Attorney Frank H. Coyne announced tonight that Mary Kavala, 13, had confessed killing her 9-year-old playmate, Josephine Waropay, at Hastings last Saturday.

The Waropay child was found strangled by a tightly twisted automobile inner tube around her neck. Her wrists had been stabbed and her head beaten in.

The child's halting and hysterical story implicated no additional person, Coyne said. He said she confessed she forced the young child behind St. Matthew's Lyceum at Hastings and strangled her singlehanded.

The district attorney said Mary killed her playmate because the latter had been "telling stories about her (Mary's) mother and family."

McAdoo's Election Foe Makes Stage Debut

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 28 (AP). Tallant Tubbs, former California State senator, who was defeated by William Gibbs McAdoo for election to the United States Senate last year, made his debut as a professional actor tonight.

Tubbs, a former amateur actor, appeared in the cast of "Dark Victory," which opened a tryout engagement here. The show has been in rehearsal here since Tuesday.

Students Wave Antiwar Flag At White House

Others Here Divide Time Between Sipping Tea and Oratory.

Washington's vacation-time student conferences divided their time yesterday by parading before the White House, taking tea with Mrs. Roosevelt, listening to Senator Thomas expound on money, and hurling a few verbal brickbats at each other.

Early in the afternoon the League for Industrial Democracy and the National Student League, numbering several hundred students, paraded before the White House with placards demanding an end to war and R. O. T. C. At the same time the National Student Federation, which considers the former groups "too radical," was having tea with the First Lady inside the Executive Mansion. L. I. D. officials previously had termed the N. S. F. group "stuffed shirts."

Speaking to the N. S. F. in the Mayflower last night, Senator Elmer Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, declared the United States should not go back on the gold standard before Great Britain does so. He estimated that it may be a year or more before the United States can return to gold. He predicted gold devaluation on the part of the President by 50 per cent as authorized in the amendment bearing his name.

Taking exception to the N. S. F.'s attack on the L. I. D., the latter group passed a resolution declaring the National Student Federation "ideally suited to form a nucleus for the development of reactionary or Fascist thought among students." The members condemned the N. S. F. for having tea with Mrs. Roosevelt while their own organization was demanding that the President take action against the R. O. T. C. and use the money now going into military training for educational purposes.

Merger Plan Declined.

Even the two more radical groups could not join forces, however, as the L. I. D. turned down plans from the National Student League for a merger. The L. I. D. is said to be a Socialist group while the N. S. L. tends more toward communism.

Both these organizations did join, however, in backing the National Conference on students in politics scheduled to begin tomorrow at the United States Chamber of Commerce. The National Student Federation previously had refused to support the conference which is backed by numerous youth movements and will present speakers of all political philosophies.

John Lang, president of the National Student Federation, termed the conference "too radical." He and his organization had refused to march with the more radical groups to the White House.

"We prefer," he explained, "to consider the matter of R. O. T. C. at length and with cooler heads."

While the L. I. D. and the N. S. L. demonstrated against "Imperialist War" and the R. O. T. C. and were received by Louis M. Howe, President Roosevelt's secretary, the N. S. F. discussed student government and went to the Pan-American Union Building to hear talks by the Minister of Panama, Dr. Ricardo Alfaro, and others on "Promotion of Friendship Between College Students of Latin America and the United States."

Later in the day the National Student League returned to Howard University to hear Robert Minor, a Communist leader, speak on the Scottsboro trial.

Rift in Ranks.

The "conservative" group, however, was not so sure that all was serene within its ranks. Sonia Menkschikoff, student of Hunter College, New York City, was up in arms against the "railroading" through the conference of a motion refusing to join or back the National Conference on Students in Politics. Helen Archibald, also of Hunter, claimed the other group has "a worthwhile program." Possible trouble for the next conservative leadership of the N. S. F. when the body next meets in plenary session was being discussed by the members.

Today, the L. I. D. will continue its sessions in the Friends Meeting House, Florida avenue at Twenty-first street northwest. The National Student Federation was to adjourn to American University during the day for discussion groups. In the evening it will hear Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio.

In the hours before the next meetings, student leaders were "seeing the town," attending dances and considering the problems of the world as well as the problems of how to "scotch" their rivals.

Mrs. Bagley Snubs NRA on Code Post

Boston Republican Turns Down Film Place.

Boston, Dec. 28 (AP).—Mrs. Frederick Bagley, prominent in Boston society and Republican circles, today said she had refused an offer to serve on the moving picture code authority under the NRA, a position declined last week by A. Lawrence Lowell, president emeritus of Harvard University.

Mrs. Bagley said Sol Rosenblatt, head of the Motion Picture Code Administration, had telephoned her from Washington yesterday asking that she accept, and she had wired her refusal today. She declined to give her reasons.

Agents Probe Dr. Johnson's Campus Rule

Invitation to Students to Meet at College Stirs Action.

Federal agents have been investigating the alleged radical activities of Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, president of Howard University, due to issuance of an invitation to the National Student League to meet on the university campus this week, it was disclosed yesterday.

It was learned that a report of the investigation has been filed with Congressional committees.

Joseph Sarobin, a member of the league, apologized last night for having stated Wednesday that the league was the guest of the Student Council at Howard University. The league, he said, asked Howard University if the session might be held there.

Dr. Johnson was reported to have made an effort to have the convention withdrawn.

The league, through a resolution, last night called on the university administration to repudiate statements tending to emphasize the former's alleged radical nature. The resolution followed return of league members from the White House, where they demanded that Government funds in support of the Reserve Officers Training Corps organizations be withdrawn and applied to scholarships for worthy students.

Louis McHenry Howe, secretary to the President, received a delegation of six, headed by Joseph Cohen, representing the Student League and the American League Against War and Fascism which, together with the League of Industrial Democracy, presented a petition covering the student demands, and serving notice that the organization would not support the United States in event of war for profit of capitalists.

The students returned to Rankin Chapel at Howard University, to draw up a plan of organization calculated to link the colleges and universities of the United States, on a Nation-wide basis, with foreign universities, insofar as students' movements are concerned.

Agenda of the Student League, as adopted, was calculated to identify the American movement with that of the British National Students Conference in "its consistent struggle against imperialism."

President as Linguist.

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—Americans who want to speak good English would do well to follow President Roosevelt. His speech is an example of the best "American English" spoken in this country. # Speaker Denies Homer Lived In Troy's Time

Asserts All Bard Knew of the City He Heard Centuries Later.

Homer did not live in 900 B. C., generally fixed as the period of the Iliad and Odyssey; but lived and composed his epic poems about the year 750 B. C., it was asserted last night by Rhys Carpenter, archeologist, and a professor of Bryn Mawr College.

Taking issue with Herodotus, who fixed the time of Homer as 900 B. C., and Gladstone, who said Homer lived about 1250 B. C., the professor declared archeologists who are now searching for traces of Homer in Troy are on a vain quest, because Troy fell before the time of Homer.

Prof. Carpenter told the American Philological Association, the Archaeological Institute of America, and the Linguistic Society of America at a banquet in the Washington Hotel that all the evidences points to the existence of Homer not earlier than 750 B. C.

Makes "Stupid Mistake."

"The literary world makes the stupid mistake of trying to date Homer by implications from his writings. Because he wrote of Mycenae, they say he must have been a Mycenaean, but one wouldn't call Shakespeare an Italian because he wrote 'Othello' and the 'Merchant of Venice.'"

The description of the shield of Achilles, and the funeral clothes described in the poems are not Mycenaean, but rather point to composition of the epics at about 750 B. C. The works are wholly legendary, he said, and pointing to the fact that the voyages of Ulysses from Troy to Mycenae, which are described in the poems as lasting 20 days, are scarcely factual. In fact, he said, the distance between the two cities is about 80 miles.

Only Learned by Hearsay.

All Homer knew of Troy was what he heard, Mr. Carpenter said, and furthermore, he said, the epics were not written, because at the time there was no writing in Ionia. The Mycenaean writing art died with the advent of the geometric era, and was not revived until after Homer's time.

The stories were composed from fragments of tradition and recited orally to the guilds of wandering bards, he said. Any accretions and accumulations were interpolated by those who repeated them after having heard them sung by Homer.

Postmaster General Farley brought the news from Paris yesterday that dapper Jimmy Walker is drinking nothing stronger than tea.

This sober diet is making New York's former mayor look "very healthy," added Farley, who said that Europe was a fine place, but not for the Postmaster General.

"The more I saw of Europe," explained Farley, "the more I thought of the United States."

English Lord Is Sued For $15,500 in Nevada

Reno, Nev., Dec. 28 (AP).—Christian Arthur Wellesley, English lord who has made Nevada his home since last June, was sued for $15,500, plus 6 per cent interest, by Harrison Lillibridge, of New York, in district court here today. The action charges Wellesley defaulted a July payment on a $20,000 bond and claims the sum asked as the balance due on the bond.

PWA's Allotments Total 84 Million, Including Varied Projects.

Allotments totaling $83,931,892, including $27,534,000 loans to railroads, were announced yesterday by the Public Works Administration.

Allocation of funds for a long list of Federal and municipal projects reduced the $3,300,000,000 public works fund to about $144,000,000, Secretary Ickes said.

Approximately half the total went to Federal undertakings. A sum of $3,000,000 was provided for one year's work on the Tygart River Dam in West Virginia, and $2,800,000 went to the State Department for stabilization and rectificatoin of the Rio Grande River.

A large works program for the office of Indian Affairs was authorized with allocation of $1,222,500 for construction and repair of buildings on reservations in six States, and establishment of a Land Use Institute on the Navajo reservation. The sum of $2,837,000 was set aside for general rivers and harbors work by the War Department.

A $22,590,000 allotment went to the Corps of Engineers, War Department for construction of 14 reservoirs in the Muskingum Valley of east central Ohio. Of the rivers and harbors money, $37,000 is to go for the Tangier Channel, Va.

Railroad loans were as follows: Southern Pacific, $12,000,000; Illinois Central, $9,300,000; Baltimore and Ohio, $4,230,000; Wabash, $1,489,000; Kansas, Oklahoma and Gulf, $265,000, and Interstate Railroad, $250,000. The loans are to be used for general equipment, rails and construction.

New Haven Man Named N. Y. Health Dictator

New York, Dec. 28 (U.P.).—Mayor-elect Fiorello H. LaGuardia, who takes over affairs from Tammany at City Hall Monday, today announced that he had selected a Connecticut man to serve as New York's commissioner of health—the second man from out of the State he has named to his cabinet.

Dr. John L. Rice, now health commissioner of New Haven, is to succeed Dr. Shirley W. Wynne as public health director of the city, and Dr. Sigismund S. Goldwater will be commissioner of hospitals, LaGuardia announced.

Bitter-Sweet

Liquor-Filled Candy Is Seized by U. S.

Candy, in lots sufficient to bring joy to the heart of the most pessimistic kid, was brought into District Supreme Court yesterday as a prelude to its destruction.

The United States Government uncovered 21 boxes of the stuff filled with "liquor" and straightway, it asked that the entire consignment be condemned.

A local wholesaler was named as receiving the sweets, and he was named defendant in a "condemnation suit" that would have the effect of throwing the entire 21 boxes to the fishes.

The official charge against the candy was that it violated the Pure Food and Drug act. Action will be had on the petition after 21 days of public display of the condemnation request.

Sanders Gains Point in Fight For House Seat

Election in Louisiana "Apparenlty Legal," Says Rainey.

Chances of J. Y. Sanders, jr., attaining the Sixth Louisiana District's seat in the House sought by Mrs. Bolivar E. Kemp, Long machine contestant, mounted last night when Speaker Rainey said he considered Sanders' election "apparently legal."

Sanders, chosen Wednesday in a so-called "popular election" called by citizens after the legality of Mrs. Kemp's election December 5 had been questioned, next Wednesday will lay claim to the seat made vacant by death of Mrs. Kemp's husband.

The Speaker said Louisiana laws had been called to his attention purporting to sanction an election of the type held Wednesday, after the governor allegedly failed to comply with the law.

Opponents of Mrs. Kemp charge her election was "illegal" because no primary was called by the governor, who also failed to allow the necessary 15 days to lapse before the December 5 election.

Although Sanders has no credentials from the Louisiana secretary of State, as has Mrs. Kemp, Speaker Rainey said he was considering admitting him to the floor along with Mrs. Kemp on the strength of credentials from the citizens' election committee.

Rainey said it may require three hours to dispose of the dispute when Congress convenes Wednesday. He thinks the matter probably will be referred to a House elections committee.

"New Deal's" Press Attitude Extolled

Teachers of Journalism Hear Dr. Bleyer.

Chicago, Dec. 28 (AP).—Teachers of journalism, in convention here, today were told by one speaker that under the "New Deal" the press need not fear for its freedom, and by another that those papers which use that freedom for constructive criticism of the Administration are performing a patriotic duty.

"Whether we move to the right toward Fascism or to the left toward Socialism and Communism, we shall still hold to the right of newspapers to furnish us with the news of the day in as complete and accurate a form as possible," said Dr. Willard G. Bleyer, head of the University of Wisconsin's department of journalism.

Emulating Biblical Joseph, Man Sees Drought; Black Coffee Drinking Sure Way to Stay Sober

Four Warm Cycles Will Overlaps, Specialist Tells Scientists.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 28 (AP).—A "warm-and-dry" weather forecast for the rest of the twentieth century and warning of a coming period of disastrous droughts were issued by a weather specialist today before the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Playing a role much like the biblical Joseph, who warned the Egyptians of "lean years" to come, H. W. Clough, of Arcade, N. Y., told the scientists that about the turn of the century "there are likely to be prolonged and disastrous droughts, possibly causing extensive migrations of people now inhabiting regions that border upon deserts."

These great droughts will result, he said, from the fact that four great weather cycles controlled by the sun will synchronize somewhere around the year 2,000.

At that period the hot, dry phases of each of the four cycles all will strike the earth at about the same time.

The cycles are 37, 83, 300 and 1,400 years in length, the short ones repeating themselves several times during one long one, with weather swinging alternately from hot and dry to cold and wet through each.

The United States is now having exceptionally warm, dry weather because the warm, dry phases of a 37-year and 83-year cycle are now roughly coinciding, Clough said.

"Around 1950 or 1955, the weather will be considerably cooler and wetter than at present," he added. "However, it is probable that the present century as a whole will prove to be exceptionally warm and dry as compared with the past two centuries."

The United States and foreign countries have been growing warmer in general since the 1860s, Clough said, culminating in January, 1932, which was the warmest January in 155 years in at least one section.

Coupled with the increasing warmth have been recent severe droughts which still continue in many regions.

Clough said England now is experiencing the lowest prices for wheat in almost 300 years, the result of large crops favored by the current warm, dry weather.

Similar low prices for wheat, he has found, have prevailed during the warm, dry phase of every 37-year cycle since the year 1250 A. D.

N. Y. Widow Wins Seat in Congress

Mrs. Clarke Has Safe Lead Over Democrat.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 28 (AP).—Mrs. Marian W. Clarke, Republican, was elected representative from the Thirty-fourth Congressional District today to fill out the unexpired term of her husband, Representative John D. Clarke, who was killed last month in an automobile accident.

With her home county of Delaware unreported Mrs. Clarke had a lead of approximately 800 votes over John J. Burns, Binghamton Democrat, early tonight.

The incomplete vote was: Mrs. Clarke, 10,950; Burns, 10,139. Unofficial reports said Mrs. Clarke was leading in Delaware County by about 3,800 votes.

Science Measures Creation of Matter

laboratory took some of the first photos, has been among the doubters. The new Oppenheimer theory adds assurance that the story of the pictures can properly be interpreted as creation of matter.

The photographs show in a cloud of vapor the tracks made by two particles, which appear in Paris, one of them an electron or negative charge of electricity, the other a positron, or positive charge. They appear sometimes after a ray similar to those produced by radium has struck the nucleus of an atom.

The ray disappears. In its place is the pair of particles. The ray was electromagnetic, the same as light and radio waves. But the two particles are material, much like those composing iron.

This new pair of particles is too small to be any ordinary substance, whether metal, gas or liquid, but the two particles are the same, so far as science now knows, as those which form all the earth's 92 chemical elements.

Atom Smashing Machinery Soon To Be Cheaper

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 28 (AP).—Dr. Jesse W. Beams, University of Virginia physicist, today explained to the American Physical Society his device for smashing atoms, and predicted that inexpensive laboratory equipment soon will be available to give the applied potential of millions of volts for study of the atomic structure.

Dr. Beams showed how within a glass tube, spanned by metal rings, he has been able to build up from 15,000 volts the potential equivalent of 90,000 volts, which move hydrogen atoms at high speeds until they are broken.

He said he has developed another tube which produces the effect of millions of volts without freeing dangerous power. In the past, he said, elaborate equipment has been necessary to develop high voltages.

Electric 'Dimple' New Survey Means

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 28 (AP).—An electrical "dimple" in the ground, half the size of Massachusetts, which promises to reveal make-up of the earth's crust to a depth of 5 miles or more, was described today to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The "dimple" method, a new step in electrical prospecting, which has been used already to make one depth map 50 miles across, was perfected at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology by Dr. L. B. Slichter.

"The method may be explained by the following analogy," he said. "If one has a thick slab of live, springy rubber, and presses down on it with a pencil, a circular dimple-like impression will be formed.

"The exact shape of the cone-like depression will depend on whether the rubber is uniform throughout, or becomes harder or softer below the surface.

"In the present electric method an 'electrical low' is created by applying a strong negative voltage to the surface of the earth. For some distance away the voltage at the ground's surface will be appreciably negative, but gradually rising to its normal value of zero.

At Clinton, Mass., a current of 10 to 25 amperes was fed into the ground through iron stakes driven into wet soil. This produced the voltage depression, or dimple. To measure its shape small iron rods were driven in the ground every mile or so.

As expected Dr. Slichter said, old Mother Earth didn't dimple very well in this area because of irregular formations undeground.

Two Films Show What Makes Noise

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 28 (AP). What makes noise, what makes harmony, and the striking parallel between production of human speech and of music in a pipe organ are some of the things made easier to understand by two talking films on "sound produced for teaching purposes" by the University of Chicago and shown today before the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The films, designed for use as aids in teaching, but not as substitutes for a teacher, illustrate for example the position and working of the vocal organs by animated drawings more clearly than is possible for any other method and the workings of machinery that could not be brought into the classroom. A series is being made for use in teaching physics, chemistry, geology and astronomy.

Arlington Sewer Contract Promised

Returning from a conference with Public Works Administration officials yesterday Commonwealth Attorney of Arlington County, Lawrence W. Douglas, said he hopes to have the contract in connection with the sewer project in time to present to the county board at its meeting tomorrow.

County School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp will go to Richmond today to confer with Federal Emergency Relief officials in connection with classes in adult education.

It is planned to begin classes January 3. The complete program will be announced following Mr. Kemp's return.

Alcohol Has an Opposite Effect on Body; Each Is Neutralizer.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 28 (AP).—How to drink liquor and stay sober was described by a psychologist today before the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

They were incidental results of new experiments on the effects of alcohol and coffee on the human body, conducted at Cornell University by Dr. A. L. Winsor and Dr. E. I. Strongin.

The experimenters confirmed the old belief that drinking black coffee is a good way to recover from effects of drinking liquor, and made a new discovery that alcohol and coffee have an antagonistic effect against each other in the body. Taken together, alcohol and coffee have a tendency to "cancel out" each other's effects, leaving the drinker about where he started.

The tests showed also why one cocktail before eating and coffee afterward may aid digestion and why drinkers are thirsty for water after a number of alcoholic drinks.

The reason was, the scientists found, that alcohol stimulated the flow of saliva from the parathyroid gland, located in front of the ear, while a drinker is sipping his drink, but greatly reduces the saliva flow as soon as it enters his blood. The saliva flow is most greatly reduced ten minutes after drinking the liquor.

All the tests were made on an empty stomach, with alcohol diluted with two parts of water and doses varying from 30 to 75 cubic centimeters (roughtly, from a quarter to a half of a large water-glass of alcohol). The doses of coffee were one pint, with more if the subject was used to drinking much coffee. Effect of alcohol on a man varied considerably with his weight, age, previous drinking habits and general self-control, the scientists found.

Will H. Hays Urges Administration Support

Sullivan, Ind., Dec. 28 (AP).—Will H. Hayes, former national chairman of the Republican party, in an address here today, urged "sympathetic support, regardless of politics, be given the leadership in this emergency for the great and essential purposes of recovery."

Mr. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., is spending the holidays at his home here.

Pigeons, Too, Have Register of Society

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 28 (AP).—Social life among pigeons and peoples is very much the same, based on some remote biological pattern working in both, the American Association for the Advancement of Science was told today.

Pigeons, like people, are organized largely in couples of males and females, it has been found by Drs. W. C. Allee and R. H. Masure, of the University of Chicago. The birds standing high in the social scale of pigeon society have more social contacts than those in the lower ranks, just as among humans, they found.

The social order among the pigeons is worked out by what is called "peck dominance." Those at the top can "get away with" pecking all those below them, those in the middle can safely peck only those in the lower half, and so on down the scale.

Lazy Fish Soon Become 'Diabetic'

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 28 (AP). Fish that take too little exercise and eat too much develop a disease that reduces the amount of insulin in their bodies, the same thing that causes diabetes in humans, a scientist reported here today.

When rainbow trout were kept in tanks with very slow moving water so that they did not need to exercise much, and were overfed with diets rich in fats and carbohyrates such as sugar, the insulin-making organs of their pancreas glands decreased greatly in number, Dr. Walter N. Hess, of Hamilton College, Clinton ,N. Y., reported.

He also found that the trouble could be cured by changing the fish to a diet with less fat and carbohydrates.

This discovery may prove useful as a method of testing the efficiency of the pancreas gland, Dr. Hess explained.

Scientists Discover New Type Hormone

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 28 (AP). New evidence that not one but two hormones or body secretions regulate size and activity of sex glands was reported today to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The two hormones are secreted by the anterior pituitary gland, at the base of the brain, and one has the power of increasing the size of normal adult sex glands while the other operates to reduce them. This was the discovery of Dr. Robert W. Bates, Dr. Oscar Riddle and Ernest L. Lahr, scientists of the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

It has been known for seven years that the anterior pituitary gland secretes a hormone that would stimulate sex gland growth, but they now have discovered that it has a twin with the opposite effect.

The scientists discovered the two hormones' effects by experiments on chickens.

Vacationing Convicts Hunted.

Marlin, Tex., Dec. 28 (AP).—Two life-term convicts who obtained permission of Oklahoma State Penitentiary authorities last August to go on a fishing trip and never returned, were sought tonight for the $41,000 holdup of the First State Bank of Marlin, in which three bank employes were kidnaped.

Guild Proposed To Reform Law

Two-Thirds of Public Can't Afford Legal Services, Asserts Professor.

Chicago, Dec. 28 (AP).—A National lawyers' guild to govern that profession was proposed to the Association of American Law Schools today by Prof. Karl N. Llewellyn of Columbia University.

His plan, which other teachers described as frankly socialized law, is intended to reduce the cost of legal services and raise the standards of the profession.

Prof. Llewellyn said two-thirds of the population could not obtain legal services at a reasonable price, and "half the metropolitan bar" was driven to unethical practices because lawyers were unable to make a living otherwise.

The guild should have power, Llewellyn said, to control fees and assign attorneys to cases.

Women Fliers Break Record, Keep on Flying

2 More Days in Air Is Goal Set by Helen Rickey, Frances Marsalis.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 28 (AP).—Frances Marsalis and Helen Richey tonight broke the world's endurance flight record for women and flew over Miami, piling up additional hours beyond the new mark of 8 days, 5 hours and 5 minutes.

They set the new record at 6:08 p. m., Eastern standard time, bettering by an hour the former mark.

Mrs. Marsalis became twice coholder of the women's record as the "flying boudoir" circled past the 196-hour mark set by her and Mrs. Louise Thaden at Valley Stream, Long Island, August 22, 1932.

Mrs. Marsalis, in a note dropped shortly after equaling the record, said they had no intention of landing tonight.

Suggesting 1:03 p. m. Saturday, exactly 10 full days from the time they took off from the Municipal field, as a possible landing time, she asked counsel.

"I want to stay up," she said in her note, but added she and Miss Richey were weary.

"Of course," she wrote, "if the motor isn't exactly right, I'll be in. Hadn't figured to land tonight. It probably be hard enough for me to land in daylight, account my depth perception is probably off a trifle."

Soon after the record had been set, the refueling plane made its nightly service contact and about 200 gallons of gasoline was shot into the floor tanks of the endurance plane.

Women Describe Endurance Flight

We started and 20 minutes after our take-off the oil pressure went to zero—well, I dumped my gas and came in. Two hours later we were in the air and have been ever since. That was at 1:03 Wednesday afternoon, (December 20.)

That night was fairly good, but next morning the fog rolled in off the Everglades and we couldn't refuel. We went way out to sea to refuel. Then things went along pretty good till Saturday night when for no reason under the sun the gas pump wouldn't pump gas.

Well, without gas we couldn't stay up. All of the gas is taken into two tanks that are on the floor of the plane, therefore every drop of gas we use must be pumped up to the wing tanks.

We took turns working on the pump from 6 p. m. until 9 p. m. We were exhausted; hadn't had dinner. So I told Helen: "Well, gal, it's too bad; guess we'll go down."

She assented.

Well, I went down and flew around the field, but just couldn't land. So up I went to try once more. With the aid of a safety pin and a monkey wrench I made the pump work.

When I told Helen that it was pumping she was so excited she wanted to pump. That is something, because she hates pumping.

Punches Hole in Fuselage.

Then everything was swell until yesterday. We were trying to refuel and it was choppy and bumpy. The air was as bad as I've ever known it. Well, Fred had an enormous package—oil, batteries, mail, &c., even beer for Helen, I think. This package was swinging wildly to and fro and me trying to find a calm moment to take the package up on a wing so Richey could grab it. Once I thought she had it, but Fred motioned me away and Richey came in saying:

"Hey, that package knocked a huge hole in the fuselage."

It did, directly back of the refueling cockpit. We went back and got that package, took our gas and retired (went up to 3,000 or 4,000 feet) to think it over.

Fortunately we had some fabric and dope aboard and Helen could patch this great rent. Well, that repair job was made when I discovered a leak in a gas connection. We believe that is fixed—do you think your local Department of Commerce inspector, Mr. Puckett, would give us our mechanics' licenses? We deserve them.

Refueling Pilot "Marvelous."

Jack Loesing, our refueling pilot, is marvelous. He does not know what fear means. Sometimes my motor sticks her nose nearly into his cockpit but he never moves. He has been more help than words can ever convey.

Fred Fetterman, the man handling the hose, is most capable and alert. He knows his job and of course there is Helen Richey. She is right out there taking chances, but hanging on.

Why, this record means everything to me just to justify the faith of the three swell people I have just mentioned. They have all sorts of faith in me—as I have in myself.

Are we glad we have broken the world's endurance record?

And how! Say we're four weary but happy people.

We have no plans. If the motor and ship stick, we'll stick. If not, down we come.

Haven't we the record? Amen.

PWA Grants Half Million For Aviation

Design for $700 Craft Will Be Sought as Flying Stimulus.

The Aeronautics Branch of the Department of Commerce will be given $500,000 by the Public Works Administration to push its $700 airplane experiment, it was announced yesterday.

The branch asked for $1,000,000 to develop the low-priced airplane field, but the Public Works Board cut this figure in half. It is considered sufficient, however, to get the experiment started.

As disclosed yesterday by The Post, the Aeronautics Branch has decided to go ahead with the mass production plane project to encourage more persons to own airplanes. Replies to a questionnaire sent out to 34,000 individuals convinced air officials there was a market for an inexpensive plane.

In making their announcement, Public Works officials referred to Aeronautics Branch reports which indicate private flying is on the decline in the United States and say the present price of planes contributes to this situation.

"It is believed the allotment will provide sufficient funds for working out a design that will be safe, durable and cheap enough to attract a substantial number of purchasers," a statement from Secretary Ickes said. "It is proposed the Government work to perfect the designs of the plane which would be available to private manufacturers for use for the benefit of citizens seeking inexpensive planes."

The Public Works Administration asserted the Aeronautics Branch is confident 10,000 of the planes could be sold a year after they are on the market.

Man, 87, Braves Fire to Save Wife

Firemen Rescue Both From Burning Home.

Woodstock, Ill., Dec. 28 (U.P.).—The heroic devotion of an aged and crippled husband for his 82-year-old wife was revealed today when firemen fought their way into the burning home of Mr. and Mrs. William Wiley.

They found Wiley, 87, blindly groping his way through the smoke in search of his wife, Henrietta, who lay unconscious on the kitchen floor.

Mrs. Wiley was severely burned and her condition is critical. Because of his age, concern also was felt for Wiley's life.

Child Chokes on Part Of Christmas Toy

Ousted Officer Tests Power Of President

Former Commissioner in Salary Claim Repeats Illegality Charge.

The right of a President to remove from office a member of the Federal Trade Commission will be tested in the United States Court of Claims as the result of a petition filed yeserday by William E. Humphrey, contending his removal by executive order in October was "illegal and void."

Through his attorney, William J. Donovan, former Assistant Attorney General, Humphrey demanded from the United States $1,251.39 he said is due him as his salary from October 8 to November 30.

Humphrey, a Republican, disclosed the full correspondence between himself and the President, in which Humphrey raised the question of whether the matter might not become "a party issue."

Some Republicans already have picked up the controversy as a political issue, and it is certain to be aired in the coming Congressional session.

Refused to Yield Post.

With his petition, Humphrey placed before the court the transcript of four letters from President Roosevelt. Two of them requested his resignation, a third accepted it, although Humphrey contended none had been offered, while a fourth contained only these words:

"I am in receipt of your letter of September 27. Effective as of this date (October 7) you are hereby removed from the office of Commissioner of the Federal Trade Commission."

Humphrey refused to relinquish his post even after the direct order from Mr. Roosevelt. Two days after receiving it, he wrote to the Federal Trade Commission, insisting he was still a member. On the same day, the commission notified Humphrey it had voted to recognize the executive order of the President.

Also Wrote Successor.

Humphrey also wrote to George C. Mathews, who was appointed his successor, contending Mathews had no right to the post.

For 14 years a Republican Representative from Washington State, Humphrey was first appointed to the commission by President Coolidge in 1925 and was reappointed by President Hoover for a six-year term in 1931.

Golfer's Wife to Stand Trial for Shooting Him

Los Angeles, Dec. 28 (AP).—Mrs. Billie Mangrum, 21, wife of the golfer, Ray Mangrum, pleaded not guilty in Superior Court today to a charge of wounding her husband and was ordered to be tried January 23.

The State alleges she shot Mangrum in jealousy over another woman who kissed him after he had made a difficult putt.

Peruvian Navy Moving.

Manaos, Brazil, Dec. 28 (AP).—Three Peruvian destroyers and a naval tanker destined for Iquitos steamed up the Amazon today past Manaos without a halt.

Red Tape Balks Man at 'Altar' In Phone Wedding Across Sea

El Dorado, Ark., Dec. 28 (AP).—Benjamin Lebowitz was left waiting at the "altar" in his scheduled trans-atlantic telephone wedding today.

He grew impatient as he sat in a law office here waiting for a telephone call to be put through to the bride-to-be, Miss Hermina Weisz, in far-off Prague, Czechoslovakia.

The hour for the wedding came and the call was not completed. Then came a matter-of-fact announcement from the telephone operator that Prague wouldn't accept the call.

Lebowitz couldn't understand that. It wasn't a "collect" call.

He got on the line himself and insisted upon talking with Prague. Presently the call was put through to the American Consul there, and Judge L. S. Britt, who was to have performed the ceremony at this end, talked.

"What's the difficulty?" inquired [illegible]

"Miss Weisz has gone to Munkac," replied the consul. Munkac is 20 hours by train from Prague.

This was a shock to Lebowitz, but there followed the explanation, absolving the bride-to-be of blame.

It developed that the ceremony could not be performed in the American Consulate at Prague unless proof was at hand that one or both parties were American citizens, and that the marriage would be legal in both countries.

So the wedding was postponed until Lebowitz could get proof to the American consul in Prague of his naturalization.

It was expected that all could be arranged to go through with the ceremony in about two weeks.

Lebowitz and Miss Weisz were childhood sweethearts and have not seen each other since they were 11 years old, but much correspondence [illegible]

Dill Discovers Federal Phone Control Flaws

(United Press.)

Consolidation of the Nation's communications systems under Federal control, most favored of the Administration's proposals to eliminate costly competition in the vast field, yesterday was threatened with the opposition of Senator Dill (Democrat), Washington.

Dill is chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, which must act on the plans put forth by President Roosevelt's committee.

"You will create a monopoly," Dill said, "and though you may talk of control, experience with the telephone has shown that the regulatory bodies themselves are finally controlled."

Study Yet to Be Made.

Dill has not studied the elaborate report prepared by the President's interdepartmental committee. He plans to await the return of Chairman Rayburn, of the House Interstate Commerce Committee, so they may go over it together.

Dill's antagonism to the proposal which would allow a combination of the systems under a Federal regulatory body comparable to the Interstate Commerce Commission, rests largely on the radio situation which might follow.

He observed that a merger would combine the International Telegraph & Telephone and the American Telephone & Telegraph Companies which betwen them dominate the international radio field.

Radio Segregation Cited.

It had been suggested, Dill said, that radio properties be segregated to maintain radio cable competition.

"The weakness in that suggestion," he said, "is that all radio communications would have to be relayed to the radio sending stations by telegraph. With telegraph companies allied with the cable companies there naturally would be favoritism for the cables."

The report made by the interdepartmental committee suggested Government ownership or continuance of the present situation as alternatives. Mr. Roosevelt is said to favor the merger plan.

Alexandria Club Installs Officers

Retiring Kiwanis Chief Is Paid Honor.

Irving Diener, retiring president of Alexandria Kiwanis Club, at the luncheon of the club yesterday in the George Mason Hotel, gave a resume of work accomplished in 1933.

Included were establishments of a summer camp for underprivileged children at Franconia, which entertained 90 during the summer; collection and distribution of 1,000 pair of shoes, through the "Old-Woman-in-a-Shoe" drive; furnishing 125 pairs of new shoes to school children; the lifting of indebtedness on a soup kitchen, furnishing meals to needy school children; contributions to the United Charities to outfit children with clothing; a "glad rags" day, furnishing suits and overcoats for needy and worthy men and cooperation with the Rotary Club in an entertainment which netted $150 for charity

The program yesterday was in charge of Everett Hellmuth, secretary. Harry F. Kennedy presented Mr. Diener with a traveling bag and several other articles, gifts of the club. A lieutenant governor's pin was also given Mr. Diener in recognition of his election to that office in Kiwanis.

Thomas M. Jones was installed as president; R. Wendell Eaves, first vice president, and Harry F. Kennedy, second vice president.

sel for the Texas Pacific Coal & Oil Co., of Thurber, Tex., and New York.

Named assistant Attorney General by President Wilson, Mr. Garnett was placed in charge of the public lands division of the Department of Justice. He resigned in 1921 and became a member of the law firm of Carlin & Carlin, of which C. C. Carlin, of Alexandria, Va., is the head.

Active in Party.

Mr. Garnett has been active in Democratic politics in the National Capital and is a member of the Democratic advisory committee of the District. His selection, however, was not sponsored by that organization nor by local Democratic leaders. The District Democratic central committee had urged appointment of Ralph A. Cusick. John P. Bramhall, also a member of the advisory committee, had been put forward by his friends.

Lucien H. Vandoren, who had the support of several of the leading attorneys of the city; William H. Collins, assistant District attorney; Levi David, David Pine, H. Mason Welch, John E. Laskey, former District attorney, and others were among those whose names were advanced for consideration by the President.

Crash Death Charge Faced By Youth, 19

Coroner's Jury Orders Grand Jury Probe of Cavanagh Mishap.

A coroner's jury yesterday held George R. Ellison, 19, colored, of 334 I street southeast, for action of the grand jury in the death of Father Francis X. Cavanagh, pastor of the Church of the Assumption, injured fatally the night of December 17, when an automobile driven by Ellison speeded into Father Cavanagh's car at Eleventh and I streets southeast.

Father Cavanagh, whose skull was fractured, died the following morning in Casualty Hospital. His assistant, the Rev. George T. Bolling, a passenger in the automobile, is still in Casualty recovering from injuries.

Ellison was arrested immediately after the crash and placed under a police guard in Gallinger Hospital.

The automobile he drove was stolen, police learned. Its owner, William F. Loughrey, of 1334 T street southeast, reported it missing about the time of the fatal accident.

Home Builders Protest Construction Code Rule

The Home and Community Builders National Association yesterday filed a protest with the NRA against the proposed construction code, and asked permission to file a separate code. The association contended the proposed code does not meet the problems of home builders.

Arlington Wins In $39,000 Suit

Court Sustains Demurrer on Old Debt.

Judge Walter T. McCarthy, in the Circuit Court of Arlington County, yesterday sustained the demurrer in the case of the American La France & Foamite Industries, Inc., against Arlington County, for $39,591.49.

Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas, arguing in behalf of the demurrer, claimed the notes totaling the amount sought had been made in violation of the State constitution, which provides that all debts made by a county shall be payable in same year out of current taxes. He also pointed out that the object of the constitutional provision was to compel counties to live within their means.

Attorneys C. C. Carlin and Leslie C. Garnett announced that they will note an appeal.

Session Swells Staff at G.P.O.

Carter to Add 400, Mute on Rumors He Will Lose Job Soon.

Heedless of speculation on the name of his successor, Public Printer George H. Carter yesterday announced plans to expand activities at the Government Printing Office.

Patronage rumors are to the effect a new chief of the huge plant will be named any day, but Carter is going ahead with plans to double the night force starting next Tuesday. At present the night force numbers about 400 men.

The enlargement is made necessary by the sharp rise in "business" which the convening of Congress will bring about, Carter said. For weeks the printing plant has been working 24 hours a day on job orders from emergency agencies and resumption of activities on the Hill will add much more work.

The important G. P. O. post of "superintendent of printing" is vacant, Carter said, because of the resignation of Hermann B. Barnhart. He was compelled by ill health to relinquish the strenuous position to become copy editor.

A Bolshevik Aesthete.

Although a disciple and co-worker of Lenin from 1904 on, and a participant in the "Bloody Sunday" revolution of 1905, Anatoli Lunacharsky, who died Wednesday in Mentone, was regarded by the orthodox Bolsheviks as rather too pallid to be deemed a good Communist. That was undoubtedly because Mr. Lunacharsky was an aesthete rather than a rough-and-tumble revolutionary. As commissar of education and art, he dared to believe that human beings might be interested in drama and painting on themes other than the class struggle.

Walter Duranty, of the New York Times, characterized Mr. Lunarcharsky's own plays as "more verbose than successful," which, others said, was tactful comment. But the commissar was undeniably a man of culture and strove desperately at a time when the emphasis was almost wholly upon military and economic progress to preserve artistic taste in Russia, and he was largely responsible for the intensive effort to educate a people whose illiteracy was proverbial.

Mr. Lunarcharsky's downfall as a commissar is said to have come partly because he was much too frank in exposing the scandalous condition of Russian schools from the physical standpoint. But there were others who whispered that disfavor was facilitated by his bourgeois conduct in holding a Leningrad-Moscow express a few minutes for his wife, a beautiful actress. That was more than the comrades could tolerate; Mr. Lunarcharsky bowed to the storm and resigned.

Processing Tax Revenues.

When the Agricultural Adjustment Act was passed, great emphasis was placed upon the provisions for levying processing taxes to cover the cost of payments made to producers of basic agricultural commodities. Although the records of the first few months obviously do not provide a test of the self-financing character of the farm relief program, it is interesting to compare the revenue receipts from processing taxes with the amounts paid as benefits to farmers.

Considering the length of the period covered, the revenue returns have been quite satisfactory as compared with the amounts actually disbursed or in process of being distributed in the form of benefits. They seem small, however, when contrasted with the amounts which the Government already is committed to pay to farmers who agree to reduce their output.

Wheat processing taxes which were collected during the period from July 9 to December 1 totaled $38,900,000. The tax on cotton processors, effective August 1 has yielded $49,800,000 and very small sums have been received from the recently imposed levies on tobacco, corn and hogs. Total returns to December 1 for all classes of processing taxes approximated $90,000,000. Meantime the Government either has paid out or is engaged in distributing over $200,000,000 to wheat and cotton farmers alone and has contracted total obligations on crop control account amounting to about $800,000,000.

If the processing taxes prove sufficient to cover even a substantial proportion of the costs of the restriction program they will be a heavy burden, resting in the first instance upon limited groups of processors. In theory these taxes are supposed to be shifted to consumers or possibly defrayed out of profits. In practice their incidence is impossible of determination, but part at least of the tax burden doubtless will be moved back to the farmers.

If the processing taxes fail to meet expectations, the burden of the AAA costs will be spread over a larger group of taxpayers, becoming more obviously a sales tax on food products. Certainly the attempt to collect the necessary covering taxes from processors alone is a doubtful expedient in view of the high and mounting costs of benefits and rentals under the control plan.

When Professors Meet.

Until recent years few people outside academic circles were interested in the annual conferences of the learned societies, the members of which were recruited almost exclusively from the teaching ranks of the colleges and universities. Today, however, the economists, statisticians, sociologists and political scientists are no longer left to confer in seclusion about problems that intimately concern every member of an organized community. Their deliberations are followed with interest by a wide reading public and there is increasing participation in the discussions on the part of business men and by public officials.

A survey of the topics listed for current discussion by the American Economic Association and the American Statistical Association, for example, affords striking proof of the extent to which the social sciences are becoming practical instrumentalities employed in the service of the state. The problems of the depression and the recovery which are being discussed at Philadelphia seem especially significant to the general public. Doubtless this is partly because so much has been said about the outlook for a new kind of economic planning under the direction of experts. The fact of major importance, however, is the growing realization that the work of the scientist as well as that of the practical man is assisted by trying to effect a union between theory and practice, between academic learning and the daily task of government.

The Filipinos' Dilemma.

The Philippine independence issue has once more been laid on the White House doorstep. When Congress passed the Hawes-Cutting act over President Hoover's veto hope that the future status of the islands had been settled was kindled on both sides of the Pacific. But the Filipinos have rejected this offer of independence within ten years, under certain economic and military restrictions, and powerful insular leaders of the islands are back in Washington pleading for a new arrangement.

If President Roosevelt should decide to lay before Congress the case presented by the Filipino mission, and recommend modification of the Hawes-Cutting act, it might be possible for the legislature at Manila to reverse its rejection of that law before January 17, when it will expire unless accepted. But the counsel of the Filipinos themselves is divided. The attitude of Manuel Quezon, head of the delegation in Washington, is expressed in the following question addressed to the United States from the floor of the Philippine Senate: "Why offer us independence under terms so onerous that it can not possibly be sustained, even if we are able, by some means, to survive until its entirely problematic consummation?"

On the other hand, Camilo Osias, resident Philippine commissioner here, regards the legislature's rejection of the independence measure as "a colossal blunder." Still another viewpoint is presented by Rafael Alunan, former secretary of agriculture and of finance. Acceptance of the Hawes-Cutting act, he says, would mean the entire liquidation of the Philippine sugar industry. Since 65 per cent of the insular revenue is derived from trade with the United States in sugar, coconuts, hemp and tobacco, he fears that financial collapse would follow independence.

Fundamental problems inherent in the independence movement have been grossly neglected in the islands as well as in the United States. Farmers who fear competition from insular plantations have led the fight in this country to cut the Philippines adrift. In recent months they have been joined by a group which believes that the United States ought to withdraw its sovereignty over the islands immediately because of the difficulty of protecting them in the event of war in the Far East. At Manila the fight for independence has been carried on by idealistic leaders who are inclined to flights of fancy having no relation to economic realities.

Under the stimulus of easy access to the American market the Philippines have attained notable economic development in recent years. At best, adjustment of the islands' economy to a nationalistic basis would entail painful mutations. Congress attempted to provide a means whereby the transition from a colonial status to full nationhood could be brought about gradually. Having rejected that plan, the Filipino leaders who still retain their ardor for separation from the United States are under obligation to bring forth a practical measure of their own. It is well that their differences of opinion should be aired before rather than after separation.

Foreign Trade in 1933.

During the first five months of the present year, both exports and imports were below the low levels of the corresponding months of 1932. In June a reversal of this downward trend appeared and by the end of November the export losses of the early months had been converted into an increase of $3,362,000 for the current year. In the case of imports, a rise of $89,810,000 for the eleven months' period was recorded. These figures, of course, take no account of dollar depreciation.

In November a more than seasonal decline in imports occurred, accompanied by a less than seasonal drop in exports, with the result that the net merchandise balance rose to the highest total since January, 1931. This record may indicate that the depreciation of the dollar is beginning to have the expected effect of curbing import buying and stimulating exports. However, various non-monetary factors unquestionably help to account for the unusual midsummer import buying, which has been followed by a reaction. That buying was due partly to fear of later inflationary price advances, and partly to the current improvement in domestic business, which emphasized the need of replenishing depleted inventories.

In view of the general rise in prices it is impossible to determine to what extent the increases in import values indicate an expansion of the total physical volume of trade. But in a large number of cases, there undoubtedly has been an increase in the quantity of imported crude materials and semi-manufactured goods. There have been increases also in the quantities as well as the values of exports of certain important commodities such as crude petroleum, meat, lard and iron and steel products. Although the quantity of raw cotton exported has been somewhat below the totals of 1932, it is well above the average of recent years.

Much of the gain in our export trade is due to the expansion in buying demand of importing countries which are beginning to feel the effects of a world-wide trade revival. The League of Nations estimates that October world trade was 12 per cent above the level of last April. Reports from Great Britain state that November exports were the best during the last 18 months, barring a slight decline from October. Similar encouraging messages come from other countries. Under such conditions, there is no way to determine how far monetary depreciation has stimulated our export trade and how far it has been due to the seemingly decisive upward turn which became manifest some time ago.

Driving the Wrong Way.

That curious coincidence which directs such matters brought to the news pages of the country in a single day four items which form a significant commentary upon our civilization.

A story from London said that, "aroused by reports its naval strength had been outstripped by the United States and Japan, Great Britain is preparing to launch a large naval building program in 1934." Six new cruisers are contemplated for immediate construction and several new destroyers are in prospect. In juxtaposition to that item was another from Tokyo, which said that the cabinet, "dominated by Gen. Araki and Admiral Osumi, ministers of war and navy, respectively," had completed a legislative program calling for military appropriations of $281,400,000, the largest peace time appropriations ever asked for military purposes in Japan. The figure is 44 per cent of the entire budget.

The high command of the United States Navy, another story tells us, is to ask Congress to pass two resolutions which, in effect, would give blanket authority for a five-year building program that would cost $516,000,000 and add 102 ships to the Navy. That is said to be additional to the 32 ships under construction which are being paid for by the allotment of $238,000,000 from the P. W. A.

Into this clouded atmosphere, the French, with a shrewd sense of psychological effect, have dropped an offer to scrap half of their bombing planes, if other nations do likewise, "as a sign of good will for international peace." Thus the only gesture of recent months toward breasting the tide of bigger armaments comes from the one country of the four which has some reason to consider itself insecure.

After due allowance has been made for the fact that a great deal of the Big Navy talk just now is bluff, in anticipation of the expiration of the London naval agreement, the situation is still serious. The virtual breakdown of the Geneva arms conference exemplified an attitude of intransigience which makes it difficult to translate into action the professed desires of nations for reduction of armaments, and it is already foreshadowed that the expiration of the London Naval Treaty is likely to bring demands for bigger, rather than smaller navies.

The only encouraging sign is the French gesture in the opposite direction. It is a far better way to celebrate the world-wide hopes of a turn toward economic recovery than are the signs of renewed competition in armaments from the three leading naval powers.

The Government Sues.

The United States Government has brought suit against the clearing house banks to compel them to pay the depositors of the Harriman Bank in full, in accordance with written guarantees given by the clearing house committee. There is no dispute as to the facts, but the banks maintain that the committee had no legal power to bind them to fulfill the terms of the agreement. The suit, which is the first of its kind ever brought by the Government, should lead to a decision defining the status of clearing houses and determining the relation of the clearing house banks to the central organization.

Clearing houses have performed invaluable services in the past as coordinating and cooperating agencies. They have been able to allay panic by pooling their resources at critical times, and they have extended opportune aid to weak banks and banks threatened by runs. In normal periods, they have done much to maintain high standards of banking conduct.

However, if clearing house banks feel free to repudiate the commitments made for them by an accredited clearing house committee and if the courts hold that the committee had no legal power to bind them, their future usefulness will be seriously impaired. Certainly it is desirable to have the question of responsibility settled definitely.

The Manassas Industrial School.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your issue of December 24, I notice that the Federation of Civic Associations at its meeting last Friday night directed that a "letter be addressed to Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, of Howard University, urging him to advance the idea of the acquisition of the Manassas Industrial School plant as an adjunct of Howard University, for purposes of a sociological laboratory and experiment station."

The Manassas Industrial School was established in 1892 by Jennie Dean, who created it "out of the washtub" as has very correctly been said. It was dedicated on September 3 of that year by the greatest of all colored Americans—Frederick Douglass, who was intensely interested in the development of his race along the established lines of education and character building.

This great educational plant consists of 241 acres of land upon which ten buildings stand, including a modern dairy.

It is the only accredited high school for colored youth in eight counties of northern Virginia, in addition to which it teaches farming, dairying and trades. It has educated thousands of colored youths in past years, who have taken their places in professional and industrial life.

The board of trustees of that institution intend to preserve it against political manipulation by "sociological" experimenters, as a perpetual monument to the great black woman who founded it on sheer faith.

It has been hard hit by the depression, but its total outstanding obligations are less than $13,000—its real estate and personal property worth considerably beyond $140,000 and it is running within its budget.

The colored people of northern Virginia are fighting to preserve the integrity of this great institution, and to extend its usefulness in reducing adult illiteracy among the colored, population of the State which totals 19.5 per cent.

THOMAS H. R. CLARKE.

"Conflicts of Policies."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In criticizing the confusion in our National Government in your editorial on "Conflicts of Policies" you have certainly hit the nail on the head.

I say "Government" rather than "Administration," because Republican criticism of the Administration seems too much like a case of the pot calling the kettle black when it comes to confusion of policies. As pointed out not long ago by Mr. William Hard, the Democrats have not changed the Republican policies in any fundamental way, but have only gone further (with Republican support) into what the Republicans started.

This confusion is the result of the bipartisan system of competition in adopting enough policies to please the larger number of voters and meet Secretary Swanson's definition of a political party in America as "united for plunder and patronage, divided on platform and policy." It's an odd citizen, indeed, that can not develop a complex of partisan enthusiasm over some phase of our bureaucracy; but to call this policy of political opportunism a truth-seeking experimentation is a travesty upon research, for no conclusions save as a matter of political expediency can be drawn from such a divergency of simultaneous trials. It is rather an attempt to excel in fooling all the people all the time.

Without prophesying the millennium as a result, still, I wonder if the Irish system of proportional representation wouldn't yield a better measure of definition in partisan policy? At present, except possibly for the nebulous notions of the extreme left in "taking profits out of industry," not even minor partisan movements seem able to shake themselves free from a measure of demagoguery or incongruity in ideas. Even the Socialists depend very largely for political support upon the peculiarly capitalistic institution of the labor union—for there is surely no place in the Socialistic idealism for unionism and the class war upon which it thrives and fattens.

In the "Tale of Two Cities" it is worthy of note that the success of Cincinnati has been an outstanding result of proportional representation—and that Cleveland not long ago repealed a similar charter!

ALDEN A. POTTER.

He Discusses Tennessee Debt Settlement.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your issue of December 19 an anonymous writer, discussing the indebtedness of European nations to this country, charges that Florida, Mississippi, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina Louisiana and Tennessee repudiated their just obligations and "sold their honor for money." I am a citizen and native of Tennessee and at the time of the debt settlement was thoroughly familiar with the terms of the settlement. Tennessee did not repudiate her just debts. The settlement made had the approval of such men as Senators Harris and Bate. His attack upon the honor of Tennessee makes me think that he was equally unjust as to the other States he mentioned. There were some bonds of Tennessee prior to the Civil War that were obtained by the original holders in an improper way. The law creating these bonds had clearly stated that they should not be sold below par, but this provision was evaded by a trick. Material was bought at three or four times the market price. Even these bonds were not repudiated, but a fair settlement was made. When the State was prostrate after the Civil War and a majority of its white citizens disfranchised, the holders of bonds issued to build the State capitol and State asylums would gladly have accepted payment at greatly reduced rates. However, the citizens soon regained their voting privilege and provided payment for the last cent of these bonds.

W. W. BLAKE.

Faith in the Republican Party.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: During the presidential campaign of 1932 vehement attacks were made upon the Hoover administration: first for causing the depression and then for doing nothing to relieve us of it. In a letter recently published in The Post, Mr. Magruder stated that the Republican party had done nothing during the past 12 years. If Mr. Magruder is a man of mature age and is familiar with the history of the United States, he would have known that the country has made more strides in the past 70 years than any other nation in the world—almost entirely under the Republican regime—and that the last 12 years were the most prosperous of all. Unprecedented prosperity, overindulgence, violation of the laws of nature and disregard of the power of God, were the cause of our downfall.

The policy of the Republican party is a "conservative, middle-of-the-road, watchful-waiting, nature-curing" policy. That of the Democratic party is a zigzag, cross-puzzle policy, hoping for the return of prosperity by some circuitous route other than that traversed by the Republican party and for which they would be given credit and remain in power. If the Democrats had given President Hoover the support which they are now asking the Republicans to give to President Roosevelt I believe we would have been out of the depression long before now.

Reaction is setting in and the policies of the Republican party, which have been in vogue for the past 70 years, will be vindicated for another 20-year period, when the younger generation, who will know nothing of our present state of affairs, will come into being and will probably want a change. Time will tell.

Immediately upon the announcement of the election of Mr. Roosevelt, business faltered, because those who had prospered during the regime of the Republican party (and they are from the lowliest of the lowly) had no confidence—from past experiences—in the Democratic party. Factories reduced their forces and curtailed their output; banks ceased to function and commercial enterprise lagged.

The world has its ills, as do human beings, and the cause (imprudence) as well as the cure (nature) are always the same. Narcotics are only a temporary relief.

The Big League Always Makes Room for a .400 Hitter

By Robert Quillen.

You are told that millions are unable to find work, and the charge is sadly true, but there is one line of endeavor in which the demand far exceeds the number of those available to satisfy it.

Some time ago a friend of mine advertised for a combined stenographer and secretary and requested applicants to reply by typewritten letter.

Letters descended upon him like a snowstorm, but only two of them revealed the degree of skill and understanding he required. And the two applicants who qualified, being well employed, demanded a higher wage than he could afford to pay.

Apparently there were no first-class stenographers at liberty—and this in a State where the colleges turn out feminine A. B.'s like a corn sheller, and girls qualified and eager to teach school outnumber the jobs 4 to 1.

Critics intimated that Gen. Johnson's feminine assistant received too much pay and he answered that she knew more about the job than anybody else.

That is usually true of a good office woman. She begins by typing letters and ends by running the works while the boss plays golf or becomes a stuffed shirt.

But her kind is not legion and the executive in search of one must obtain her over the dead body of the lucky man who saw her first.

What does the employer hope for? He hopes for a girl who knows her job—a girl who can spell and type perfectly, who is sensible and smart and quick to learn, who is clean and tidy, who is at least as friendly, as decorative and as pleasant to have around as a young mate would be, and, above all, one who thinks more of her job than of "dates" and will not quit and marry the moment she becomes invaluable.

The cynic will say in his heart there are no such paragons, but there are thousands—if you omit the last specification.

Even so, there aren't enough—and it is no answer to say there aren't enough topnotch employers, either.

The difficulty is not want of demand, but in getting the best goods to the best market.

BARGERON.

THE Republicans are laboring under many handicaps as they try to get together on a program for the coming session of Congress. But none is greater than that phase of the Administration's press-agenting which has rather successfully got out the impression that the Administration is moved by patriotism and the Republicans by politics. So good has this press-agenting been, indeed, that there is a rather widespread assumption that the Republicans' thoughts, their efforts to get together, any formulation of plans on their part, is prompted solely by the desire to wreck the Administration and get back in power.

The assumption is true only if it is also accepted that the Administration in its program is motivated solely by the desire to stay in.

• • • •

Read the news reports concerning the Republicans plans, whether they will assume an aggressive role or continue docile—all of them are predicated upon the assumption that the Republicans are a bunch of ousted politicians wondering whether they can profit politically now by attacking the Administration's program. One reads an account that they are not to interpose any "obstructionist tactics" to the recovery program, that they realize the country is still with the President and therefore will not play partisan politics.

This treatment of them by the press and in radio discussions puts them in a hole before they do anything, if they do. They become in the public mind the politicians, the Administration the patriots. It isn't a fair picture if we want the truth.

• • •

The plain truth is that if the Republicans do continue to keep quiet, if they continue to sit idly by and twiddle their thumbs, they are playing politics—and the rawest sort. It would be the most popular political course to pursue with Mr. Roosevelt's present hold on the country. Nothing would be safer for the individual senator or member of the House with elections coming on next fall, than to jump up and give a eulogy of the Administration every day. It would be safe, but it wouldn't be statesmanship. It would, in fact, be playing very good partisan politics.

Certain Republican senators are advocating this safe course, though; so many, in fact, that so far the efforts to rally the boys, to put some fight into them, has scarcely accomplished anything. The indications at present are that they will come to the approaching Congress with their hands folded and their heads bowed as at a funeral.

The contention in some quarters that they can't find any issues even if they had the desire is just too absurd. There are issues, plenty of them, and issues as important as any we have ever had in our history.

Here is just one that comes to mind: The conviction hereabouts is that the Administration is moving now to take over the country's credit system, that henceforth the Government will control it instead of the banks. The bankers, in fact, say they can't carry the long-time financing with the Administration's monetary policy uncertain. In turn the Administration gives the impression that this situation suits it just fine, that the Government will do the financing, that it wants to take control of the credit system away from the bankers anyway.

It would seem to be a right important matter. Why the Republicans can't take it up aggressively so that it will at least sink in the country's mind, is difficult to understand. For the Republicans to do this would not be popular with those to whom the Administration has given money or whom Father Coughlan has stirred up, of course. But it would be a service, nevertheless—and in the end it might be good politics.

James Fenimore Cooper.

As Longfellow is undoubtedly the most popular of all American poets, so James Fenimore Cooper is the most popular of our writers of prose. It is difficult to exaggerate the width of Cooper's fame. Morse, the inventor of the electric telegraph, wrote: "In every city of Europe that I visited the works of Cooper were conspicuously placed in the windows of every bookshop. They are published as soon as he produces them, in 34 different places in Europe. They have been seen . . . in the languages of Turkey and Persia, in Constantinople, in Egypt, at Jerusalem, at Isphahan."

When we remember that the Leatherstocking novels are so well connected that they seem to be one drama in five acts, it is interesting to remember the order in which they were written and published. The "Pioneers," which comes fourth, appeared first, then "Mohicans," then "Prairie," which comes last, then "Pathfinder," and finally "Deerslayer," which opens the series, was published last in 1841, nearly 20 years after "The Pioneers."

I suggest that men who have only a remembrance of these tales visit Cooperstown, N. Y., to behold the scenes of "Deerslayer" around the beautiful lake; that they travel around Lake George; and especially that they go to Glens Falls, N. Y., and they will be thrilled by the places of the best story Cooper ever wrote, "The Last of the Mohicans."

Capper Plans For Support Of Roosevelt

Kansas Senator Urges Relief Program Not Be Hindered.

Contending "there can be no question President Roosevelt still has the people with him," Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, yesterday announced he proposed in the forthcoming session of Congress to support in general the Administration on fundamental policies of relief, recovery and reconstruction.

Returning to the Capital fresh from Kansas, Senator Capper reported that although the farmers there are "quite disappointed in results up to this time," they are "going along with the President" and want him supported in speeding up the recovery program.

Stand Is of Interest.

This viewpoint on the part of Senator Capper was regarded as significant, not only because it comes from a Republican, who, during 15 years in the Senate has stood with his party on most issues, but because the Kansan is known to keep an ear close to the political ground of the Middle West, and what he says usually reflects widespread sentiment.

For that reason Senator Capper's view of the Roosevelt Administration and what Congress will do might be taken as a barometer. He belives the President will have "smooth sailing in the coming session" which, while "likely to be noisy will not be unruly."

"For my own part I want to see the President have every opportunity to go through with his recovery program," Senator Capper asserted. "So far as I know now he will have my support on fundamental policies of relief, recovery and reconstruction. I may differ with him on some things. If so, I shall frankly say so, and act according to my best judgment, but in any event I shall try to help rather than obstruct. It is no time for petty partisanship."

Opposed to Hindering.

Senator Capper said he had been informed that it is proposed when Congress meets to curb some of the extraordinary powers given Mr. Roosevelt in the NRA act. He would oppose this move, he asserted, adding "I am opposed to hindering the President as long as he is doing his best to go through with his emergency programs."

He expressed sympathy with the essential features and general purpose of the NRA, pointing out it has helped abolish child labor and "in a large measure has done away with sweatshop conditions." He held the CWA the "most successful" of the recovery measures.

The Kansan thought "there will not be so much rubber stamp legislation as in the last session." He predicted the minority members would want to know fully about proposals sent to them and would "criticize, inquire into, and discuss the Administration record freely, but in the end the President will have his way."

"Silver Problem Exaggerated."

Turning to the Roosevelt monetary policy, Senator Capper said the importance of the silver program has been "exaggerated," adding that while it will be of "some help" to the seven silver States, it will have little effect so far as inflation is concerned.

"The money question will have a big place in the program of this Congress," he explained. "The Administration is likely to hold to a middle course. Congress will be controlled neither by the ultra conservative Wall street crowd nor the wild inflationists of the West. A printing press currency program stands little chance."

Senator Capper contended the country had been impressed by the revelations about the "Wall street stock jobbing racketeers and international bankers" and demand that Congress "take control of the country's money supply out of the hands of this crowd of about a dozen financial bandits who have been running things with a high hand in New York."

Favors Banking Changes.

"Congress should see," he continued, "that we have as thoroughgoing a reorganization of the whole American banking and financial system as agriculture and industry is now going through. A restriction on branch banking would be approved by the country."

Although some of the things done by the Administration for agriculture are "open to legitimate criticism," the situation looks brighter, the Kansan said. He praised Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace for his "remarkable understanding of the fundamental conditions of the farm problem."

Explaining Kansas farmers were feeling better since receiving $20,000,000 in benefits under the wheat acreage control program, Senator Capper said he would support the proposal to appropriate $200,000,000 for financing adjustment programs for the dairy and beef cattle industries.

He said he would press for legislation reducing interest rates on Federal farm loans to 3 per cent and improving marketing opportunities. He also applauded the Administration's move to stimulate foreign buying of farm products and the selection of George N. Peek as foreign trade promoter.

Senator Capper held that the Federal budget should be balanced, stating that on all sides he heard it asked, "where the billions are coming from that the Government is spending so freely."

The Once-Over

By H. I. Phillips.

SUCCESS STORY.

"Would you mind revealing the secret of your success in business, Mr. Jettyconk?"

"Not at all. All that I am today I owe to Government regulation of profit and control of industry," replied Mr. James G. Jettyconk, outstanding industrialist of his time. "I got my big chance when the Brain Trust theory was accepted back in 1936 or 1935, I forget which."

"How so?"

"Well, as soon as it became known that the Government would regulate and restrict profits in business the corporation with which I have spent my life began to look around for the right man to put at the wheel. All the officials who had piloted the company up to that time were, of course, fired. All they knew was how to make money, get new business, expand and prosper. They were useless under the new theory."

* * * *

"But just how did this present you with the great opportunity, Mr. Jettyconk?"

"My record for not making money was almost perfect," explained Mr. Jettyconk proudly. "In fact, the departments over which I presided had made a splendid record for losing money. I do not recall that I was ever out of the red."

"So what?"

"So when the corporation began searching for a man best fitted to run it under Government regulation it was attracted by my achievements. The directors went over my long record with the company, but could not find a single instance in which I had made any real money for it in any department. They discovered in a number of departments I had showed exceptional losses."

* * * *

"The directors figured that with a man like you cooperating with the Government in the direction of its activities it would have a perfect set-up?"

"Exactly. They picked me in jig time. At no time in my career had I shown any special zeal, any great imagination or any marked ability," continued Mr. Jettyconk. "I remember several directors sort of cross-examined me on my views regarding expansion. I told them I was opposed to expansion and always had been. It's such a bother, you know."

"This delighted them, of course."

"Yes, indeed. They realized at once that with me at the head of the corporation there would never be profit enough for either the corporation or the Government. I was chosen by unanimous vote."

"And now look at you, Mr. Jettyconk."

"Look at me indeed! I have had offers from more than 80 other American corporations, and can leave my present job any time for double what I am getting. Why, for the next quarter I expect to set a new low for return on investment and win a citation from a professor!"

Just Folks.

By Edgar A. Guest.

This Man Culbertson.

For eight and twenty years we've shared
The summers fair and winter blizzards,
The ins and outs, the hopes and doubts,
The chicken livers, wings and gizzards.
We've kept serenely on our ways,
Despite the care which came to fret us,
And so to her I smile and say:
"Why now let Culbertson upset us?"

I've done full many a foolish thing,
But far apart we've never wandered.
No angry word from her I've heard
About the money I have squandered.
Adown the years until today
We've shared whate'er the Lord would let us,
And so to her I smiling say:
"Why now let Culbertson upset us?"

What if my two-bid now and then
Is made without sufficient holding?
I could rehearse faults so much worse
She's borne and never thought of scolding.
We've lived through many a troubled day
And never let grim hatred get us,
And so to her I smiling say:
"Why now let Culbertson upset us?"

We've never met this teacher chap.
I'm sure that he has never seen us.
'Tis not his looks. It's just his books

Virginia Completes Road Bridge Plans

Richmond, Dec. 28 (AP).—State Highway Commissioner Henry G. Shirley today was informed that plans for a $2,000,000 bridge-building program for 60 spans by the highway department are complete.

The spans will cross small streams and will replace old county structures which are not in accord with modern traffic conditions. The longest of the bridges, 900 feet, will span the James River at Bremo.

gency funds allotted to your department."

McCarl quoted a letter from the director of the Office of Personnel and Business Administration, Department of Agriculture, opposing proposals that vouchers be accompanied by statements of facts and contending "the emergency conservation fund seems to offer no special temptation to misuse, no special susceptibility to error in administration or expenditure."

In further explanation of his position, the departmental official wrote to McCarl:

"Heavy allotments of other emergency funds, notably those for general and road construction, have been made to the department from the NRA appropriation. These are handled by the regular bureau organizations and certified by permanent administrative officers and are thus in every respect analogous to the emergency conservation fund. There has, however, been no suggestion of special certificates in these cases.

Higher Hotel Rate Asked Under Code

Managers Meet Saturday at Roanoke.

Roanoke, Va., Dec. 28 (Spl.). Minimum hotel rates will be considered by group 1 of the Southern Hotel Association in a meeting here Saturday.

A. F. Young, Lynchburg, code chairman of Virginia, called the meeting. Hotel managers from points in western Virginia are expected to attend.

The permanent hotel code goes into effect January 1. Uniform minimum rates are proposed which would vary according to the size of the town in which the hotel is located. A minimum price of $2.50 as compared to the prevailing rate of $2 will be proposed for cities the size of Roanoke, it was said.

Unemployment Growing Fast, Reports Green

Blame for Lay-Offs Fixed on Industry by A. F. of L. Chief.

Unemployment in the United States increased in November and December at a greater rate than in the same months of the preceding year, giving the impression that industry is slackening in its efforts to create jobs and put men back to work, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, announced last night.

Factory lay-offs in November, in which 330,000 workers lost their jobs, were more numerous than in any other normal year or in any year during the depression.

Admitting it is quite normal for workers to be laid off from farms and industries at this time of year, Green said "labor had hoped that this year, with all the emphasis placed by the Administration on creating jobs, lay-offs at the year-end would be much less severe than usual."

Jobless Increase Shown.

Instead, he pointed out, more were laid off from mid-October to mid-December this year than last year, and unemployment is increasing faster now than at any time since January.

Green's statement was based upon what are known as "trade union weighted figures," which represent, however, a practical cross-section of American industry.

"Developments in November and December are in striking contrast to the steady employment gains from April to September, when men went back to work by the million, even though business was declining from July forward," he said.

"Business observers are continually telling us the recent gain in workers' buying power has been a chief cause of business improvement at the year-end, and the growing confidence in some lines. To cut this foundation from under business at such a crucial time threatens downfall to the whole structure we have built with so much effort.

Blames Employers of Labor.

"Apparently some employers feel less responsibility for their men, now that civil works are providing jobs for several millions. If they deliberately drop their men from pay rolls now to let the Government care for them, will they ever again have the right to protest against so-called Government interference in business? No one should forget that even with 4,000,000 on civil works at the year-end, more than 6,000,000 still are unemployed, without normal income and buying power. Civil works can not increase buying power if industry lays off men while the Government employs them.

"The worst lay-offs in November were in manufacturing. It would be a serious matter indeed if the manufacturers of this country fail now to do their part."

Cumberland Mail Gains.

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 28 (Spl.). Holiday business at the Cumberland postoffice was in excess of that of 1932. During the five-day period previous to Christmas 255,200 pieces of mail were canceled, as against 252,042 in 1932. The money order business also was greater.

week in connection with the French case.

Paris Suspects Traced.

Riekki said Jacobson and Marie Martin, who also was arrested here, and Mme. Lidia Tchekaloff Stahl, one of the ten held in Paris, often visited the United States.

Miss Martin was said by Finnish police to be of British origin although she carried a Canadian passport. The arrests followed a raid on her apartment when she was giving a dinner for a party that included several prominent Finnish society persons.

Suspects Not Linked.

Paris, Dec. 28 (AP).—Investigators' efforts to connect the mysterious Mme. Lidia Tchekaloff Stahl, whom they described as the master mind of an international spy ring, with Louis Martin, a translator in the marine ministry, failed to establish a link, police said, between them and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon Switz, of New Jersey, also held on espionage charges, at a hearing before Magistrate Benon today.

Martin's bank strong box was opened in his presence. It was said by police to have been rented for him by Ingrid Bostrom, Mme. Stahl's friend, before she left Paris in 1927 with police trailing her.

Martin's bank box contained 90,000 francs (currently about $5,400), $100 in American currency, and some silver and women's jewels.

He said the money was saved from his annual salary of 50,000 francs ($3,000) and a recent bonus of 25,000 francs, and that his chief expenses were books.

Woman Near Death From Knife Injury

Adrian, W. Va., Dec. 28 (Spl.).—Mrs. N. J. S. Reed, 25, of Adrian, was reported near death late today in a Buckhannon hospital, from stab wounds said to have been inflicted by a neighbor in a quarrel last night over a children's sledding party.

A warrant was issued today by Magistrate R. T. Evans, charging Mrs. Coleman Ware, 20, with attempted murder. She was not immediately taken into custody.

Mrs. Reed was stabbed in the abdomen with a penknife. The quarrel is said to have started over alleged damage by the children's sleds.

Brief Message To Inaugurate 73d Congress

First of Administration's Legislative Program Takes Shape.

By Robert C. Albright.

With the first session of the Seventy-third Congress five days away, the Administration's legislative program yesterday began to take definite form at White House conferences, as lines were drawn on a score of issues ranging from Federal taxation to monetary reform.

Following a chat with the President, Speaker Rainey announced Mr. Roosevelt's message will be brief and to the point, probably requiring only half an hour in delivery. He reiterated forecasts of a harmonious session, with an early adjournment in prospect.

Way was paved for a vote next week on the House Ways and Means Committee's liquor tax bill, which members plan to report to the House on the opening day of the new session. Possibility arose that the liquor tax bill may even displace the District's liquor control bill, now scheduled for second-day consideration, if the local measure encounters parliamentary snarls.

Freer Reign Indicated.

It became apparent President Roosevelt will give both Houses a freer rein to legislate for themselves without ironclad White House dictation, although measures specifically sponsored by the President are expected to roll smoothly to enactment.

In at least one instance, however, a House committee may buck Administration policies as voiced by Acting Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Assistant Secretary of Commerce Dickinson.

Representative Samuel B. Hill (Democrat), Washington, chairman of a special House Ways and Means subcommittee, predicted the group will choose his subcommittee plan for netting $270,000,000 by plugging income tax loopholes rather than the Treasury's recommendations which would save only $100,000,000.

"Any such modification as the Treasury proposes, would reduce our program to little short of a farce," he said. "It would mean we couldn't plug any loopholes, and revenues would be insignificant."

Money Trend Undecided.

Monetary trends in the new Congress hung in the balance yesterday, as both Speaker Rainey and Senator Elmer Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, predicted legislation further strengthening the position of silver, and senators interested in remonetization of the white metal called a conference for 11 a. m. today.

Seventeen Senators, with widely diverse plans for dealing with the money situation, but with a common interest in silver, will meet at this morning's confab in the Senate Indian Affairs committee room. Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, took the leadership in arranging the conference.

Following a White House visit, Senator Tom Connally (Democrat), Texas, said he was "strong" for the President's money program, and believed it is already reacting favorably on foreign trade.

Speculation was rife yesterday on probable recommendations in the President's message on the state of the Union, which probably will be completed this week and submitted to Congress on the opening day. It was thought improbable it will contain a comprehensive program, the President preferring to deal with situations as they arise in short and specific messages.

Early Relief Action.

Additional appropriations to finance the Civil Works program, the Civilian Conservation Corps and similar projects.

Minor amendments to the National recovery act, the agricultural adjustment act and deposit insurance features of the banking act.

Whatever additional funds are needed to continue the recovery drive.

There was only remote possibility the President might take a position on railway consolidation, the proposed communications merger, the Tugwell food and drug bill, or even unemployment insurance. Leaders were agreed any consideration of these questions might keep Congress far beyond the projected May 1 adjournment.

Speaker Rainey again voiced his conviction that no serious effort will be made to overturn any of the recovery agencies, and reiterated his opinion Congress will "go along with the President."

Senator Thomas, echoing the Speaker's silver views, said he thought some legislation strengthening silver's monetary position "may be necessary pending a return to the gold standard."

Inflation Role Denied.

Denying he ever was "an inflationist leader," the Oklahoma Senator said he certainly does not intend to assume that role at the approaching Congress.

"And I am not going to waste any time this session in idle talk," he said. "The time has come for Congress to act."

Representative Arthur Greenwood, of Indiana, Democratic whip of the House, voiced the views of House leaders in a statement declaring "the crisis has been passed and we are on the way out of the depression."

At the White House, Acting Secretary Morgenthau informed newspapermen "everything is fine" in the Nation's banks. Together with Gov. Black of the Federal Reserve Board he was in conference with the President on the banking situation.

speech, but that he was there to talk of something else.

"Controlled inflation, on any large scale at least, for a long time to come is bound to fail," he said. "Powerful psychological influences cause our efforts at credit expansion to defeat themselves."

He described efforts of the Government in "the greatest attempt ever made to expand credit" and said:

"The net result for a large part of the time has been contraction instead of expansion. These very expansion policies have scared the business man on whom we must depend for credit expansion."

Calling the number of business failures the closest thing to an index of business confidence or distrust, he presented a chart showing the correlation during depressions and recoveries. There were no data for this year.

"The reason is that we are not permitting failures to take place," said Prof. Kemmerer. "The mercury in the thermometer has been plugged. The Government is making it increasingly difficult to become legally bankrupt." He also criticized legislation which makes "the sky the limit" on issuance of currency.

"The Federal Reserve note," he said, "is essentially like the Reichsbank note, which, when it was down to one one-trillionth of its face value, was still fully backed by government debt."

Prof. Warren declared the value of gold will continue to "fluctuate violently" and "the gold standard might be unable to survive another unsuccessful world attempt to revive it. The only possible connections are to reduce the whole price and debt structure or reduce gold content of the gold currencies. Apparently the gold-using countries must follow the latter procedure."

Situation Called Acute.

"The world," Prof. Warren said, "is dealing with an acute situation which must be met in months, not decades. Over a long period of time, production (of gold) is a very important consideration, but probable variations in gold production are of small consequence when considering the next few years."

Pointing out that 34 nations are off the gold standard now—and that the United States was the last to "succumb to this force"—he contended that such a movement must have back of it a "driving force which is beyond the power of any nation to stop."

Warren said that a country which raises the "buying price of gold at about the same rate as the gold value of basic commodities falls," will maintain "approximately stable commodity prices."

Detailing the theory of increasing or decreasing gold buying prices in order to regulate commodity prices, the speaker said:

"If a country raises the buying price of gold at a time when the gold value of basic commodities is rising, the price of commodities will rise more rapidly than gold advances.

"If a country lowers the buying price of gold at a time when the gold value of basic commodities is rising, it will increase the rapidity of decline in commodity prices."

Takes Fling at Theory.

"Some persons have believed," he continued, "that there was or would be a world-wide, increase in efficiency with which gold stocks were used, and that, given a gold supply, we could suddenly support a price level 50 per cent above that which 75 years' experience would indicate.

"The writers have found no indication of a sudden increase in gradual growth of efficiency in the use of gold, and therefore have been stating the conclusion that commodity prices would return to pre-war or lower."

"The conclusion so frequently stated in the past we believe still holds—that, provided the former gold-using world returns to the gold standard, prices expressed in any prewar gold currency will be below prewar for the next decade, or longer, unless unforeseen phenomenal gold discoveries are made.

"A proposal to provide some method for making future changes in the price of gold without necessity of long years of economic distress and political agitation, would seem to be a conservative proposal."

The paper asserted that a "considerable element of risk—both to our prosperity and to the future of the gold standard"—would be involved in setting "any figure that is to hold for a generation."

Experience Is Stressed.

"Some Americans think that being on gold, regardless of the rate, is all that is required. They seem to have forgotten our experience from 1929 to February, 1933."

Of the proposal for discontinuance of gold coinage, the professor said the idea is probably desirable. "But too much should not be expected from this," he warned, adding that provision would have to be made for "preventing a run on the gold supply."

"The world gold situation did not arise from a change in the world gold supply relative to world business, but resulted from a change in the world price level in gold, compared with the world gold supply.

"It might be expressed as 'too much price' rather than 'too little gold'.

"The only possible objections are to reduce the whole price and debt structure, or reduce the gold content of the gold currencies."

The paper also gave a detailed explanation of the theory of regulating the prices of commodities through increasing or decreasing the buying price of gold.

Prices In Agreement.

"Prices in gold in the two countries (England and America) have at all times been in approximate agreement. By having her currency depreciate in gold as the commodity value of gold rose, England maintained a stable price level.

"By depreciation of the gold value of the dollar in 1933, prices in the United States rapidly rose to the English level, although prices in gold were nearly stable or showed a slight tendency to decline."

"There appears to be no escape from the conclusion that prices in pre-war gold currencies can not be expected to be higher than pre-war unless this situation is brought about by some unusual and spectacular decrease in the demand for monetary gold relative to business. This is the real problem on the gold side of the price question.

"It is, of course, possible that some important countries will discontinue use of gold as money and discontinue efforts to maintain gold reserves. This might be done by remonetization of silver or adoption of a paper standard.

"While there is discussion of continuing off gold, there is as yet no indication of any discontinuance of demand for gold by any important country. In fact, gold is the most popular subject of discussion in nearly every country."

E. Gold bullion and foreign gold coin now situated in the Philippine Islands, American Somoa, Guam, Hawaii, Panama Canal Zone, Puerto Rico, or the Virgin Islands of the United States, owned by a person not domiciled or doing business in the continental United States.

Move Follows New York Case.

The Acting Secretary directed that the coin, bullion and "yellowbacks" be surrendered to the Federal Reserve or branch banks of the Reserve System.

"Upon receipt of the gold coin, gold bullion or gold certificates," says the order, "or receipt of the confirmation, payment will be made for the gold and gold certificates in an equivalent amount of any form of coin or currency coined or issued in the United States. Payment for any gold bullion will be made at the rate of $20.67 an ounce.

It was believed the move made by the Treasury yesterday was prompted by the recent dismissal of an indictment against Frederick B. Campbell, a New York lawyer who hoarded gold in defiance of the Presidential order. The only indictment against Campbell which was sustained was that which charged him with failure to report his gold holdings. In his decision, Federal Judge Woolsey held the Secretary of the Treasury, instead of the President, should have issued the order on August 28.

Order Meets Court Rule.

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—The new regulations on gold issued by Acting Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau today were believed by Wall street bankers to be for the purpose of meeting points raised by the decision of Federal Judge Woolsey last month in a test case on gold hoaridng.

Judge Woolsey held that while the Government has the right to compel gold hoarders to report and surrender their metal, the President's antihoarding proclamation of August 28 was partly invalid because it constituted an usurpation by the President of a power delegated specifically to the Secretary of the Treasury by act of Congress.

At the time it was freely predicted in Wall street that the Government would circumvent the technicality by means of a new order from the Treasury head.

Lawyer Contested Order.

Judge Woolsey's decision was handed down in the case of Frederick Barber Campbell, a lawyer, who contested the validity of the antihoarding order by seeking to restrain the Chase National Bank from delivering $200,574 in gold bullion to any person or agency other than himself.

Continuing, he said:

"The Secretary of the Treasury has not acted yet under the powers so given to him (by Congress) and which I have found to be inherent in the currency power of Congress. This situation places the gold owner in a perplexing predicament in that he faces the loss of his gold through inability to sue the Government if he surrender it at the behest of an official who was not authorized by Congress to demand it. On the other hand, the gold owner is confronted by the possibility of imprisonment and fine if he does not comply with the order."

Public Works Plan Attacked As Wasteful

Theodore Roosevelt Says Direct Cash Relief Would Cost Less.

Philadelphia, Dec. 28 (AP).—Theodore Roosevelt, former governor of the Philippines, attacked the public works program today as costly and wasteful, and said that direct cash aid for the unemployed would cost only half as much.

His remarks were contained in a speech prepared for delivery today before a luncheon meeting of the Manufacturers and Bankers Club of Philadelphia.

Cost Only Half, He Says.

"Let us meet the matter squarely on a basis of direct cash aid for the unemployed," he said. "It will cost only one-half as much to States and Nation as we pay in the public works program.

"It will also give to those unavoidably unemployed a sense of security which they lack now, when they can look forward only to spasmodic employment on specific public projects."

The chief point of his speech was a plea for a balanced budget.

"If we do not balance the budget soon," he said, "inflation will be inevitable and our credit will of necessity be destroyed.

"To sum up," he concluded, "I feel that to meet our present situation the country must (a) increase taxes where practical, bearing in mind the danger involved; (b) economize in Government operations, and (c) discard our haphazard method of dealing with our unemployment as a nonrecurring phenomenon and face it squarely by:

Favors Work Camps.

The block the extension will occupy has many historic and sentimental associations. The old President Theater still is standing, and only recently was the famous Avenue Harvey restaurant building, at the Eleventh street corner, demolished. The property already is owned by the Government, and the buildings occupied under 30-day leases.

Will Take Many Months.

Officials said they thought razing of the buildings could be started in a month, and the foundation contract let. Foundation work can be completed in a relatively short time, but the structure itself will be many months in completing.

It was said scattered Treasury units, such as the Customs Service, the new division of disbursement, the office of the Supervising Architect, the Industrial Alcohol division and its laboratory, would probably occupy the addition. At present the Supervising Architect's office is scattered in five buildings, the division of disbursement is in Treasury Annex No. 1, the Industrial Alcohol office and Customs are in the old Southern Railroad building, the Coast Guard is in the Wilkins building, and the industrial alcohol laboratory is on the upper floor of the Treasury building.

So crowded have some Treasury offices become that officials have complained they are unable to locate any space in which to put their departments.

This problem will be largely solved by the addition, it was said.

Democrats From Over Nation Applaud Roosevelt Address

Speech Delivered Beneath Illuminated Portrait of War President.

Democrats from all sections applauded President Roosevelt when he appeared last night in the Mayflower Hotel ballroom for his speech before the Woodrow Wilson Foundation.

Mr. Roosevelt, himself, was the first president of this organization when it was founded 11 years ago. The ceremony last night, which was an observance of Mr. Wilson's birthday, was being observed at 60 dinners over the Nation.

Mr. Roosevelt, entered, leaning on the arm of his third son, Franklin, jr. Above him was an illuminated portarit of the wartime Chief Executive. Mrs. Roosevelt, clad in a black silk dinner dress and wearing a diamond necklace which was an inaugural gift, came after. She blew a kiss to Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, who sat at Mr. Roosevelt's right. John, the youngest of the Roosevelt sons, entered, accompanied by a group of his friends.

Wilson Memorandum Read.

Before he began his prepared address, Mr. Roosevelt handed Mrs. Wilson a framed memorandum, which had been given him by Joseph P. Tumulty, Mr. Wilson's secretary.

"I received today," said Mr. Roosevelt, "a little gift, a memo sent by Woodrow Wilson's old secretary, which I shall always cherish because it shows how very human he was, how very kind he could be to a young Assistant Secretary of the Navy."

Reading from the penciled slip, Mr. Roosevelt noted that in August, 1919, "the Acting Secretary of the Navy would like to see the President on a very important matter," the slip being that given to Mr. Wilson.

"Friday at 2:30 at the House" Wilson's handwriting read below this notation.

"The young Assistant Secretary had an engagement at Newport," Mr. Roosevelt explained to his audience before reading a second notation for the President that "the Assistant Secretary is to make an inspection and could the President see him Thursday."

"OK—W. W.," Wilson's note said.

Grandchildren Attend.

Roland S. Morris, of Philadelphia, president of the foundation and Ambassador to Japan during Wilson's Presidency, introduced Mr. Roosevelt as the man who has "banished fear from our National life." Gov. Ritchie of Maryland sat at a table below the dais, with the Wilson grandchildren, Eleanor and Francis B. Sayre, jr. At the speaker's table were the following:

Vance McCormick, a trustee of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation and manager of the second Wilson Presidential campaign; Rear Admiral and Mrs. Cary T. Grayson; Norman H. Davis, United States Ambassador at Large; the Attorney General and Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, the Acting Secretary of State and Mrs. William Phillips, Speaker and Mrs. Henry T. Rainey, Supreme Court Justice James Pierce Butler, Postmaster General James A. Farley, the Acting Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Henry L. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of State Francis B. Sayre, Wilson's son-in-law.

France Plans High U.S.Tariff

American Business Men in Paris Worried by Proposed Ban.

Paris, Dec. 28 (AP).—Restrictions on American imports of fine woods and a large number of products hitherto exempt are included in plans of the French government, revealed tonight, for extension of its import quota system.

This move is known to be contemplated as a direct result of the recent abolition of the 15 per cent surtax on British goods imported to France. The knowledge caused considerable apprehension in American business circles in Paris.

Importers of American fruit, thoroughly dissatisfied with French tariff prospects, said tonight that apples and pears now imported to France from the United States, might be exported again to Germany and England if the proposed high import license taxes are applied.

They explained that it would be impossible to sell them at a profit in France.

Two Held for Murder Of Border Patrolman

El Paso, Tex., Dec. 28 (AP).—Ramon Rico, 27, and Fidel Ortega were charged today with the murder of Border Patrolman Bert G. Walthall, 34, in a gunfight between alleged liquor smugglers and border patrolmen near the international boundary last night.

Jose Estrada, 30, an alleged smuggler also was killed, and Patrolman Louis A. Smith, Rico and Ortega were wounded.

Mt. Rainier Man Fights Dry Edict

Will Appeal for Liquor Permit to State Board.

The Prince Georges County Board of License Commissioners yesterday was informed by Louis Lebowitz, of Mount Rainier, that he would carry his fight for an off-sale liquor license in that town to the State Board of License Commissioners.

Several weks ago Lebowitz applied for a permit, which was denied pending determination of sentiment in Mount Rainier regarding sale of liquor within the town limits. A referendum will be held next month.

The county board received its first request yesterday for a permit in Hyattsville. It was referred to the mayor and council for a recommendation.

CWA Chief Commends Progress in Arlington

E. H. Gibson, field engineer for the CWA in Virginia, following a check on county projects, reported that excellent progress is being made.

Projects started yesterday included extension of Wilson boulevard to Arlington Memorial Bridge, water extension on Baltimore street, Clarendon, and in Highland Park from Washington avenue to the Lee highway. These projects give 55 [illegible] missioner of Industrial Alcohol, called on the Commissioner.

Decision of the Commissioners to recommend a low liquor sales tax instead of a scale similar to the Maryland schedule is believed to have been brought about by a general protest against the high prices charged in Maryland and statements by members of the Senate and House District Committees that they favored a low District tax.

Bill May Be Delayed.

Prospects of easy passage of the bill immediately when Congress convenes dimmed somewhat yesterday as the plan for pre-session consideration by the Senate District Committee was abandoned.

Senator William H. King, chairman of the committee, said delay of the District Commissioners in transmitting a liquor law and the absence of a quorum of his committee forced him to abandon his proposal to hold public hearings and prepare a report before the session convened.

"There will be no undue delay in consideration of a District liquor law by the committee," the chairman said. "I had hoped to have a measure from the Commissioners and to call the committee together for hearings, and have a report on the bill ready when Congress met. I do not see now any prospect of action next week."

Quick House Action Promised.

Speaker Henry T. Rainey continued optimistic of prompt House action. Representative Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, majority leader, also said everything would be done to speed a local liquor bill through the House the second day of the session.

Several members of both House and Senate District Committees have publicly or privately expressed themselves in favor of a municipal liquor store system rather than the licensing system approved by the Commissioners.

Others feel that the National liquor tax law is of such major importance that its passage should not be delayed in favor of a local law. That feeling is certain to develop if there is any hitch in the plan to push the local law through in the one day allotted to it by the leaders.

Annulment Plea Lost by Heiress

Janet Snowden Unable to Drop Noble Husband.

New City, N. Y., Dec. 28 (AP).—Janet Snowden's plea for an annulment of her marriage to Prince Di Siraggnano Don Francesco Caravita, which took place after a one-day romance last August, was rejected today.

Supreme Court Justice George H. Taylor held the evidence was insufficient to cut the matrimonial bonds, but added that if the 18-year-old oil heiress wishes to present further evidence within 10 days he would reopen the case.

Green Instructs Labor to Press Reich Boycott

Urges All A.F. of L. Groups to Enforce Ban on German Goods.

A call to the American Federation of Labor to enforce a boycott against German goods and German service, officially adopted at its recent convention, was issued last night by President William Green.

Addressing an official communication to officers of subordnate organizations of the A. F. of L., Green suggested committees be appointed to deal with the problem.

"Let these committees unite with others created for the same purpose, representing people whose opinions are in harmony with the action of the convention, and take such steps as may seem necessary to make the boycott on German goods and service effective," the communication directed.

The recommendation of the executve council of the A. F. of L., in which the convention here concurred, was:

"That the American Federation of Labor join with other public-spirited organizations in adopting a boycott against German-made goods and German service, to continue until the German government recognizes the right of the working people to organize into trade unions of their own choosing, and until Germany ceases its policy of persecution of Jewish people."

The communication declares the A. F. of L. recognize the right of the German people to govern themselves and to formulate and adopt their own political policies and to do so without interference from any other nation.

"Labor is, therefore," it continues, "not fighting against any political order in Germany, or against the German people; we are asking only that annihilation of the German trade unions shall cease and that persecution of German working people and of Jewish people, merely because they are Jews, shall be terminated.

"It is readily conceded that only a most unusual condition could call for such drastic action. This extraordinary condition exists in Germany and offers justification for the boycott."

WPHR Wins Point Against Removal

George H. Hill, Radio Commission examiner, recommended yesterday the commission delay the application of Havens & Martin, Inc., Richmond, for removal of Station WPHR at Petersburg, Va., from the air, according to the Associated Press.

At the same time, Hill proposed ALBG, Inc., owners of WPHR, be granted their application for a regular six months' license renewal to operate on 1,200 kilocycles, 100 watts night-time power and 250 watts power until local sundown.

Hill said there was an insufficient showing of evidence by Havens & Martin, Inc., to warrant a curtailment of the service rendered by the Petersburg station. He said also there was a possibility of interference of WMBG at Richmond, operated by Havens & Martin, with WPHR if the Richmond application for an increase in power from 150 to 250 watts day-time power were granted. The Radio Commission is expected to act in January.

Foreign Trade Plan Is Delayed By Conferees

Two Schools of Thought Differ on Nature of U. S. Program.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Formulation of a program to stimulate American foreign trade has been delayed by a conflict of views within the Roosevelt Administration on how exports may be most effectively increased, it was learned yesterday after a White House conference on this subject.

The conflict represents nothing more than a friendly difference of opinion among two schools of thought in the President's official family, but it goes to the root of deliberations over what should be done to open foreign markets for American agricultural and industrial surpluses.

On the one side, it is reported, the contention was made that proposals for increasing exports will be futile unless they are accompanied by steps permitting other nations to sell more of their commodities in this country. This would mean a lowering of American tariffs in many cases.

Financial Aid Proposed.

The opposing school of thought has argued that American exports may be substantially increased, without imparing this country's favorable balance of trade, by assisting in financing of such shipments and through bargaining for trade concessions with nations already enjoying a favorable balance of trade with this country.

Several of the foreign trade conferees of President Roosevelt yesterday expressed grave doubt as to feasibility of proposals for tariff and trade bargaining in view of the international complications that would result. They pointed out that as long as this country alone pursues a bargaining policy, it may attain some benefit, but that when other nations follow suit such a course may damage the United States, because it already sells more abroad than it buys.

Dispatches from Paris were cited as indicating that the French, who have an adverse trade balance, already had decided to emulate the United States in inaugurating a policy of extending trade concessions to those nations buying from France.

Discuss Peek's Plan.

The White House conference discussed these aspects of the problem with President Roosevelt, along with the proposals of George N. Peek, foreign trade promoter, to establish an export administration to coordinate in one agency all governmental efforts designed to spur foreign trade.

A proposal by the Executive Commercial Policy Committee that President Roosevelt ask Congress to give him power to revise American tariff schedules in exchange for reciprocal benefits by other nations, also was discussed. The conference, however, adjourned without reaching any conclusions, it was understood.

The policy committee also is engaged in preparing a list of commodities on which tariff protection here could be lessened with economic justification. Since publication of such a list would stir widespread agitation, it is expected the report will be for the confidential use of President Roosevelt.

Those who attended the conference were Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Rexford G. Tugwell, Assistant Secretary of Commerce John Dickinson, Assistant Secretary of State Francis B. Sayre, Herbert Feis, economic adviser to the State Department, and Mr. Peek.

Talks With Brookhart.

Meanwhile, on Capitol Hill, Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, outlined to former Senator Smith Brookhart, now a trade adviser to the Administration, a proposal for formation of a large corporation to finance both industrial and agricultural exports. Senator Norris is trying to solicit Administration support for his scheme, which is based on a bill he introduced in Congress some years ago.

Senator Norris would have Congress prescribe the privileges and limitations of such a corporation, and appropriate a sum for initial capital of the agency. Subsequent capital would be obtained from private sources or through public issue of debentures and bonds.

The Nebraska Progressive has in mind chiefly the trade opportunities following this Government's recognition of the Soviet Union, although the agency's purpose would not be limited to financing shipments to Russia.

The Russians need millions of dollars of American products, including foodstuffs, cotton, automobiles, trucks, machinery and tools, Senator Norris explained, but can not make purchases here unless the United States increases its purchases of woodpulp, furs, manganese and other products in the Soviet Union.

In addition, credit would have to be extended to cover the margin of exports to Russia over imports from that country, he explained. This would be the function of the proposed corporation.

Threat of Obstacle.

From Capitol Hill also came the threat of an obstacle to any bargaining policy which this Government might formulate. Senator Bennett Clark (Democrat), Missouri, contended that only those nations which meet obligations to the United States should be favored in the allocation of liquor quotas. He proposed a special excise tax on wines and liquors from countries whose governments are in default to this Government.

According to the Associated Press, Senator Clark would segregate the money collected under this tax as well as that derived from a high passport fee for tourists visiting defaulting nations, in a "debt repayment fund." He intends proposing such legislation to the Finance Committee when the liquor tax measure is before that body.

Building to House Nearby County's Liquor Dispensary and Warehouse

Architect's drawing of the proposed $88,000 dispensary and warehouse to be erected at Silver Spring, Md., to house the Montgomery County liquor sale offices. The long wing to the right of the picture is to be occupied by the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission, county engineer and park commissioners' offices. The wing to the left is to house the warehouse and dispensary activities.

Silver Spring Given $88,000 Rum Building

Dispensary and Warehouse Also Will Contain Park Offices.

Construction of an $88,000 combined warehouse and dispensary for Silver Spring to house the liquor sale offices of Montgomery County was approved yesterday by the Montgomery County Commissioners. The commissioners approved plans for the structure submitted by Laurence P. Johnston, architect.

The dispensary building also will contain offices and hearing rooms for the county engineer and the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission. Offices of Lacy Shaw, full-time park commissioner, and Irving C. Root, chief engineer of the park and planning commission, will occupy a long wing on the Sixteenth street extended highway. The second floor of this wing will be occupied by County Engineer Harry B. Shaw and the county engineering staff. A hearing room, seating 140 persons, available as a meeting place for local groups, also will be on this floor.

The building is to be on a site purchased from the Silver Spring Building & Supply Co. on Sixteenth street extended, near the Baltimore & Ohio underpass, about a block from Georgia avenue, Silver Spring. The location, in the rear of the police department section of the Montgomery County Building at Silver Spring, is expected to reduce the cost of guarding the liquor supplies.

Loading, Storage Provided.

The wing nearest Georgia avenue will house a salesroom and office space on the first floor for the Silver Spring dispensary and space for the bookkeeping department. The rear portion of the first floor will be devoted to a loading platform for trucks and small rooms for storage of supplies.

The State law does not require affixing of revenue stamps on goods in the warehouse until placed on sale in the dispensary and in case of sales in Washington or out of Maryland the stamp is not needed.

The location affords ample parking space.

Should the county electorate vote against sale of liquors in the county at the proposed general referendum in April, 1935, the building can be converted into a general county office building. The offices now are in rented quarters, except those of the Park and Planning Commission, which are in a small space of the county building.

Profits Lay in Bulk Sales.

In view of the fact the county has a monopoly on the sale of liquor, both wholesale and retail, in the county, it is regarded as necessary to have adequate storage space and sales facilities, county officials said. Furthermore, it is by buying in bulk for cash that the county expects to make the large profits necessary to retire the school and road bonds and the subsequent reduction of the county tax rate, they explained.

Should the business of the dispensary reach the volumes expected by county officials, it will be necessary to build a smaller office building and remove the county offices now assigned to the building in order that the dispensary building can be devoted to the sale of wholesale and retail liquor. The building is to be paid for from profits made in the sale of liquor.

The gross receipts of the county dispensary system from December 6 to date total $76,086.35, it was revealed yesterday by John C. Walker, county system manager. The sales were divided as follows: $6,463.52 at the Silver Spring dispensary; $26,255.28 at the Bethesda dispensary and $3,367.55 at Rockville.

Visiting Curtailed At Pohick Church

Edifice Will Be Closed on Week-Days.

Historic Pohick Church, on the Richmond-Washington highway in lower Fairfax County, Va., which has been opened daily to visitors for the past decade, will be closed to tourists on week days during the remainder of the winter.

The decision to close the edifice was taken by the vestry on account of the decline in visitors and expense in keeping the church open.

The annual meeting of the congregation will be held Sunday afternoon, following the regular Sunday services, when members of the vestry for the coming year will be elected.

Woman Dodges Cars, Hit by Horse

Wagon Driver Released After Accident.

Successfully dodging automobiles and street cars in heavy traffic yesterday Mrs. Mary McCaffey, 65, was struck and knocked down by a horse and wagon.

Leaving her home at 16 Third street southeast, Mrs. McCaffey attempted to cross Sixth street at Pennsylvania avenue, southeast. Nearly across, she was felled by the horse drawn vehicle.

Police said William Lucas, 17, of 492 M street southwest, was driving the horse. Mrs. McCaffey was taken to Providence Hospital. She suffered abrasions of the head and possible internal injuries. Lucas was not held.

Cabs Warned To Show Rate On Windshield

Display Orders Will Be Enforced by Utility Commission.

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday warned taxi operators that all cabs must carry rate schedules on the right windshield and the right rear door by January 7, or owners will be subject to prosecution.

While the order was issued several weeks ago, it has never been generally enforced. A complaint from Jouette Shouse, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, that he had entered a 35-cent cab under the impression that it was a 20-cent cab, spurred the commission to enforcement.

Despite an agreement of leading cab companies to establish four uniform zones and to charge 20, 30, 50 and 70 cents, there are still many independent cab operators who are charging higher zone rates. Also there are a few meter cabs, besides the Astor Corporation, which charge different rates.

The primary or city zone of most of these independent cabs is smaller than that of the conference schedule.

Under the commission order, cabs must display rates, with a designation, such as four zones, three zones, or conference zones. Meter cabs will be labeled meter and will carry the rate schedule.

Display of rates on the right side of the windshield and the right rear door, the commission believes, will enable a patron to see the rates before he enters the cab. Heretofore, cabs have been required to carry the schedule and zone maps inside.

New Yorker Heads Camp Education

Dean Clarence S. Marsh of the evening sessons of the University of Buffalo yesterday was appointed to have charge of the educational program in the Civilian Conservation Corps camps. The program will be under general supervision of Dr. George F. Zook, Commissioner of Education.

To administer the program there will be appointed an educational adviser for each of the nine Army corps areas and one adviser for each of the camps.

It is estimated that 1,500 persons will be employed in the educational program.

Bandit Obtains Gun In Robbery of Hotel

A white bandit held up Edward Herndon, night manager of the Blackstone Hotel, 1017 Seventeenth street northwest, early yesterday and stole a pearl handled revolver from the desk.

The robber searched for money fruitlessly. He forced Herndon into a side room, commanded him to lie on his back, and escaped.

Former Senator H. F. Lippitt Dies

Sudden Heart Attack Fatal in Rhode Island.

Providence, R. I., Dec. 28 (AP).—Henry F. Lippitt, United States Senator from 1911 to 1916 and head of the Manville-Jenckes Co., died today of a sudden heart attack. He was 78.

U. S. S. R. Finally Gets Visa To Enter Diplomatic List

Although "Russia" ceased to exist more than 16 years ago when the Bolshevik Revolution swept Kerensky out and ushered in the "U. S. S. R.," the State Department's official diplomatic list has only just taken note of the fact.

The December issue of the list, distributed yesterday, contains the name Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, where hitherto Russia solemnly appeared. Gone, too, is "Serge Ughet, Financial Attache, 140 East Eighty-first street, New York City," as the sole remaining official representative of the defunct Russian government has always been listed.

Instead, "Boris E. Skvirsky, Counselor of Embassy and Charge d'Affaires ad interim and Mme. Skvirsky" have had official recognizance bestowed upon them through the infallible diplomatic list.

Precedence being paramount in the eyes of compilers of the list, the U. S. S. R. ranks as the last of the embassies and ahead of the senior legation. Seniority depends on the length of residence of the ambassador or minister, as the case may be. There are no exceptions.

"Russia" lost its "ambassador" so far as the list was concerned in April, 1932, when Boris Bakhmeteff, Kerensky envoy, surrendered his credentials to enter the teaching profession. He left Ughet in charge and the list has abided by this decision ever since.

The January number probably will contain the name of the first Soviet ambassador to the United States, Alexander A. Troyanovsky, scheduled to arrive and present his credentials early next month.

U. S. Bail Holds Man, Wife Here

Former Klansman Held on Florida Indictment for Mail Fraud.

Edward Young Clarke, former imperial giant of the Ku Klux Klan, and his wife, Martha, were free under $5,000 bond last night pending a hearing Tuesday on charges of fraudulent use of the mails.

They were indicted January 26 in Jacksonville, Fla., accused by the Postoffice Department of obtaining money under false pretenses in selling securities of Esskaye, Inc., a mysterious organization formed by Clarke along lines of the klan.

Postal inspectors arrested the Clarkes here yesterday at the Lee House Hotel. United States Commissioner Needham Turnage released them on bond.

Esskaye, Inc., was founded by Clarke in Chicago two years ago. Its prospectus advertised it as a super klan—a universal brotherhood to further prosperity and mutual love. Its ornate offices were suddenly closed after newspaper attacks.

Eastern Star, No. 11 Holds Installation

New officers of Brookland Chapter, No. 11, Order of the Eastern Star, were installed by Mrs. Mamie Greenstreet, associate grand matron, and Edward N. Riley, associate grand patron.

The new officers are Mrs. Minnie M. Neil, worthy matron; Joseph W. Marshall, worthy patron; Mary Ziegler, associate matron; Clarence Booker, associate patron; Henri Mackle, secretary; Sidney G. Wright, treasurer; Adele West, conductress, and Grace Hiscock, associate conductress.

Mrs. Gwynette Willis had charge of the entertainment at the installation. A gift of the chapter was presented to Bernice Carlton, retiring matron, and Carroll Warthen, retiring patron.

Russians Hail Recognition

Parliament Cheers Greet Speech on Relations With America.

Moscow, Dec. 28 (AP).—The United States' recognition of Russia was listed as the outstanding success of Soviet policy in 1933 by Vyacheslaff Molotoff, president of the Council of Commissars, tonight at the opening meeting of the All-Union Central Executive Committee, the Soviet Parliament.

He elicited prolonged cheers whenever he mentioned the name of Maxim Litvinoff, Russian foreign commissar, who engaged in recognition negotiations with President Roosevelt.

Molotoff warned the 800 representatives from all parts of the Soviet Union that danger of war was never more threatening than now, and declared that Russia was invincible because of its policy of keeping the peoples fully informed.

In his recital of relationships between Russia and the principal nations, the Soviet Premier paid tribute to President Roosevelt's initiative and maintained that removal of the "abnormal situation" of nonrecognition was welcomed by both countries.

Southern Pacific Asks RFC for Five Millions

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—Hale Holden, chairman of the Southern Pacific Railroad, today announced application had been made to the Interstate Commerce Commission for the unused balance of a loan of $22,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, authorized last May.

The balance, amounting to $5,330,000, will be used to pay interest due on January 1, and for the payment of interest and maturing equipment trust certificates January 15.

A Real Advance in Motor Car Engineering

De Luxe Fordor Sedan, One of eleven handsome new body types, all with V-8 cylinder motor

NEW DUAL CARBURETION AND DUAL INTAKE MANIFOLD ADD TO POWER AND ECONOMY OF THE NEW FORD V-8 FOR 1934

LIKE a pair of lungs for this powerful motor, this new system of carburetion and intake supplies vaporized gasoline evenly to all eight cylinders. Two distinct advantages result from it:

1. More even compression of fuel, giving still greater power, faster acceleration, quicker starting and smoother performance in cold weather.
2. More complete utilization of fuel, more miles to the gallon of gasoline, with consequent economy. Crankcase dilution is reduced to a minimum, thereby conserving oil with still further economy in operation.

Increased efficiency at less cost is a notable achievement. Yet it is only one of many improvements which distinguish this new and greater Ford V-8 for 1934.

Clear-vision Ventilation. Constant Supply of Fresh Air without Drafts or Obstruction to View

As perfected in the New Ford, this system of ventilation operates efficiently at all speeds, winter or summer.

In cold or stormy weather, the new adjustable window ventilators can be opened the desired amount to provide fresh air. Individual control on front door and rear-quarter windows enables passengers to obtain desired ventilation without causing discomfort to others. Windshield and windows do not fog when ventilators are opened.

In warm weather, the windshield—which opens—and the cowl ventilator provide additional fresh air.

This New Ford is a more comfortable car. It has new spring flexibility, improved shock absorbers, softer seat springs, and deeper seat cushions.

It is a handsomer car. New lines, new chromium-plated radiator shell and grille, new interior design.

But above all it is an efficient and economical car, a wonderful value for the price, and an automobile on which you can depend for long and satisfactory service.

NOW ON DISPLAY AT ALL FORD DEALERS

Missing Plane Found; Storms Menace Boats

Fishermen in Trouble From Maine to Gulf; 2 Pilots Safe.

Grand Rapids, Mich. (Friday), Dec. 29 (AP).—The Coast Guard cutter Escanaba reported by wireless at 12:30 a. m., today that it had found the missing Kohler Aviation Corporation airplane in Lake Michigan, and that its crew of two men were safe.

The Escanaba reported that the plane was found floating in the lake 53 miles west of Grand Haven Harbor. The report did not say whether the pilots would be taken off the plane and brought here on the cutter or remain to make what repairs would be necessary to resume their flight from Milwaukee.

Five Men Missing.

Boothbay Harbor, Me., Dec. 28 (AP).—Storm-lashed seas off Maine tonight held the fate of five Portland fishermen, apparent victims of Tuesday's northeast blizzard.

The Portland schooner Benjamin Thompson, with her ensign at half staff, reached port minus three of her crew. The seven survivors were haggard from their 24-hour battle with the gale.

The missing trio, they related, were in dories tending trawls with other members of the crew when the storm shut down Tuesday noon. The others were able to make their way back to the schooner, but the three have not been seen since.

They include Capt. Thomas Holbrook's son, Fred, 34, and his brother, Sam. Kenneth Harper, 28, was the third.

Two Sought in Boat.

Meantime, two Coast Guard patrol boats and a destroyer were plowing the waters off Jeffrey Ledge and Boone Island in search of the 32-foot open motorboat Bluenose.

Capt. Charles Dexter, of the schooner Bernie and Bessie, which made port today, said he fished near the Bluenose Tuesday shortly before the blizzard was unleashed. The Bernie and Bessie soon lost sight of the smaller vessel in the storm.

Seven Fishermen Sought.

Chicago, Dec. 28 (AP).—A Coast Guard crew under Capt. John O. Anderson was out today to search for Fritz Howard and two members of the crew of the fishing boat, Seagull, after they failed to return from a trip several miles out in Lake Michigan.

St. Petersburg, Fla., Dec. 28 (AP). Divers were searching the gulf bottom off Port Inglis today for trace of the sponge boat Xios, believed to have been lost with five men from the Tarpon Springs sponge colony.

Reports from various points along the coast that smoke had been seen, as though from a burning boat, have increased fears for the fate of the crew.

Vice President Yearns For Old Days of Power

St. Louis, Dec. 28 (AP).—John N. Garner, en route from his home in Uvalde, Tex., to Washington for the opening of Congress, spoke regretfully today of the old days, when, as Speaker of the House, he talked more freely than as vice president.

"I used to be able to hand you boys some news once in a while," he said, as he climbed out of a barber chair at Union Station. "But I don't dispense any, any more."

Debutante Freed After Five Hours In Police Station

Miss Jane Tewksbury, 22, debutante daughter of a socially prominent family of Chevy Chase, Md., was arrested early yesterday on an intoxication charge, police said.

According to police, Miss Tewksbury was taken to the Women's Bureau when her companion, Ensign Merrill K. Clementson, U. S. N., 25, was arrested in the downtown section on a speeding charge.

Miss Tewksbury was booked about 2 a. m. and released five hours later when her father, Dr. William D. Tewksbury, appeared and posted $10 collateral. She forfeited the collateral in Police Court.

"My daughter was not intoxicated," Dr. Tewsbury declared last night. "She had not been drinking, but become hysterical when police arrested her escort."

Clementson, stepson of Representative Clyde Kelly, of Pennsylvania, was arrested by Patrolman F. B. Hurdle, of Third Precinct. According to Hurdle, he was traveling more than 30 miles an hour and turned a corner "wide."

He appeared in Traffic Court and was released on personal bond. He told Judge John P. McMahon he was due to depart for the Coast, where he is assigned to the U. S. S. Indianapolis.

Wynekoop Figure Tells of Kidnaping

Witness Says He Was Held Prisoner 10 Days.

Chicago, Dec. 28 (AP).—John Van Pelt, 69, witness in the Wynecoop murder case, appeared at the Fillmore Police Station late tonight, told police he had been kidnaped 10 days ago and held prisoner since.

Police said that Van Pelt was excited when he emerged from a cab at the station and entered, asking for the sergeant.

Talking to Patrolman Walker Kelly he said he had been taken from his home by two men whose appearance he could not describe, Kelly said. He was unable to supply a clew as to his whereabouts according to Kelly.

Baby Vampire Bat, Last in Captivity, Dies

New York, Dec. 28 (U.P.).—Despite the utmost care, an orphaned baby vampire bat, last of a family captured in Panama, died in the darkest corner of its cage today in the Bronx Zoo.

The little fellow succumbed a day after his mother was found dead from a cause still undetermined. They were the only ones of the species ever exhibited in captivity. The father died at sea.

$1,000 Bond Vanishes From Federal Office

Police and banks yesterday were asked to be on the lookout for a $1,000 Liberty bond which has been missing from the Indian Affairs Office for some time.

The bond covered deposits in a bank made by the Indian administration in Minnesota. The Department of the Interior also is investigating its disappearance.

Bauer-Schleichert Defense Disqualifies Second Trial Board.

It was tit-for-tat at the Police Trial Board hearing the cases of H. G. Bauer and Rudolph Schleichert, headquarters plain clothes men, yesterday.

For the second time in as many days the board was disqualified—and this time it was at the request of Defense Attorneys Harry Whelan and Joseph Kelly. After the controversy had died away at the First Precinct Station, the trial had been postponed until Tuesday.

Maj. Brown had named five members of the department to sit on the board—Inspectors Thaddeus R. Bean and James F. Beckett, and Capts. Edward J. Kelly, Joseph Morgan and Jeremiah Sullivan. Their appointments had followed the successful challenging of Inspector William G. Stott and Capt. Maurice Collins as members of the original board by Assistant Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal Wednesday.

Capt. Kelly alone remained on the board, but yesterday he was removed because the defense attorneys objected on the grounds he had heard Wednesday's argument, which ended in the exclusion of Stott and Collins.

Bauer and Schleichert are accused of accepting a bribe in a bootlegging case they handled last October.

Oklahoma City, Dec. 28 (AP). Lieut. John C. Price, 21, and Pvt. Roy D. Aven, 22, were killed last night when their car crashed into the back of a pipe-laden truck near Walters.

Lieut. Price was graduated from West Point last year. He was attached to the Thirty-eighth Infantry at Fort Sill. The men were returning to Fort Sill after a Christmas leave.

U. S. to Finance Ohio Dwellings

Ickes Announces New Type of Homestead for White Collar Workers.

A subsistence homestead project to house "white collar" workers in the Youngstown, Ohio, district was announced yesterday by Secretary of the Interior Ickes.

The establishment will differ from other homesteads in that it will not be confined to one tract of land. Instead, houses to cost around $3,000 on ground ranging from 1½ to 3 acres will be constructed in seven Youngstown suburban villages.

About 160 families, principally those of white collar workers, will be accommodated. Occupants will be allowed to choose the location of their home and the type of modern dwelling.

The Federal Subsistence Homestead Corporation will advance a loan of $500,000 to finance the program. The homesteaders will be given 20 to 25 years to pay for their tracts.

Troops Called In Fuel Strike

Puerto Rico Seethes With Protest Against Costly Gasoline.

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Dec. 28 (AP).—Col. Francis Riggs, chief of the insular police, called out 200 reserves this afternoon to stop what he called the anarchy of an island-wide strike against high gasoline prices as a result of which most traffic was at a standstill.

Drivers of public vehicles quit at noon. Shortly afterward street cars ceased functioning. When buses stopped many hundreds of persons were stranded downtown, without a way of getting home.

Many stores in San Juan, the last city to feel the consumers' protest against 25-cent-a-gallon gasoline, failed to reopen this afternoon after closing for the usual period at noon.

One hundred and fifty tourists, most of them teachers from New Jersey and New York, were almost caught in the paralyzing tie-up. They arrived on the S. S. Coamo, of the New York-Puerto Rico line, and were out seeing the sights when, shortly before noon, they were rushed back to the vessel and were told by taxi drivers that they could not use the vehicles any longer.

Those cars that braved the strike orders were stopped. The truck of Angel Ramos, publisher of the newspaper El Muno, was set upon by strikers and damaged.

Six Texans Pay Oil Penalties

Violations of Quotas Cost $28,000 in State and Federal Fines.

The Interior Department yesterday made public the names of six Texas oil producers who have admitted their guilt in running "hot oil" in interstate commerce and who have paid fines and made settlement for violations.

The "hot" oil was oil produced in excess of the State-imposed quota. For the violations, the Interior Department said they had paid State fines and settled wit hthe department for further sums.

The penalties were exacted, the department said, to take the profit out of the hot oil violations Names made public were R. W. Porter, fine to State, $10,000 and settlement with the department, $3,000; B. M. Sisco, fine. $4,000, settlement, $2,000; R. O. Laneve, $2,000 and $1,000; J. Z. Werby, $2,000 and $1,000, and L. B. Phillips, $2,000 and $1,000.

Lieut. Travis and Miss Ward Wed, Uniting Army Families

Ceremony Given Military Setting in Chapel at Fort Humphreys.

The Post Chapel at Fort Humphreys, Va., was the scene of a brilliant military wedding yesterday afternoon when Miss Elsie Ward, daughter of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Ralph Talbot Ward, U. S. A., and Lieut. William Livingston Travis, son of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Robert Jesse Travis, of Savannah, Ga., were married.

The chapel was effectively decorated with Easter lilies and Christmas greens. The ceremony was performed at 4 o'clock by the Rev. John Talbot Ward, of Burlington, N. J., uncle of the bride, assisted by Maj. John R. Wright, the post chaplain. While the guests assembled and during the wedding several musical selections were played by Mrs. Paul S. Reinecke and Capt. Henry M. Underwood.

The bride was escorted and given in marriage by her father. She wore her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin made with a basque waist and a very full skirt which formed a medium length train. The long sleeves and deep bertha collar were of duchesse and rose point lace. She wore a necklace and earrings of pearls which had been worn by ten other brides in the Ward family. Her court veil of tulle was held in place by a coronet of pearls, and she carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Ward Maid of Honor.

Miss Millicent Ward, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. Her gown was of apricot colored taffeta, made with a high neck and double puffed sleeves. It was fitted to the knees and flaring from there into a full skirt of flounces. The girdle of brown velvet was caught in the front with a cluster of flowers of gold and rosewood and bronze. Her hat was of brown maline trimmed with a shirred band of brown velvet and she carried a velvet muff.

The bridesmaids were Miss Margie Joe Helmers, of Kansas City, Mo.; Miss Rena Elizabeth Travis and Miss Cecelia Darracott Travis, sisters of the bridegroom. Their costumes and accessories were similar to those of the maid of honor. Miss Helmers and Miss Rena Travis wore gowns of gold taffeta and Miss Cecelia Travis' gown was of rosewood colored taffeta.

Lieut. Robert Falligant Travis, of Langley Field, Va., served as best man for his brother and the ushers were Lieut. John D. Matheson, Lieut. Dodd Starbird, of Fort Humphreys; Lieut. Beverly Jones, of Fort Myer, and Cadet John R. Wright, of the United States Military Academy.

Reception at Officers' Club.

Following the ceremony, the bride and bridegroom passed under the traditional arch of swords. A reception was held at the Officers' Club, which was artistically decorated with white flowers, winter greens and lighted tapers. Mrs. Ward, mother of the bride, had on a gown of blue crepe and lame and a hat of lame. Mrs. Travis, mother of the bridegroom, was costumed in dark blue velvet.

Those who assisted in serving were Mrs. George Spaulding, Mrs. J. C. Johnston, Mrs. L. V. Frazier, Mrs. Dewitt C. Jones, Mrs. J. D. Andrews, Mrs. Edward N. Chisholm, Mrs. Paul S. Reinecke, Mrs. J. R. D. Matheson, Mrs. Albert C. Lieber and Mrs. Benjamin R. Wimer.

Later Lieut. Travis and his bride left on a motor trip, the latter wearing a smart suit of dark brown crepe and taffeta with a brown hat and coat and accessories. After January 15 they will be at home at Randolph Field, Tex., where Lieut. Travis is a student officer in the flying school.

Miss Hilda Hase, daughter of Col. and Mrs. W. F. Hase, C. A. C., will entertain at dinner at the Shoreham tonight in honor of Miss Jehanne Burch and Miss Mary Louise Marsh, debutantes.

Approximately 400 guests were present, the hosts receiving in the east end of the grand ballroom with the main part of the room reserved for dancing.

The Diplomatic Corps, official Washington and residential society were represented.

Assisting the Misses English were the Misses Jane Culbertson, Nancy Lesh, Frances Simpson, Elizabeth Howard, Frances Davis, Patsy Benton, Betty West, Lucille Elliott and Sallie Mitchell LeFevre, and Miss Dorothy Lawton, of Baltimore, Md.

Mrs. English wore a gown of blackberry-colored velvet made with a cape of pointe de Venice lace. Her assistants included Mrs. William Thornwall Davis, Mrs. C. H. Elliott, Mrs. Chester D. Swope, Mrs. O. J. DeMoll, Mrs. William G. Galliher, Mrs. William L. Dunlop, jr., Mrs. Charles Billard, Mrs. George S. Dudley, Mrs. Homer L. Kitt, Mrs. Arthur May, Mrs. Millard West, Mrs. Abner Ferguson, Mrs. Jere Crane, Mrs. George Harris, Mrs. Charles Hood, Mrs. John Hulse, Mrs. Ralph Sabin, Mrs. D. S. White, Mrs. Perry West, Mrs. Arthur Kidder, Mrs. Arthur V. Crane, Mrs. Martin Rittenhouse, Mrs. John Baer, Mrs. Neitah King, Mrs. Virgil Bourne, Mrs. Emanuel Speich, Mrs. Paul Brock.

Also Mrs. Roscoe Carlisle Bulmer, of Annapolis, Md., and Mrs. William Armstrong and Mrs. Paul Bruenkner, of Baltimore, Md.

Miss Asher Gives Luncheon for Debs

Guests Include Students Home for Holidays.

Four of the season's debutantes were honored at a luncheon at the Shoreham yesterday when Miss Florence Asher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde B. Asher, was hostess. Miss Asher attends George Washington University, and several of her guests are home from their colleges for Christmas. The guests of honor were Miss Jehanne Burch, Miss Mary Louise Marsh, Miss Margaret Harrison and Miss Helen Quinton.

Others present included Miss Mary Elizabeth Fowler, Miss Martha Bishop, Miss Margaret McCabe, Miss Isabelle Feltzer, Miss Caroline Brown, Miss Anne Moore and Miss Hilda Hase.

Mr. Jean F. Mitchell, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Mitchell, who is home from Cornell University for Christmas, was host to a group of college friends at dinner at the Shoreham last evening. The company numbered 16.

Mr. and Mrs. Creed Walsh Fulton, jr., entertained at a dinner dance last evening at the Columbia Country Club for their two daughters, Miss Katherine Fulton and Miss Ruth Wynne Fulton.

The guests included Miss Constance Warner, Miss Edar Fleming, Miss Isabel Bonvillian, Mr. William Bonvillian, Mr. Melville Cox, Mr. Thomas Ferguson, Mr. William Scott, and Mr. James Gulick.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Liebrecht, of New York, are in Washington, at the Mayflower for two days. Mrs. Liebrecht, the former Miss Claudia Anderson, of Washington, spent Christmas with her mother in Farmville, Va., and will return there with her husband for New Year's.

Mrs. O. H. Finck and Mrs. Edward Finck, of San Antonio, are visiting Washington and are at the Willard. Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Quin, also of San Antonio, are at the Willard.

Miss Mary Jane Lightbown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cooper C. Lightbown, gave a luncheon at the Shoreham Wednesday in honor of Miss Jane Young, of Boston, who made her debut in that city this winter, and is visiting in Washington as the guest of Miss Jean Ulman. Miss Lightbown is home from Sweetbriar College. Among the other guests were Miss Margaret Harrison, who attends Smith

It's From California, and It's Good at Catching Insects, Too.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

A plant which eats raw meats—when it can't find insects—a plant resembling a hooded cobra, and which has beautiful purple and crimson blossoms in the spring, is the interesting novelty featured in a local shop.

A number of years ago it was discovered growing in bogs 4,000 to 6,000 feet up in the mountains of northern California and southwestern Oregon. Its appearance was regarded as unique enough—long, leafless, twisted stalks rounded thickly at the top, red and green whisker-like appendages hanging from it, a hood beautifully mottled with white translucent spots. But it was soon discovered that here was a plant with other amazing qualities. Honey glands in the hood and appendages tempt insects, bugs, ants and flies, to creep into the mouth. A few steps inside and they are doomed. The funnel-like stalks, lined with innumerable little hair-like sponges all pointing downward, are impenetrable for a return trip.

If kept in a room where there are likely to be no small insects it's a good idea to feed these carnivorous plants a little raw meat now and then.

Steam heat is delightful for distributing warmth all over a room; hearth fires are altogether charming to sit by; but nothing is so convenient and utterly comfortable as the concentrated warmth of an electric heater.

To have one of these plugged in by the side of the bed so that it's a simple matter to turn it on is a rare treat in the cool early mornings. To return home late in the evening and have to undress in a chill room is a discomfiture which has no place in the life of today.

A shop on G street has a new type heater bearing a striking resemblance to a radio. Its black metal body and silver rim is most attractive looking. When the electricity is turned on an inside fan begins to turn and blows the heat outward.

We have a style flash that silk print dresses are going to be the rage in the early spring. But some of us feel that until they're definitely here, until we've chosen our spring coat and hat, we simply can't chance an expensive frock. So what we can do, we conservatives, is find a scarf collar in a colorful print which we'll wear in surplice style over our winter dresses and under our winter coat.

There are any number of different patterns from which to choose. Some are plain and soberly colored. Others are fantastically printed and shaded in all the colors of the spectrum. They can be worn and worn, washed, and worn again.

Earrings which look like tiny bouquets of real coral can be worn at tea time, or for formal occasions. They have that indescribable daintiness which suits them to plain or fluffy frocks, daytime, or evening wear.

Not everybody can play the harmonica, can play the "rolmonica." old alike can play the "rolmonica." Instead of being just a usual mouth harp, this one comes with a little roll of music inside which works on the player piano scheme. Blow in at the mouthpiece and turn the music roll at the same time. Friends who don't know and aren't acquainted with "rolmonicas" will pay us great tribute for our expert musical manners.

Give one to Junior and he'll have music wherever he goes

Perhaps some of the nicest, newest, and most novel bath scents are the specially prepared oils which come in several scents, chypre, pine, gardenia, violet and jasmin. One scant teaspoon to a tub of water insures a real perfume-like fragrance.

It's a very good idea to find one scent which we prefer to all others and cleave unto that. No matter what make of perfume we use, we should match it with the same flower essence for both our eau-de-cologne, bath powder, and bath oil or crystals.

One bottle of the fragrant oil will last a long time as a little bit of it goes a long way.

After we've carefully washed our hose or lingerie we often carelessly sling it across the radio or back of a chair. Oftentimes it stains, oftentimes it snares, and all our hard work has been to little avail. But if we take no chances and use one of the little hangers designed especially to hold "light wash" we can be sure our efforts will not be in vain. They look very much like ordinary clothes hangers except they include several clothespins which firmly grasp the garments and hold them high until dry.

Free-and-Easy Raglan Wins In Winter Overcoats Too

Directed by Amos Parrish

New York, Dec. 29.—There was a British general in the Crimean War who not only won over the Russians in 1856, but who is still winning with Americans in 1933. Fitzroy James Henry Somerset, in addition to his good generalship, wore a good-looking and especially comfortable overcoat.

Gen. Somerset was also by way of being Lord Raglan . . . which of course accounts for the name of the overcoat model that's illustrated above.

Most of the history of the raglan goes back to England. Because it was in that country, almost 75 years ago, that men first demanded—and tailors provided—a warm coat which would give the wearer all the action freedom he wanted. Especially in his arms and his shoulders and through the back. A coat which would stand off the penetrating cold of foggy winter days when a man still has to be out and doing.

Extra Comforts in Shoulders.

As the illustration shows (and as everybody knows) the distinctive sleeve of a raglan goes right up into the shoulder and under collar in a soft, sweeping, easy curve that has comfort written all over it. Get into one, and you know what it means to have your shoulders covered with cloth—but without padding, cumbersome stiching, or canvas. Nothing but the fabric itself. Natural lines. Designed for comfort. Made for movement. And, like so many things British, good to look at as well.

But there are other good things about the raglan. First of all, its free-swinging back . . . A well-cut raglan hangs freely from the shoulders . . . is never skimpy or tight fitting anywhere. From the collar (which is ample for turning up to cover the neck) to the flare of the skirt, the double seams, and the whole easy cut of the coat, a raglan tells the world you're at ease with it.

Double-Breasted Model Practical.

Of course, you can have your raglan overcoat single or double breasted. For winter at its worst, the latter is a good one to have . . . in a fleece or a tweed, or a camel's hair. In plain colors—the grays, browns and blues leading, in that order. If you want distinction, you can have yours in a neat check or overplaid . . . patterns to which raglans, of all overcoats, lend themselves perfectly.

If you've done nothing about getting yourself a this-year's overcoat until now, this is plainly the right moment to try out the warmth and extra comfort of a raglan. You may discover how much it can really do to dress you up.

Brokers in Spats Jeered in Chicago

Cold Ankles No Excuse for Donning Them, Exchange Decides.

Chicago, Dec. 28 (AP).—Holiday pranks on the Board of Trade manifested themselves today in an outburst of hostility to the wearing of spats in the grain pits.

Any departure from the usual in the holiday season is construed by the brokers on exchange as an infraction of the unwritten law and punishment is promptly meted out. Today, the presumed offense against the exchange code of etiquette was a display of spats by unfortunates who, because of the cold wave, had been delayed in reaching the trading floor, and had unwarily ventured into the pits before removing spats.

In the wheat pit, one struggling offender was suddenly pounced upon by several brokers, his spats pulled loose, and amid a chorus of derisive yells the spats thrown skyward. The culprit did not wait to recapture the spats, but beat his way out to regain his composure.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

One must know the nature of his facial blemish before deciding on a method of removal, since tissues vary in their nature and in the way they react to the different methods of treatment.

In a paper appearing in Clinical Medicine and Surgery, Dr. Herman Feit told a society of plastic surgeons his conclusions as to the best methods of treating a considerable group of cosmetic defects.

One of the unpleasant looking growths that are apt to appear on the face and neck, especially of Negroes, is known as keloid. A young keloid can be removed by treatment with X-ray or radium. An old, firm keloid will not yield to these treatments. Such growths are successfully removed by surgical procedures.

The small, yellow, curdy tumors that are especially apt to develop in the skin of the eyelids are known as xanthomas. They are not benefited by treatment with X-rays or radium. The same is true of slowly growing tumors composed of fat and known as lipomas, of muscle and known as myomas, of nerve and known as neuromas, and of fibrous tissue and known as fibromas or fibroids. They are cured by operation.

Rapidly growing birthmarks, composed of young blood vessels, are cured by radium or rays. Port wine birthmarks and all other old, nonprogressive birthmarks are not benefited by radium or X-rays. Congenital, pigmented or colored birthmarks, nonprogressive and persistent, are not sensitive to radiation. The rule is that all blood and lymph vessel marks that are composed of young, growing vessels can be removed by radium and rays, but those composed of mature vessels can not be.

In some cases in ection of sclerosing solutions, such as are used for varicose veins, results in cures. The cases for such injection must be selected carefully.

Superfluous hair can be removed by treatment with X-ray. But the method is dangerous if the treatments are strong enough to kill the hair roots. Unless they accomplish that, hairs come back. Therefore, the method is a poor one. The electric needle is much the better and safer method.

Excessive sweating of the hands and feet is cured by treatment with X-rays. The treatment should not be carried too far. X-ray treatments of excess sweating in the armpits promises satisfactory results.

Ordinary warts and warts on the soles of the feet, known as plantar warts, are cured by ray treatment. Horny skin growths in old people should be curetted and then rayed if anything is to be done.

For X-ray skin, the use of a salt-free diet rich in vitamin A is helpful. Pancreatin is serviceable in scleroderma. In barber's itch it may be necessary to remove the beard with an electric needle or X-ray. A good sterilizing dye should be applied locally. Tuberculosis of the skin is best treated with a salt-free and vitamin-rich diet. Rays should not be used. Common lupus is cured without much scarring by the use of the new gold salts.

Hives.

E. M. S. writes: Can you suggest a remedy for hives? I have been on a milk diet, but it does not cure. The constant itching is torture.

Reply.

Calcium gluconate has been known to cure some cases. The best treatment is to find the cause and avoid it. Among the foods that are under suspicion in most cases are salmon, strawberries, oatmeal. There are many others, any one of which may cause it. Not all cases are caused by foods. Skin tests help to find the cause.

New Bacteria Rivals Carrots In Vitamin A

Half Animal, Half Vegetable It May Be Important Diet Factor.

Philadelphia, Dec. 28 (U.P.).—Certain bacteria have been found to produce more carotene, a valuable substance containing vitamin A, than carrots, it was revealed today at the thirty-fifth annual meeting of the Society of American Bacteriologists.

A paper written by M. A. Ingraham and C. A. Baumann, of the University of Wisconsin, disclosed the fact that nearly twice as much carotene has been obtained from the bacteria, in proporton to their size, as is found in carrots.

The paper also said that persons for whom physicians now prescribe a diet of carrots may some day be able to take medicine in a condensed form.

An experiment was cited by the paper, in which the bacteria were fed to animals whose diet was lacking vitamin A. These animals appeared to be able to convert some of the bacterial carotene into the missing vitamin, but no evidence was ever found that the germs themselves changed their own carotene into vitamin A.

According to Dr. Ingraham the discovery marks another link between animal and vegetable kingdoms, for carotene production has always been associated with the presence of chlorophyll, the green pigment of all plants. He described it as being one of the peculiar cases in which a small organism is partly animal and partly vegetable.

"It is of interest to observe," he explained, "that although bacteria resembles animals in their lack of chlorophyll, they resemble plants in their ability to synthesize carotene."

Wales Is Out as World's Best Dresser, Tailors Say

They Pass Him By in Picking Ten Masculine Fashion Plates; But Choose Prince George Among Others of Several Countries.

New York, Dec. 28 (U.P.).—Tailors of London, New York and Hollywood today named the world's ten best-dressed men—and the Prince of Wales was not on any list.

Michael Farmer, husband of Gloria Swanson.

Adolphe Menjou, motion picture actor.

Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, Philadelphia society man.

The British Marquess of Cholmondeley.

Sir J. W. Buchanan Jardine, British sportsman.

Novelties Demote Prince.

Paris dressmakers, in a United Press poll recently elected Mrs. Harrison Williams, of New York, as the world's best dressed woman. But the tailors' votes were scattered.

The Prince of Wales, it was said, was omitted because of the startling innovations he has sponsored, to the horror of conservative tailors everywhere.

King George, who by tradition ought to be the fashion setter, voted himself out many years ago when he appeared in public with his trousers pressed down the sides, instead of the front. He never was forgiven.

Prince George was not on the London list, although he was mentioned as the best dressed member of the royal family.

All the nominees appear well in anything they wear, tailors say. None is stout. And all are of a build to bring an "oh" or an "ah" when their pictures appear in the rotogravure section.

Hollywood Favors Actors.

That London had more nominees than New York was due to Hollywood, which spent almost all its votes on movie actors, whereas the tailors of the other style capitals were more catholic in their selections.

Twenty-three men were considered in the voting.

Fred Astaire, American dancer.

Sir John Gilmour, British home minister.

G. Reeves Smith, director of the Savoy Hotel, London.

The Douglas Fairbanks, father and son. The younger Fairbanks got in on the strength of clothes he bought recently in London and revealed on his return.

William Powell, Warren William, Ricardo Cortez, Ronald Colman, Warner Baxter and George Raft, all motion picture actors.

London tailors were reluctant to pick a list, and it was perhaps significant that on no list were more than nine men mentioned as absolutely perfect dressers. One of the Londoners explained:

"It is difficult with the present day interpretation of what constitutes the well dressed man. But the men I have named are among those able to walk the streets in the loudest checks without attracting attention."

Having Faith in One's Partner's Bids.

A foundation of strong defense against opponents who employ bluff and semipsychic bids of all kinds in an effort to keep you out of your proper declaration is to believe your partner's calls and not those of the enemy. In other words, particularly when you are vulnerable and the opponents are not and something seems to be wrong somewhere, have faith in your partner rather than your opponents, and bid the hand accordingly.

1—West was an aggressive type of player who liked to get in the first bid as often as possible. As a matter of fact, when there is a part-score, borderline hands should be opened if the distribution is good.

2—The correct bid. North is too strong to merely overcall with this hand. Unless North doubles first, South will believe that North is merely trying to protect the part-score.

3—South must make some bid with his two Aces and a five-card suit after North's Take-out Double.

4—West doubles, first for the logical reason that he feels certain he can defeat the contract, and second, to continue with his aggressive bidding in an effort to keep the opponents from pushhim too high.

5—North now shows his suit. With the distribution, including the singleton club, he can not stand three clubs doubled.

6—South believes his partner and not his opponents. Plastic valuation plus complete faith enables him to make the correct bid. North, on his double for a Takeout, must either hold a hand strong in honor strength, or, if it is not very strong in honors, one containing a good escape suit. From the bidding South can mark North with at least a six-card heart suit. South's own holding of the Knave and ten thus assumes importance, and he is certain that the two Aces will come in more than handy. The Raise to game is made unhesitatingly despite the fact that North may have overbid slightly because of the score.

7—The battle is not over, East, realizing when his aggressive partner fails to double four hearts that this contract must be more or less of a laydown, decides to take a sacrifice.

8—South has bid his hand to the hilt. With his holding of only two hearts he can not make a Forcing pass and risk North going to five in that suit. He feels that the four-spade contract can quite certainly be defeated.

In actual play, East and West were defeated two tricks due to a club ruff. Each team did its best and the result was normal. North and South prevented East and West from bluffing them out of their just dues, and subsequently, East and West took a very sound sacrifice which, without the ruff, might have been even smaller.

Tomorrow's Hand.

West, Dealer.

Boys More Unstable Than Girls, Educator Declares

Newport News, Va., Dec. 28 (AP).—Although girls may take the lead in school work that doesn't necessarily mean they're smarter, says Fred M. Alexander, former president of the Virginia Education Association and principal of Newport News High School.

"The male," he says, "is more variable, going more to extremes, while the female tends to establish a more conservative norm."

As to the answer to the age-old question whether girls or boys are smarter, the high school principal declined to join either camp.

"In the matter of school work, which is admittedly a conservative pattern for learning," he said, "girls may take the lead. They take their studies for granted, as a prescribed duty and necessity. They do study more than boys, it is believed.

"It is pointed out that there are more men geniuses, but the same data also show that there are more men idiots."

Another biological fact must be taken into consideration, he added. "Girls mature faster, the difference between boys and girls in high school becoming extremely marked. The average girl of 17 appears older than a boy of the same age.

"The girl has become a little more settled in her ways, while the boy is in the throes of a storm and stress period. The girl again shows her bent for conservatism, while the boy is unsettled, constantly alert for new things.

The Family Marketer

Just Think! Cranberry Juice Cocktail, Red as Rubies!

Soon it will be time for the wild bells to ring out and people will be pulling themselves up for the second climax of the year. The Marketer is beginning to feel a rise in the energy curve, although it's still hard to get up in the morning.

She has found some more delicacies that are sure to dress up a party dinner. Cranberry juice cocktail, for instance, red as molten rubies, for only 30 cents a pint bottle. Then there's a jar of spiced cranberries for 35 cents. The net weight of the jar is a little over a pound. Lime juice all fixed up ready for the addition of New Year's cheer, is 25 cents a bottle, an orange juice preparation is 29 cents.

And all the delectable pickled things! The Marketer found her energy curve rising considerably. There are bottles of watermelon rings for 38 cents and the rings stuffed with orange and different fruits are 50 cents. Sweet pickled cantalope is 50 cents a bottle, kumquats are 75 cents.

There are pears put up in creme de menthe, all greenly glowing for $1.15, there are brandied pears for $1.50.

What a veriety of syrups! Non alcoholic Grenadine is 60 cents and Vermouth, $1.50. A quart bottle of sherry flavoring for cooking is $1.10. There are small bottles of rum, sherry and brandy flavoring for 25 cents each. There's a big bottle of fruit syrup for punch for 48 cents.

Did you ever try apple syrup on pancakes? A bottle of it costs 25 cents. The Marketer has spread apple jelly on waffles, and the flavor is much the same. A modernistically shaped bottle of specially prepared pancake syrup, made of white and maple sugar, is 25 cents. The Marketer would be tempted to buy the syrup for the bottle, it is so attractive.

A cunning little plum pudding, packed in a china bowl with scenery painted on it, is 75 cents. A nice gift, suggests the Marketer. Hard sauce for the pudding, brandy flavored, is 40 cents for a 7-ounce jar.

Here is a fruit cake made from an old-fashioned recipe dating back to the early eighteen hundreds. The Marketer tried a sample and it is moist and wonderfully flavored. A gift box of one of these cakes, plus a jar of the hard sauce, is $3—and what a gift!

The Marketer has selected a recipe for fruit punch from an old-fashioned recipe book. It calls for additional strawberries and red raspberries, but because of the season they will have to be omitted.

Fruit Punch (for 20 Persons).

A: 1 cup each pineapple, bananas, white grapes, and Maraschino cherries, 6 oranges and 6 lemons, sliced.

B: 2 cups cold water, 1 cup sugar.

One almost needs an appendix to follow this recipe. But it looks as if it would work.

New Year's is a solemn occasion and it calls for a solemn beverage. The Marketer has dug up a recipe that should make your hair stand on end. She doesn't suggest that you use it now, but here it is for future reference. Incidentally, it appeared in a cook book published in 1911—and the price then was calculated to be $3.95.

White Wine Punch.

A: 2 quarts white wine, 1 pint claret, ½cup brandy, ¼ cup benedictine or chatreuse, 2 oranges, sliced; juice of 3 lemons, 1 small unpeeled cucumber, cut in two and sliced thin.

B: 1 cup sugar, 2 cups water, 1 stick cinnamon, 2 cloves.

C: Large piece ice, 1 quart champagne.

What Today Means

"Capricorn."

If December 29 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 9 to 10 a. m., from 3 to 4:20 p. m. and from 7:45 to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 7 to 8:10 a. m., from 1 to 2:20 p. m. and from 5 to 6 p. m.

It is possible that one of the opposite sex will come into your life on this date to remain there for a long while. Choose your words with care, for people will be inclined to misunderstand and to fly quickly off the handle. Those in positions of authority will have to be most tactful in reprimanding their subordinates as people generally will be most touchy and not inclined to hold their tongues.

The child born on this December 29 will go in for all outdoor activities. If given the opportunity, it will ride horseback, play golf and tennis and swim, and all of them well. A frank and friendly little one who goes out of his way to give everyone an even break. Can be trusted to the limit.

If you were born on December 29, you probably think that you are a pretty good fellow and that you can go about and do just about as you please. As a matter of fact, with a few minor exceptions, you are a rather fine person, but with such an attitude the chances are that you will jeopardize your position both in the office and socially. Furthermore, you will lose a great many friends. You must learn that there are other fish in the pond besides yourself and that they, too, must be taken into consideration; you can not just swim along through life taking the best of everything for yourself. Your attitude is due more to thoughtlessness than to any inherent selfishness in your character.

If December 29 is the date of your birth, you have a very friendly way about you when you want to use it. There is a certain straightforwardness about you that is most attractive, and people quickly come to feel that here is a person who can be trusted and who would not even think of putting anything over. You are inclined to want to make a lot of changes in your life; changes of work and changes of surroundings. This is really not a failing in your case, for in most instances these changes seem to work out quite naturally, but you must take care not to become a rolling stone. If you will only do a little work on yourself and try and overcome a few minor faults, you will become a really fine person.

Successful people born on December 29:

John C. B. Davis, lawyer and diplomat.

John J. Ingalls, politician and author.

George H. Smillie, artist.

John Vance Cheney, poet and librarian.

William T. Sedgwick, biologist.

No End of Books

Washington to Have Own Literary Magazine, "The Centaur."

For some years now it has been a matter of intense regret that Washington had no literary magazine to focus the very wide array of literary talent residing here. Many of our authors, obviously, are of sufficient stature to gain a National audience. They have passed beyond the stage of the "little magazine." But behind and around them there is a vast company of writers who have not yet reached the position in which their work may be considered a marketable commodity. In some very important ways the members of this latter group may be considered lucky. They do not face that often disintegrating experience of finding that an assured audience means a stereotyped form. They are not forced to the dire repetitiousness of success. They are free to grow, to change, above all to discover, not a stratum of the public, but themselves.

That liberality of expression is what the "little magazine" offers. At the same time, the sheer fact of print demands that they commit themselves, that they bear the constant self-discipline and almost equally constant embarrassment of seeing their dreams in cold type. The "little magazine" is best able to afford this essential compromise to the young and aspiring writer.

So it is important and gratifying news to hear that a group of young authors, poets, musicians and artists of Washington are founding a literary magazine to be called "The Centaur." The first number will appear early next month.

By no means is this group composed of tyros. The editors and founders are Diana Kearny Powell, whose published verse entitles her to a definite place among the younger poets; John Dillon, a young writer of distinctive personality and power; and Henrietta Randolph Wirt, already well-known locally for her work.

Aiding these as associate editors, a number of others prominent in their fields are to take active parts in the enterprise. Among them are Benjamin Musser, whose book, "Poems: 1930-33," has just been published; Minnie Briggs, one of the foremost artists of Washington, whose recent exhibition at the Pen Women's League was enthusiastically received; Rowland Lyon, instructor at the Abbott School of Art and chairman of the auxiliary committee of the Arts Club; Everett Stevens, concert pianist and one of the outstanding young composers in local circles; Isabelle Geddes Smith, Gertrude Power, Frederic J. Haskins, jr., and Theodore Tiller, 2d.

In the first issue there will be contributions by William Allen Wilbur, Edith Mirick, John Lee Higgins, Florence Stretford Barnes, Helen MacLeod, and Benjamin Musser.

The Centaur is chiefly interested in poetry, and welcomes contributions. Some of the pages, however, will be devoted to short, critical summaries of various leading literary figures of contemporary influence. Of these the magazine stands at present in particular need.

An interesting sidelight on the project is the fact that the editors are to print the magazine themselves. One of their number owns a foot-power press and a supply of type, and with these simple means the magazine will be made completely by hand. A first edition of 250 copies is planned.

The Centaur will be issued bimonthly. Subscriptions at $1 a year, or single copies at 25 cents each, may be obtained at the offices of the magazine, 1528 Eighteenth street northwest. At the same address the editors will be glad to meet and confer with anyone among Washington writers whose interests lie in this direction.

We can only wish the editors and their associates in this enterprise of sound and honest self-expression all due rewards for good work. Washington needs what they are about to give us.

THEODORE HALL.

Independence of thought and action is no novelty to Filipino women, and marriage is no handicap to their careers in business or the professions, says Carmen Aguinaldo Melencio—daughter of the famous Filipino insurrectionist, Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo, who is shown here with her husband, Jose P. Melencio, and their two daughters, Ameurfina, 10, and Emilina, 8. Since her graduation from Wellesley College for Women, near Boston, in 1921, which was immediately followed by her marriage, Mrs. Melencio has been influential in the educational and cultural life of the Philippines.

Girls From the Philippines Study Homemaking in City

Washington Woman Is Their Guide to Domestic Arts They Expect to Carry Back to Eager Housewives of the Islands.

Strange, unusually appetizing odors come from the chemistry wing in the Department of Agriculture these days. In the laboratory two young girls from the Philippines and a learned chemist watch with bated breath as a loaf of bread is taken from the oven. The chemist sniffs approvingly. He tastes the product and a smile lights up his face.

"Success!" he exclaims, and the girls beam.

Miss Natividad A. Brodeth and Miss Presentacion Atienza, who are home demonstration agents in the Philippine Islands, are taking a year's leave of absence from instructing Filipino housewives in the arts of homemaking. They are working in the various bureaus in the Department of Agriculture and touring the United States to get new ideas. Mrs. Ola Powell Malcolm, who has charge of the extension work in the Southern States, has taken them into her home in order that they may know American home life and receive more complete instruction.

"We find Americans very kind and hospitable," the young ladies said yesterday. "The people in the bureaus are very busy, and we hate to worry them, but they are glad to help us.

Wild Welcome at Home.

"The women we have met in the extension work here are interested, but not nearly so enthusiastic as those at home.

"Whenever we go into a strange town at home we are met by all the town officials, who welcome us to the city. Once we were preceded by a man playing on a drum everywhere we went. It was fun, but we couldn't help laughing. He was so serious and intent on making our presence known.

"The women become so interested in the things we teach them that they often neglect their husbands, who complain that we are alienating their wives' affections.

"We teach the women to preserve their foods and provide their families with a balanced diet, all through the year.

"We are especially interested in finding cheap foods that provide all nourishment for the large families. It is not unusual in the islands for people to have 20 children. Feeding becomes quite a problem in such cases.

"Miss Maria Orosa, who is at the head of the extension service in the Philippines, has perfected a method of making milk from soy beans. This milk can be used to make ice cream and other attractive dishes. It is very cheap and plentiful.

"Every year we have a huge carnival, where the foods are exhibited. We choose a queen of the carnival, who is known as Miss Philippines. The carnival lasts for 16 days and nights. The women take pride in making their foods as beautiful as possible. The papaya fruit, which is a beautiful orange and green, is a great favorite. Many carve blossoms out of fruit and can them. The husbands are almost as interested as their wives and they especially enjoy the dances which are held every night during the carnival.

The girls said that they were especially impressed by the beauty of the American homes.

"One of the things we want to do when we return to the Philippines, they said, "is to teach the people how to make their homes more attractive. We would like them to build fireplaces, not that we need them, but because they are so pretty. Then too, the shelves are nice to put things on.

Our Girls Surprise.

When Miss Brodeth and Miss Atenza first came here they were surprised to find the American girls going out unchaperoned.

"In the Philippines we do not go out alone with young men. It is very hard for us to become accustomed to going alone. Usually we persuade Mrs. Malcolm to go with us.

"Still your system has its advantages. At home the poor young man has to take mother or auntie everywhere he goes. That is bad when he hasn't much money. Why a suitor even has to propose under the vigilant eye of a chaperone.

"One noticeable difference in the men in our country and yours is that while American men are nice to work with they are not very gallant. They lack the little niceties in their ways with women. "Still," they concluded smiling, "We like them, for their hearts are in the right place anyhow."

I Took a Bit of Earth.

By Katherine Smith.

I took a bit of earth and drops
Of morning dew,
I planted tiny seeds and watched
Them as they grew.

I took a bit of paper, smooth
And coolly pale,
And tried to write of beauty, but
With no avail.

There was no bloom—but when the small
And yearning seed
Was flowering, I wrote no lines
There was no need.

Summer Wear Sports Frocks Made of Wool

Challis Appears, Bright in New Colors and Designs.

Wool is going to be worn right through the spring and summer. Already the outstanding designers here and abroad are making attractive spectator and active sports frocks of woolen materials. But the weight is so very light that this usually warm fabric will enable the wearer to keep quite comfortable on all but the hottest days.

When lightweight woolens are mentioned one naturally thinks of old-fashioned challis. But this material that has been used for years and years in tiny all-over patterns is now coming out in exciting new versions. Hand-blocked Persian and Mexican designs are most striking. Even the familiar all-over prints have been brightened to the extent that they are actually vivid. Challis in plain pastel tones will be used for dress-up sports frocks and informal afternoon dresses. Some of the lovely new colors are seadew green, rose quartz and moon gold.

Alpaca, linen worsted, mesh and basket weaves, as well as linen and mohair mixture, will be extremely good for spring. The linen and mohair mixture is a porous-woven material with a rough, wiry texture that makes it excellent for tailored coats and suits. Linen worsted is used for plain dresses, separate jackets and swagger suits. Alpaca, in dark tones, as chrysanthemum brown, raspberry and rasin, makes one and two-piece frocks. Cream, lemon or white organdy accent the dark alpacas. Mesh and basket weaves are at their best in capes and coats, although good-looking dresses are made from some of the very lightweight ones.

Opera Opening Is Brilliant With Rich Furs and Jewels

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, in a Scarlet Velvet Gown, a Striking Figure; Wore Diamond Stomacher, Necklace and Brooch.

New York Dec. 27 (AP).—Tiaras, long velvet coats and lots of scarlet will be fashionable, it appears, for the opera this winter.

Jewels and lavish furs were much in evidence, but the Tiaras were what particularly struck the eye at the opening of the Metropolitan.

Mrs. Vornelius Vanderbilt was a striking figure in a scarlet velvet ensemble trimmed with blue fox. There were whispers that Mrs. Vanderbilt had worn this same costume to the opera last year, but with different jewels. Last night she wore a large, old-fashioned diamond stomacher, a diamond necklace and a diamond brooch to hold the wide scarlet bandeau around her head.

A guest of Mrs. Vanderbilt, Lady Honor Channon, the former Lady Guinness, of London, had a magnificent tiara almost three inches high, made of diamonds and platinum. Her costume was a gown and cape of pale blue crepe.

Mrs. Vincent Astor, making one of her rare appearances at an opera opening, wore a long red velvet coat trimmed with sable, and a dress of white satin.

Eileen Gillespie, fiancee of young John Jacobs Astor, had on a black velvet coat trimmed with white fox. Under it was a white satin evening gown, very low in the back, with diamond shoulder straps.

Among the younger women, Princess Alexis M'Dvani, the former Barbara Hutton, stood out both for her beauty and her costume. Her severe black velvet coat covered a dress of stiffened black chiffon with a Quaker-like fichu of white chiffon. A striking jade necklace and earrings added a note of color.

Mrs. Oliver Jennings wore a red and gold lame coat trimmed with sable, a white satin crepe dress, and a tiara of gold trimmed with little balls.

Mrs. William Francis Gibbs, daughter of Paul D. Cravath, chairman of the board of the opera, had a long scarlet velveteen coat with a quilted collar, and a black lace dress buttoned high at the neck.

An ermine coat and a white crepe dress bordered with leopard made the costume of Mrs. Henry Gassaway Davis 3rd, daughter of Mrs. Vanderbilt, while Mrs. Robert Goelet wore a long, fitted black velvet wrap and a tiara of black velvet.

Frieda Hempel, the singer, wore a long ermine coat and a dress of sheer cerise crepe. Besides an ermine coat and a black velvet gown, Mrs. Edward H. Manville had an ostrich feather fan of lavender.

Filipinos to Hold Banquet In Memory of Dr. Rizal

Under the auspices of the Visayan Circle of Washington, Inc., a memorial banquet and literary program will be held at the Hamilton Hotel Saturday evening, December 30, in honor of the thirty-seventh anniversary of the death of Dr. Jose Rizal, a Filipino hero and martyr. Rizal was executed during the Spanish regime in the islands because of the social reforms he openly advocated before the Spanish officials.

Charles Edward Russell, author and publist, the only American honorary member of the circle, will be the principal speaker. Hon. Elpidio Quirino, majority floor leader of the Philippine Senate, will also address the audience.

Wives Rule the Home Budget And Have Their Careers, Too

Mrs. Carmen Melencio Says Marriage Is No Hindrance to Filipino Women Who Wish to Enter the Professions; They Lead in Many Fields.

By Elizabeth Young.

Independence may be the goal for which the Philippine Islands are striving, but it is a forgotten mile post in the history of Filipino women.

"Since time immemorial, Filipino women have held the family purse-strings, planned the family budget, collected the family earnings and met the family expenses," Mrs. Carmen Aguinaldo Melencio, in Washington with the Philippine independence delegation, told a Post reporter yesterday.

"Wives are consulted regarding financial investments, and when they don't approve, more than likely the investment is not made," she said. "Filipino women are held to have instinctive judgment as to good and bad investments.

"Marriage is no obstacle to the careers of Filipino women. Married women engage in business and the professions. Most of the retail trade on the Islands is conducted by women, many of them married. Two-thirds of the teaching profession are women, and we believe that married women make the most efficient teachers, especially for the kindergarten and primary grades.

"There are Filipino women doctors, dentists, pharmacists, editors. Last November our women were granted the right to vote. But before that time, they exerted tremendous influence in an indirect way—which, after all, is women's best way—in the national trend of thought."

Not So Wealthy.

"We have our educational and social leaders; our philanthropists and welfare workers, who are busy throughout the year helping unfortunate people. We can not, however, approach in magnitude the philanthropic work you do in America, because our people are not so wealthy."

Mrs. Melencio does much charitable work herself, having been a member of the board of directors of the Associated Charities in the Philippines, joint chairman of the Antituberculosis Society and chairman of this year's financial drive of the American Red Cross in the Philippines.

For 12 years, since her graduation in 1921 from Wellesley College for Women, near Boston, Mrs. Melencio has been influential in the cultural life of the Philippines.

Sent to this country in 1919 by the Philippine government as an honor student to study normal school methods at the University of Illinois, at Champaign, Ill., and to finish at Wellesley, she returned to her native land to teach. Within six months after her return, her efficiency record as a teacher won her the job of district school supervisor over 104 teachers and more than 5,000 students.

Editor of Magazine.

This brilliant, beautiful daughter of Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo—leader of the Filipino insurrection which followed the Spanish-American War of 1898—was further promoted this year by being made editor of the Philippine Teachers Digest.

The promotion pleased her for another reason than recognition of ability. Her editorial post enables her to continue her educational work and at the same time keep in closer touch with her family.

"I can handle the editorial work at home, by having a stenographer come every day to the house," said Mrs. Melencio. "It is much nicer than being in an office all day. I can be there when the children come in from school, and when my husband gets home in the evening. I think woman's place is the home, although I shouldn't say so. I haven't always stayed there." She laughed. "And while both my father and my husband were for woman suffrage, I was not. Not that I disapprove of it, exactly, but only that I feel the indirect method of influence in National affairs is just as effective for women."

Her two daughters, Ameurfina, aged 10, and Emilina, 8, saw snow for the first time on their present visit to Washington, and were delighted with it. Like all Filipino children, they enjoy the Christmas custom of receiving and exchanging gifts, but they were never taught the Santa Claus myth.

In School Here.

After the holidays they will be enrolled in the exclusive Friends School here, which has had such famous pupils as the children of the late Theodore Roosevelt, Charles A. Lindbergh in his boyhood and the Princess Setsu, wife of the heir apparent to the Japanese throne.

Mrs. Melencio will turn her Washington visit to account by studying teaching methods used in Washington schools and other schools throughout the country, seeking possible improvements to recommend to the Philippine school system on her return to Manila.

And while here, she will visit her "American mother," Miss Sophie C. Hart, head of the English department at Wellesley College.

"My mother died when I was young, and I, being the eldest daughter, was always my father's—what do you call it?—his 'right-hand man.' I took care of him. He felt very badly when I was going away to the United States, but the government had chosen me, and it was an honor we could not decline.

"When I was a student here, Miss Hart was so kind to me, so like my own mother, that I have always called her, 'my American mother,'" said Mrs. Melencio. "We have kept in touch through letters, and I am very happy at the opportunity to see her again."

Has Many Duties.

Editing a magazine and engaging in philanthropic work, directing a household which numbers six servants besides her two children and her husband, Mrs. Melencio still finds time for a great deal of social life.

"Oh, yes," she said, "we play bridge; see the movies; go to teas; dance. There is scarcely any difference between life in Manila and life in Washington."

On board the steamer President Roosevelt, en route to San Francisco last month, Mrs. Melencio, wearing one of the beautiful national costumes which Filipino women reserve for festive and formal occasions, won first prize for being most becomingly gowned. She wore the same gown at a recent social occasion at Washington's smart Sulgrave Club.

Her husband, whom she met in Washington during her student days at Wellesley, and married at Alexandria, Va., in 1921, is assistant attorney general with the Philippine department of justice. He accompanied the Philippine independence delegation here as technical adviser. He is a graduate of the Georgetown Law School, and was formerly a member of the United States insular service, stationed at Havana.

Beauty Balms Cheaply Made In the Kitchen

Yeast-and-Milk Facial, Soda Dentifrice, When Purse Is Flat.

If you've spent every nickel you own for gifts, and don't know how you're going to renew your dentifrice and cleansing cream supply, be not cast down.

There's a happy alternative.

Go to the pantry.

There's no better dentifrice for keeping teeth dazzlingly white than twice-a-day use of baking soda. It's particularly good for the woman with an inclination to acidity.

And a cake of yeast mixed to a paste with warm milk, patted gently on the face and left for five minutes before rinsing away with cold water, is said by a Hollywood star noted for her beauty to be the very best cleansing application she has ever used.

And for those who can't manage the price of a facial for every one of the holiday parties, here's an excellent suggestion for relaxing facial muscles: Move the eyes hard to the right, hard to the left, hard up, hard down, and then close them and see black! Try this exercise several times a day, and see if you don't get a definite feeling of relaxation not only in the face and eyes, but all over the body.

And if you're tending to plumpness, put your car in the garage for a month or two and rent or buy a bicycle. If you shrink from bicycling as a form of exercise still a bit unseasonable for the Eastern winter climate, try walking. There is no form of exercise for both reducing and building up flesh in all the proper places quite so effective and exhilarating—once you get in the way of it—as walking.

Mineralized Milk Newest Baby Food

Stimulates Production of Red Blood Corpscles.

Madison, Wis., Dec. 28 (U.P.).—Mineralized milk, to overcome anemic conditions in infants, has been deeloped by University of Wisconsin scientists, Dr. C. A. Elvehjem announced today.

The new food, not yet tried on a large scale with children, but tested thoroughly in laboratory research, is to stimulate hemoglobin production in the blood. It is this element that is deficient in the blood of a majority of children.

"In spite of the extremely favorable attitude toward the nutritive value of whole milk," Dr. Elvehjem said, "no one has been able, as far as we know, to rear even a mammal from weaning to maturity on whole cow's milk alone."

He said research shows milk to be lacking in iron, copper and manganese—elements needed to correct anemic conditions in the blood stream.

"Mineralized milk looks like a complete food," he commented, adding that it has been tried successfully on student volunteers.

Inflated Oyster Latest Trick to Fool Public

Chicago, Dec. 28 (AP).—City Sealer Joe Grein, who maintains he knows his bivalves, today decried a new form of inflation—that of the oyster.

"The oyster," Grein declared, "is one of the world's greatest delicacies. I know. I've been around the world and know my oysters. But, in Chicago, and I doubt not that elsewhere in this land of oyster-lovers, dishonest citizens conspire to cheat lovers of the sea food.

"They are," he charged, "inflating oysters. My inspectors have discovered that in at least ten cases dishonest dealers have been making old soaks of oysters. They soak them in water overnight, thereby cheating the public of its due."

By Nelson B. Bell.

Since the author of the original stage play himself adapted it to the purposes of the cinema, there can be no quibbling over the fidelity with which "Counsellor at Law" is converted into celluloid drama.

Although in perhaps slightly modified measure, the movement of the drama of a successful lawyer, involved in professional, domestic and other difficulties, still reflects a typical cross-section of metropolitan New York life with a great number and wide diversity of characters playing important parts in the development of a complex but interesting narrative. Only in the opulence of its settings has the familiar play that served Paul Muni so well been appreciably altered and this is all to its advantage.

It is inevitable, of course, that comparison be drawn between the portrayal of George Simon offered by Mr. Muni and the performance of the same role now brought to the screen by John Barrymore. There is, as a matter of fact, little to choose between them. It is nevertheless incontestible that Mr. Muni gave much more the impression of an immigrant youth who came over in the sterage and underwent all manner of hardship to attain his high place in the legal profession than it is possible for the youngest of the Barrymores to impart. There is never a moment when Barrymore seems so much lower East Side as he does upper Park avenue.

Not a Simple Story.

The story, as will be remembered by those who enjoyed it with Mr. Muni at the National last season, involves the tremendous scope of personality and situation with which Elmer Rice imbues all his plays. It is a creation that aims not at a single, simple conflict, but at a scattered interest, embracing Communist activities in Union Square, a son's devotion to his mother, a telephone operator's ominous addiction to romance, a wife's perfidy, a rival lawyer's essay at disbarment proceedings. Simon's eager and successful attempt to checkmate his sinister enterprises, the staunch devotion of his secretary, and a myriad minor office attachments, humorous antagonisms and petty misunderstandings.

All these ramifications of plot, Mr. Rice contrives to keep in motion in the film version of his play just as he did when it was enacted on the stage. In point of fact, a considerable stability is lent the drama by the inclusion in the present cast of several who played the same roles during the original stage run and its revival after a brief internal during which Mr. Muni, if memory serves, made a picture.

Original Players in Cast.

Those who repeat former successes are J. Hammond Dailey, a former Washington stock favorite, in the role of Charlie McFadden; Elmer Brown, as Francis Clark, the rival and sanctimonious barrister with a life-size skeleton in his own closet; Conway Washburn, as Arthur Sandler, a part of lesser consequence, and T. J. Manning, as Peter J. Malone.

Major interest, however, of course is centered in the Barrymore performance, the inspiring faithfulness of Regina Gordon, the secretary, played by Bebe Daniels; the duplicity of the wife, assumed by Doris Kenyon; the telephone operator of Isabel Jewell and the richly comic part of the mother, created on the stage by that beloved veteran, Jennie Moscowitz, and now impersonated with comparable success by Clara Langsner.

Barrymore Vehement.

Mr. Barrymore runs a little unfortunately to extremes of vehemence on occasion, but in the large view of Simon, the lawyer, a believable if not wholly sympathetic character. Miss Daniels rather outdoes Miss Kenyon, no doubt by virtue of an infinitely more appealing role, and Miss Langsner and Isabel Jewell account splendidly for the comedy leavening so essential to the balance of the cumulatively intense and melodramatic scenes.

Supplementing the feature are no more auxiliary attractions than should be included with a subject of such known value as "Counsellor at Law." Last night's capacity audience quite obviously was not enticed into the theater by any promise of short-reel preeminence but by the recognized worth of the Rice drama.

Nevertheless, in addition to the screen's principal New Year's offering, they saw an interesting issue of the Universal News, with Graham McNamee expounding his pungent interpretation of what the cameramen deemed important events, the usual announcements of allurements the future holds and a new release of that amiable satire called the "Goofytone News" in which the usual processes of the casual newsreel are mercilessly pilloried.

Altogether a bill well worth going to and enjoying.

Mr. Charles Warren McClintock, doing his second hitch—as celebrated in this space yesterday—as first mate on old Capt. Francois Philippe Morse's sturdy barque, the S. S. Frantic, calls up to remonstrate with this column for having made him a blood relative of the McClintics of Katharine Cornell renown. Guthrie McClintic, who is by way of being Mr. Katharine Cornell, of course spells it McClintic and the mere fact that First Mate Charles Warren McClintock was long associated with Mr. and Mrs. McClintic is in no sense justification for misspelling his honorable patronymic. Hence this abject genuflection and humble apology. But, even at that, there are too many ways of spelling the name, by at least one!

That Perennial Rumor.

The film colony is placing little credence in the perennial rumor that has sprung up again that Greta Garbo is mulling over a plan to return to her native Sweden as an independent producer.

While the star herself could not be reached for comment yesterday, according to late wire report, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer officials cited a three-year contract signed upon her last summer's return from an extended trip abroad. There is thought to be little likelihood that the studio would consent to an abrogation of this document or even consent to its temporary suspension.

A number of top ranking stars have turned their hands to producing after reaching the so-called pinnacle of success. Outstanding in this group, of course, are Mary Pickford and Gloria Swanson.

Mr. Ray's Debacle.

Many of the male stars also have pursued the same course—notably Charles Spencer Chaplin, Harold Lloyd and a few others of apparently lasting eminence. The most conspicuous example of a star of the first flight hoist by his own petard was afforded by Charles Ray, who squandered a fabulous reputation and huge fortune in an ill-judged attempt to achieve a lasting immortality as a screen "Myles Standish."

Miss Garbo is not doing so badly, and probably realizes it.

Washington is notoriously a city that can "take it." That was proved last season when "Of Thee I Sing" played one of its record weeks in the National Capital, despite the fact that it poked a world of fun—a little of it slightly barbed—at the Federal establishment. It is the confident expectation that "Let 'em Eat Cake," the sequel to "Of Thee I Sing," coming to the National the week of January 8, will prosper proportionately, even if the town's political complexion has changed.

Fashion's Foibles.

Thirty-six changes of costume form the amazing wardrobe required by Kay Francis in the stellar role in "The House on 56th Street," her most recent Warner Bros.' picture, which comes to the Earle today.

This is not only a record for Miss Francis, but is a high-water mark for the studio.

Opennig in the first years of the present century, the drama comes to a climax in 1933. Thus Miss Francis' wordrobe constitutes a panoramic review of what American women have worn for three decades. In fact, a complete cycle is established, since the gowns the star wears in the final sequences of the picture bear a striking resemblance to those of 30 years before.

Complete Cycle.

"Fashion history is repeating itself," said Miss Francis on the set one day, "to such an extent that, with the creators of international styles decreeing that the modes of 1900 shall be the modes of 1933-34, I could duplicate what I wear at the opening of the picture and be practically in style."

The story is of a beautiful and popular chorus girl who weds a millionaire New York clubman and is idealistically happy until she innocently becomes involved in the death of her former lover.

Standing Aghast Note.

"Cinderella"

A different and effective adaptation of the old, old story of "Cinderella" was presented at the National Theater yesterday morning by the Children's Theater of New York. In all essentials, the fairy story remains the same, but the addition of comedy wherever possible made the morning a big one for all the tots in the audience.

Gaffer, the old gardner, and his stuttering son, Hodge, played by George Hare and Thomas Manders, respectively, though created by Clare Tree Major for the occasion, put over the funny scenes in a manner pleasing even to those who prefer shedding uninterrupted tears over poor little Cinderella.

Gene Magnus was the traditionally lovely slavey of the title. The step-mother role was done splendidly by Philippa Bevans, while June White and Madeliene Fales as her two daughters afforded excellent support. The sisterly scrapping of the latter two supplied more comedy and extracted self-conscious giggles from many little sisters in the audience.

The magic appearance in the fireplace of Dorothy Major as the fairy godmother behind a transparent screen, which made her look like a vision, was one of the high spots for the little ones who watched with amazement the "disappearance" of the screen and her stepping forth into the room. When Cinderella exclaimed, "God-mother, look at my shoes!" the juvenile audience rose en masse to inspect them.

The costumes and scenery of an ancient day were colorful and convincing, even with the accompaniment of modernized dialogue. In fact, the performance was almost without exception smooth and entertaining to such a degree as to make the coming of the next play in the series sponsored by the Women's International League an eagerly anticipated event.

Pennsylvania Price On Rum to Be Low

Will Undersell Ontario on Some Brands.

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 28 (AP).—Pennsylvania's 237 State liquor stores, opening Tuesday, will undersell Canadian stores on a number of standard whiskies.

Prices will range from $1.85 a quart for American blended whisky to $7 for "genuine, prewar, bottled in bond American rye."

Answering critics of the prices Pennsylvania plans to charge, Robert S. Gawthrop, chairman of the newly created liquor control board, asserted today that the prices are fair and in many instances below those of Ontario.

Police Study Story Of Woman Found Shot

Hollywood, Dec. 28 (AP).—An investigation of the mysterious shooting of Mrs. Gloria Craig, 23, wife of John Craig, film producer, was started today by detectives who said they were not satisfied with her explanation that a purse snatcher wounded her.

The attractive brunette was found wandering on a street last night. She had been shot through the chest and stabbed in one arm. Her condition is critical.

Secret Treaty Rumors Link Tokyo, Berlin

Japanese Fear Isolation and Russia's Power, Paris Hears.

(Copyright, 1933, by the United Press.)

Paris, Dec. 28.—A new note of suspicion was injected into disarmament efforts today by persistent rumors that Japan was seeking secret accord with Nazi Germany.

The United Press informant said that Japan fears isolation following United States recognition of Russia, with the possible result that Russians may be permitted to manufacture American fighting planes under an extension of United States patents, and hence build up a powerful air fleet for use in the Far East.

Furthermore, both Japan and Germany have withdrawn from the League of Nations, and neither is cooperating in Geneva disarmament efforts. The Japanese Ambassador to France, Naotake Sato, recently appointed, explained Tokyo's position when he said that Japan felt the present arms discussions were essentially European. When they again touch on world affairs, he said, Japan will return.

U. S. Also Stands Aloof.

The United States likewise has practically withdrawn from the arms discussions, now proceeding informally, pending resumption of the formal parley in Geneva the latter part of next month, and for similar reasons. Washington has let it be known that the United States feels the present conversations are political rather than purely on world armaments.

Meanwhile, it is increasingly apparent that France is determined to make Germany solely responsible if world disarmament efforts collapse. This, observers agreed, appeared to be the principal outcome of yesterday's momentous session of the council of ministers, with President Albert Lebrun.

France now intends to lead in the return of the powers to Geneva, where they will seek to resume drafting of a disarmament treaty, to be submitted to Germany for approval—thereby making Germany responsible, whether she attends or not.

Three-Point Program.

The United Press understands France and her allies have reached three main decisions:

1. France can not accept Chancellor Hitler's suggestions as a basis for negotiations, particularly his demand that Germany increase her army to 300,000.

2. Preliminary conversations with Hitler showed that negotiations can be continued through diplomatic channels, but final arms negotiations must be conducted at Geneva.

3. As proof of her sincerity, France will present her disarmament proposals at Geneva, embodying substantial sacrifices of French armaments.

Paris, Dec. 28 (AP).—Ambassador Andre Francois-Poncet, fresh from conversations with Chancellor Hitler, reported today to Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour and was told that France will give a flat "No" as a reply to the Chancellor's armament demands.

Besides offering to destroy half her bombing planes if other nations will do the same, French leaders intend to propose the internationalization of all aviation at the Geneva disarmament conference, it was learned.

The suggestion regarding the bombers would involve elimination of a proposed 4 or 5-year arms test period to which the French have heretofore clung.

Slover Will Quit As Mayor Sunday

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 28 (AP).—S. L. Slover, publisher of the Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch and the Virginian-Pilot, on Sunday will surrender the mayoralty of Norfolk to W. R. L. Taylor, member of the council since 1930.

Col. Slover deferred resignation as president of the council until such time as the city's financial problems "approach satisfactory solution."

Britten Asks Embargo.

Complete embargo of French wines and brandy in retaliation for that nation's default in its war debt payments was demanded yesterday by Representative Britten, (Republican), Illinois.

Balanced Budget Vital Job For Congress, Reed Believes

Senator Gives His Views on Tasks Now Facing Legislators.

(Editor's note: What is Congress going to do, starting next week? The views of one of the foremost Republican senators on this question are given below as written by him at request of the Associated Press).

By Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania.

There are many things which the coming Congress could do which would be helpful to the country, but I am not sure that it will do any of them.

It is my impression that the country is a step ahead of Congress, as is frequently the case, and that it may be necessary to elect another Congress before we can begin to look forward to the end of the era of experimentation.

In the meantime I can only hope that we will do fewer unwise things than we did in the last Congress, particularly in connection with the currency.

Test of Strength Due.

As to what Congress will do, I am sure of only one thing: That there is bound to be a test of strength between the sound-money forces and those who favor inflation in the form of greenbacks or other unsecured currency.

I should like to see the President's power to manipulate the currency curtailed.

To my mind, the country is in grave danger of uncontrolled inflation of the sort which in the past has brought disaster to France, Russia and Germany.

I find that people are deeply stirred over this danger and I am hopeful that they will demand an early return to a sound currency based on gold, of which we have all we need for all reasonable purposes without further debasing the dollar by gold purchases abroad.

As to what Congress ought to do, I can only offer the following suggestions:

It ought to balance the budget. The National debt is increasing at an alarming rate. On August 31, 1919, it reached its all-time peak as a result of the World War, of $26,596,701,648.

Reaches Low Mark.

Eleven years later, December 31, 1930, it reached the lowest point it has touched since the war, $16,026,087,087.

In the intervening years the debt was reduced at the rate of almost $1,000,000,000 a year.

On December 20, 1933—within this week—it stood at $23,812,723,743, and the Federal Government found itself committed to expenditures which by the end of the present fiscal year, July 1 next, will bring the debt up to its all-time peak and probably above it.

In the last three years, in other words, the debt has been increasing at the rate of more than $3,000,000,000 a year. And nothing is being done to stop it.

While cutting the pay of postal clerks and Government employes on low salaries, the Government has been spending money without restraint in other directions, without any sense of responsibility to the taxpayers who have to foot the bill.

This can not go on indefinitely, and I do not believe that it can go on very much longer without destroying the Government's credit and making inflation inevitable. It is not popular to economize, but it is frequently necessary, and it is certainly necessary now.

Hits Processing Taxes.

Congress could well repeal the processing taxes on foodstuffs and clothing. People are paying more for the necessaries of life than they were six months ago by many millions of dollars. I am sure they are aware of this, and I feel equally sure they will make themselves heard.

It could well repeal the whole system of farm bonuses and subsidies. I know that our Pennsylvania farmers have found the cost of things they buy rising faster than the prices of things they sell, and I think farmers of the South and Middle West will find this to be true also, and demand that the Government leave farming to farmers instead of professors.

Recovery is on its way. It is farther advanced in other countries than it is in the United States. What we need in this country now, more than anything else, is confidence, certainty, knowledge that there will be no more experiments to make people fearful of the future.

If the Government will put its house in order, if Congress will use a little common sense by really balancing the budget, pass the necessary appropriation and revenue bills and then go home, it will have rendered the greatest service it could render, and we can look forward confidently to better times.

(Copyright, 1933.)

John Barrymore Film Chosen Best in 1933

New York, Dec. 28 (U.P.).—"Topaze," starring John Barrymore, has been chosen as the best American motion picture of 1933 by the National Board of Review, and one of Walt Disney's "Silly Symphonies" is included among the first 10 best.

The complete list includes "Berkeley Square," "Cavalcade," "Little Women," "Mama Loves Papa," "The Pied Piper," "She Done Him Wrong," "State Fair," "Three Cornered Moon," "Topaze" and "Zoo in Budapest."

Two Slaying Suspects Held.

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—Two more men were arrested today in the slaying of Archbishop Leon Tourian, stabbed with a butcher knife as he led a procession to the altar of Holy Cross Armenian Church last Sunday. Five men had previously been arrested.

Reports Still Link Doughton To Tariff Post

House Leaders Unable to Confirm Story He Will Be Appointed.

Persistent rumors that Representative Robert L. Doughton (Democrat), North Carolina, is slated for appointment to the United States Tariff Commission, could not be confirmed last night by House Democratic leaders or ranking members of the House Ways and Means Committee, of which Doughton is chairman.

Doughton himself laughed at the rumors before he departed for North Carolina over the holidays. However, the report still persisted on Capitol Hill yesterday.

Representative Samuel B. Hill (Democrat), Washington, would succeed Doughton as committee chairman if the latter resigns from the House, said nothing but "rumors" had reached his ears.

House Democratic Leader Joseph W. Byrns said it was "news" to him, adding:

"This is the first I have heard of it."

Some members suggested Doughton might prefer remaining chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee to a seat on the Tariff Commission, even if he were made chairman of that body.

Reports had it that the North Carolina Representative would succeed to the vacancy created by the death of James W. Collier, former Mississippi member of Congress.

State Asks Bids On Road Projects

Richmond, Dec. 28 (AP).—The department of highways today called for bids on three construction projects. They will be opened January 18. The projects follow:

Macadam roadway of 1.2 miles, Route 340, Warren County, near Front Royal; macadam roadway, miles, Bedford County, from Forest to the Campbell County line; Compostella Bridge, 1,533 feet, over the Eastern Branch of the Elizabeth River, near Norfolk.

The projects had been advertised previously, but bids had been rejected.

N. Y. Senate Democrats Win One Vote Control

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—Control of the State Senate went to the Democrats today in a dull contest in the twenty-first senatorial district in the Bronx, where Lazarus Joseph (Democrat), polled 11,90 votes, and his Republican opponent, Jacob Elkin, polled only 3,202.

The socialist candidate, Samuel Orr, trailed with 3,286 votes. The election gives the Democrats 2 senators to the Republicans' 25.

World Aero Clubs Decide To Meet Here

N.A.A. Leaders Launch Plans for Coming Convention.

The 1934 conference of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, world association of aero clubs, will be held in Washington next October, it was announced yesterday by former Senator Hiram Bingham, president of the National Aeronautic Association.

The N. A. A. yesterday received a cable from Godfrey L. Cabot, former N. A. A. president and a vice president of the international federation, stating that the association's invitation to hold the next gathering here had been accepted. The federation is now in session at Cairo, Egypt.

Distinguished aviators and aviation enthusiasts of the world will be brought to the Capital by the meeting, which, according to Mr. Bingham, will be of great importance to American aviation.

Thirty-four nations are represented in the federation, which maintains headquarters at Paris. It was founded in 1905 and has as its purpose the international aspects of air records, competition and other phases of aviation. Prince Georges Bibesco of Rumania is president.

Immediately upon receipt of the news that the next meeting would be here, Senator Bingham began selection of a committee to plan the affair. A conference was held at N. A. A. headquarters to make preliminary plans. Among those who attended were Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of the Army Air Corps; Rear Admiral Ernest L. King, chief of Naval Aeronautics, and representatives of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, the United States Chamber of Commerce and the State Department.

Pageant Planned In Grace Church

Yule Scenes to Be Given Sunday Evening.

A religious pageant, depicting New Testament scenes from the vision of Zacharias in the temple to the arrival of the Wise Men at the Manger, will be presented Sunday evening in Grace Episcopal Church under direction of the rector, the Rev. Meade Bolton McBryde.

A cast of 25 will take part. The role of the Virgin Mary will be played by Mrs. Margaret Schneider, that of Joseph by Jerry Smith and that of Zacharias by Paul C. Allen. Elizabeth will be interpreted by Mrs. T. M. Rudderforth.

Jack Dulin, Harry Kendrick and Stephen Turpin will be the Three Wise Men, and Lucille Hart will take the part of the Angel Gabriel. Margaret Hart, Catherine Hart, Margaret Wise and Catherine Rudderforth will be the four shepherds. The altar boys will be Francis and Athur Dickerson and the angels guarding the manger will be impersonated by Bettie Hall and Virginia Hinson.

Cosmopolitan Club Holds Christmas Party

More than 100 members of the Cosmopolitan Club and their families were entertained yesterday at an annual Christmas party in the Carlton Hotel.

An entertainment program was provided and gifts were distributed among children. Attendance prizes were awarded to Edward A. Rule, William L. King and Lewis Strieter.

$96,500 Given For Treasury Improvements

Clean Air, Faster Elevators and a Cleaning Up Are Assured.

A renovized Treasury building, featuring conditioned air, a clean exterior and high-speed elevators, is in prospect as the result of a $96,500 allotment yesterday by the Public Works Administration.

The new elevators are intended to save stairways and tempers. They will replace the three slow lifts now in use at the Fifteenth and F entrance. At present any one going to the fourth floor has to walk a flight because these elevators go only to the third floor.

The other two elevators on the Fifteenth street side are of later vintage and go all the way to the top. They will not be altered. A total of $60,000 was granted for elevator replacements.

For repairing and cleaning the exterior, $36,500 was allotted. The stone will be cleaned throughout, joints pointed, nicks patched and the outside otherwise brightened up.

A $1,000,000 allotment was made recently for air conditioning in several unnamed public buildings, and $140,000 of this amount will be expended on and in the Treasury. What other structures will get similar improvements has not been announced.

Woman Threatens To Leap in River

Police on Lookout After Wife Phones Mate,

Harbor police watched the waterfront last night for Mrs. Lucy Gertrude Evans, 27, of 1328 E street northeast, who telephoned her husband, William Evans, Wednesday night that she was going to jump into the Potomac.

Mrs. Evans had not returned home late yesterday, and officers, on the lookout throughout the city, had failed to find her. At the time of her call to her husband, she informed him she was at the wharf, Evans told police.

Drys to Meet on Heels of Rum Dealers Here, Map New Battle

Capital Will Boil With Pro and Con of Liquor.

The day after the National Beer and Liquor Dealers Association closes its first convention here in January to organize its members into "a greater and more powerful influence" than their well-organized dry opponents," the Antisaloon League will open its first convention since repeal. The drys in turn will begin a campaign "against any form of liquor licensing and organize to elect drys to as many offices as possible."

The first convention of the National Beer and Liquor Dealers Association will take place January 4 to 6, with headquarters at the Willard Hotel. Approximately 1,000 dealers are expected to be present. The Antisaloon League of America, will hold its forty-first annual convention January 7 to 10. The meetings open to the public will be at the Calvary Baptist Church. Business meeting will be at the Dodge Hotel.

"Individually we can do little, united we can become a greater and more powerful influence than our well-organized dry opponents," Francis Clay Harley, convention chairman of the liquor dealers association said. "The proponents of prohibition have been defeated, but they are still alive and active. They will continue to wage war. They will attempt to tax and legislate us out of existence. There is but one way to fight them, and that is by effective organization."

On the other hand, D. C. Christeau, convention manager for the Antisaloon League, declared that his organization would probably be more active now than it has ever been during the 41 years of its existence.

"We are just going to bat," he declared. "The Government might have changed the laws, but they can't change the nature of intoxicating drinks. Until liquor is as harmless as milk, we'll fight it."

Christeau said that the three major problems before the 350 officials of the Antisaloon League to meet here would be extensive plans for education work against intoxicating liquors, organization to elect drys wherever possible, and a campaign against the licensing of liquor and against all laws providing for its sale.

Last Tag Day

Office Closed Tomorrow and Deadline Sticks.

The time remaining for motorists to get their 1934 tags was abruptly reduced yesterday when Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer announced that the tag office of the Traffic Bureau would be closed all day tomorrow.

Saturday is a holiday for other Government workers, and Van Duzer said he would close the tag office to give these overworked clerks a rest. The office will be open until 9:30 o'clock tonight, however.

After midnight December 31, several thousand District motorists will be subject to arrest for driving with "dead tags" or violating the 18-hour parking law, Van Duzer estimated yesterday.

There will be no extension of time for 1933 tags, Van Duzer added. Ninety thousand Washingtonians have their 1934 license plates, while 20,000 have failed to get them, according to Van Duzer.

Wampler Gets 18MonthTerm, $10,000 Fine

Lawyer, Convicted of Tax Fraud, Won't Appeal, Counsel Says.

T. Morris Wampler, Washington attorney, yesterday was sentenced to 18 months in prison and fined $10,000 following his conviction in Federal Court in Baltimore, on a charge of evading income tax payments in 1930 and 1931.

The sentence was made by Judge W. Calvin Chestnut, before whom Wampler was tried. Before passing sentence the judge overruled a motion for a new trial. Wampler's attorney, Isaac L. Straus, told the court his client would not appeal.

In his argument prior to the sentence, Straus pointed out the Government's contention was that income derived by Wampler from Edward B. Dean, sr., Washington real estate dealer, was based on "fraud and deceit," and argued the Government should not profit from such.

The financial transactions which formed the basis of the Government's case started several years ago, when Dean brought action against two men and three women who were accused of extorting $100,000 from him. From this, the Government contended, Wampler received $60,000.

The Government also accused Wampler of having procured four women to perpetrate a badger game on Dean. Wampler's name was brought into the badger game during the trial of Norman S. Bowles, a disbarred attorney. Testimony showed that although Dean had paid $35,000 to Wampler to settle this claim, only $20,000 was paid to the attorney representing the complainant.

'Under Cover' Liquor Squad Formed Here

Members of New Vice Unit Will Operate on Rule of Secrecy.

Establishment of an "under cover" squad, to take over the functions of the gambling and liquor squads, was ordered yesterday by Superintendent of Police Ernest W. Brown. The new unit will begin operations January 1, with a personnel composed of officers known only to a few superior officers.

The unit will be headed by Lieut. George M. Little, who has been engaged for years in vice and liquor work. Lieut. Nelson O. Holmes, now in charge of the gambling squad, is to be transferred to the Tenth Precinct.

The identities of members of the new unit will be kept secret, according to Maj. Brown. He has instructed the men not to work from headquarters but to concentrate activities in the precincts to which they are assigned.

Formation of the squad was ordered by Maj. Brown after he received reports that gambling is on the increase.

The Fourth Precinct will be reestablished Monday, with Capt. Jeremiah Sullivan in command. The present Fourth Precinct, which covers the Southwest and Southwest sections, north of the waterfront, will be designated as the Fifth Precinct.

Miss Liberty to Lose Guard Of Soldiers at Her Base

A tentative agreement has been reached whereby Miss Liberty, guardian of New York Harbor, will lose the soldier boys quartered around her base "for utilitarian purposes" and be converted into a National monument exclusively.

The Statue of Liberty was transferred from the War Department to Interior last summer but the major portion of Bedloe Island, on which it rests, was retained for use as military quarters in connection with the Army post on nearby Governors Island.

Secretary Ickes, requesting that the island be turned over to the Interior Department's office of National Parks, Buildings and Reservations, told Secretary of War Dern:

"The island is none too large for a proper setting for this National and international monument; and the use of any part for utillitarian purposes is contrary to the conception and message of the monument."

Dern said he would favor a transfer if housing accomodations can be found elsewhere. So Ickes, in his capacity as public works administrator, is considering a PWA allotment to provide necessary housing at Forts Wadsworth and Jay for military peronnel now at Fort Wood on Bedloe Island.

Work will begin soon on repairing and waterproofing the statue with funds provided by the PWA.

Living Cost Data, Asked By President

Work on Survey Rushed to Reach Roosevelt Tomorrow.

A letter from President Roosevelt requesting a report on Washington living costs "at your earliest convenience" was received yesterday by Secretary Perkins.

Isadore Lubin, commissioner of labor statistics, said he hoped the study could be completed in time for submission to the White House tomorrow afternoon. He discredited reports that the survey might not be finished soon enough to warrant a possible partial or complete restoration of the 15 per cent Federal pay cut in January 15 salary checks.

Leaders of the employes were cheered by news of the Roosevelt letter. They considered it significant that the President should be sufficiently interested in the report to make special inquiry. The communication also was expected to cause the index to be expedited.

The impression prevailed among employes that President Roosevelt is as anxious for the report to disclose sharp increases in living costs as workers themselves. Though he is known to have kept in close touch with progress of the survey, the Chief Executive has refrained from public expression of his views on whether Government workers are underpaid.

Under the economy act passed by the last Congress, the President has authority, twice annually, at January 1 and July 1, to restore the pay cut within the 15 per cent range on the basis of official statistics.

Fifty experts and clerks have been working on the statistics several months, comparing present prices for necessities with those prevailing in 1928. Those assigned to the task have been working day and night for the last two weeks, disregarding all holidays.

Lubin said his report would include comprehensive interpretation of figures cited, but would contain no recommendations.

Printing Office Is Santa To 1,000 Children

The Government Printing Office's annual two-day Christmas Party closed yesterday with the entertainment of 1,000 children of colored employes. On Wednesday the same program of dancing, skirts, clowning and novelties, was presented for 1,500 white children.

The party was held in Harding Hall. It was elaborately decorated with a 20-foot Christmas tree and thousads of toys. Included among the entertainers were Frank Portillo, Jane Howard, Helen Clum, the Smithson-Hodgson dancers and the G. P. O. orchestra.

Observatory Cuts Time Error To 87 Ten-Thousandth Second

Navy Officer Hopes He Can Reduce Margin Next Year.

To the millions of persons who believed the observatory time was the best possible there will be a let-down when they learn the new time is a much superior product.

With the aid of a periscope from a submarine and an idea from a battleship's powder magazine, Capt. J. F. Hellweg, superintendent, has made the observatory the most accurate time-recording station in the world.

Human Element Discarded.

By taking the human element out of time determination, Capt. Hellweg, with the aid of astronomers at the observatory, including C. B. Watts, has developed a method to determine time more accurately than ever before.

Adaption of existing apparatus to perform the duties of men is the main feature of the new method, which has been in operation for six months. Capt. Hellweg said he had delayed announcing the new way until protected by patents.

The first step was to substitute pendulums and other devices for springs in observatory clocks, as gravity controls pendulums and is a constant force. Then a camera was substituted for visual recording at the telescope.

Clocks Underground.

To protect clocks from temperature inaccuracies Capt. Hellweg designed a chamber on the order of a battleship's powder magazine, and inclosed within a gigantic thermos bottle sunk into the ground.

The temperature range in this chamber is only one-tenth of one degree. It further protects the clocks from vibration and static electricity.

In order that reading will not in any way disturb the clocks, they are observed through a submarine periscope, the eye-piece of which is above ground.

Star Flashes Recorded.

Here is how the system works: Starlight flashes through a telescope at regular intervals into the camera, where it is recorded on a moving sensitized paper. The distance between the spots of starlight is computed into intervals of time. This record of time is electrically transmitted to the master clocks in the chamber. They control other clocks, the impulses of which finally are transferred by wire and radio in time signals to all the world.

The present error in the time determinations is eighty-seven ten-thousandths of a second. Capt. Hellweg said that he hopes the next year will see this extremely small error lessened.

Baker Guest at Luncheon.

Colleagues of Harold W. Baker, who has resigned as director of District construction to become city manager of Rochester, N. Y., tendered him a farewell luncheon at the Occidental Hotel yesterday. He leaves the District service today.

Sewage Plant Cost Is Set At 8 Millions

D. C. Likely to Seek Preliminary Funds From PWA.

Sanitary engineers engaged in a special study of Washington's sewage system yesterday submitted a preliminary report to Engineer Commissioner John C. Gotwals, outlining a plan for construction of a sewage disposal plant at Blue Plains, Va., at a cost of $8,000,000.

The plant could be built over a period of several years, it was explained, and would care for needs of the District until the latter reaches a population of 1,000,000 inhabitants or practically twice its present size.

Maj. Gotwals will study the report before deciding what course he will recommend to the other commissioners. He initimated yesterday, however, that he should like to start the project within the next year if funds can be obtained from the Public Works Administration.

However, because of the cost of the plant and the time required to build it, the PWA would hardly do more than award enough money to start the project and the District would have to carry on with Congressional appropriations.

The trio of engineers who submitted the report will continue their investigation into other sewer problems, and will make supplemental reports to the Commissioners. They are working under a special PWA grant of $40,000.

The report on the disposal plant pointed out that dumping of sewage in the Potomac has not yet reached a nuisance stage and is not a menace to health. However, the report added that within a few years such a plant will become a necessity.

Members of the board which made hte report are Harrison Eddy, John Gregory and Samuel Greeley.

Cold Snap Hits 42 Below Zero; Nation Shivers

Deaths and Ship Losses Mark Country-Wide Winter Suffering.

(Associated Press.)

Tragedies accompanied bitter cold that settled down yesterday in sections of the Northern States from Maine to Montana.

Although a measure of relief came to the Midwest there were plenty of frigid temperature reports, such as 42 below zero at Bolsters Mills, Me., 40 below at Cook, Minn., 30 below at Duluth, and 33 below at Pembina, N. Dak.

Lake Superior claimed the lives of three workmen when a heavy snow plow used to make a trail across St. Louis Bay between Duluth and Superior, Wis., crashed through the ice.

Three fishing craft still were missing off Portland, Me., after a fourth, the Sunapee, reported safely. A Coast Guard ice tug cut through 6 miles of ice in Lake Michigan off Chicago, located a schooner missing two days with a crew of three, and towed it to safety.

A dozen cities reported finding bodies in the streets of victims who had died of exposure.

Snowstorms, which had reached a maximum of two feet in some sections, turned into flurries over the eastern Great Lakes, and there were blizzards in the Adirondacks. Roads were piled high with drifts in some of the New England States.

It was the coldest in three years in New York City, the minimum being 9 above. Chicago had a high of 14 above, but it began dropping as night approached.

Temperatures in the Canadian Northwest ranged from 30 to 52 degrees below zero, but more temperate weather was expected to follow rain on the Pacific Coast.

Operation Today For Airplane Baby

Five-Month-Old Child's Life in Balance.

Baltimore, Dec. 28 (AP).—A brain operation which hospital attaches decsribed as "very dangerous" tonight was scheduled for 5-month-old Sue Trammell, the baby flown here from Houston, Tex., by Jimmy Wedell. It will be performed, they said, "some time tomorrow morning."

By the operation Dr. Walter E. Dandy, brain surgeon, hopes to cure the hydrocephalus, or water on the brain, from which the baby is suffering. Without the operation, it was said at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, where the child has been since early yesterday, the disease soon would destroy the brain. Another child of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Trammell, Sue's parents, died of the same disease.

The Trammells and Sue's grandmother, uncle and nurse, who made the 1,400-mile 11-hour airplane trip with her, were tense today as Dr. Dandy and his assistants kept the baby under constant observation in preparation for the ordeal.

Germany's Co-eds Gay; 10 Beaux Quota of Each

Berlin, Dec. 28 (AP).—There will be no shortage of dates for the co-eds in German universities next year—by order of Wilhelm Frick, Minister of the Interior.

He decreed today that only one woman student will be matriculated to each ten males. The object is to prevent an increase in the number of unemployed college graduates.

Birds' Lobby

Starlings in Capitol Dare Congress to Pass Law.

Congress, convening in a few days, is going to be confronted by a starling lobby. This was made practically certain yesterday when investigation disclosed nothing is being done to discourage the birds against roosting on the Capitol Building, a practice which is increasing daily.

"We're too busy looking out for Communists to pay much attention to the starlings," said Capt. William S. Orthman, Capitol Police head, when asked what was being done about the feathered menace.

Observers report also that trees in the White House grounds are fast becoming cluttered with the birds. The White House and Capitol invasions have their origin in the war conducted by Clifford Lanham, chairman of the starling nuisance abatement committee. Forced out of their roosting places on the District Building and in nearby trees, many have taken up new residences as distant as Georgetown.

The majority, however, simply have moved eastward into trees and buildings along Pennsylvania avenue below Ninth street. Now that they have reached the Capitol maybe there'll have to be a law

The Federal Diary

By Morgan Baker
(Trade-mark Applied For)

Replies from members of Congress are beginning to pour in on the Civil Service Reinstatement League, pledging support to the league's five-point program to improve the status of Government workers and dismissed employes.

BAKER.

The league, representing some 3,700 dismissed Federal employes with Civil Service ratings, met last night at the Pythian Temple, and further mapped its campaign to achieve the following:

1. Reinstatement of dismissed Civil Service employes.
2. Stopping of wholesale dismissals.
3. Restoration of pay.
4. Repeal of the marital clause, section 213, economy act.
5. Maintenance of the merit system.

Here are some excerpts from Congressional letters read at the fully attended meeting last night.

"I assure you that . . . I shall do everything in my power to assist the Civil Service employes." (Representative Matthew A. Dunn, of Pennsylvania.)

"I will give . . . fullest consideration if such legislation is considered in the Senate." (Senator Harry Flood Byrd, of Virginia.)

Today's Epitaph.

Beneath these blades
Lie two old maids—
Their souls consigned to Hades.
But shed no tears,
It calls for cheers—
They were noisy old ladies.

At break of day
They'd start to play
And sing in robust manner.
Right through the walls
And o'er the halls
You'd hear the damn pianner.

And they'd sing
Like everything—
You could not go on dreaming.
You'd tear your hair—
They did not care;
They just go right on screaming.

You plead for peace,
They would not cease,
Though your blood boiled within you.
Despite your walls
They'd run the scales—
The screeching would continue.

At last they're gone,
Have traveled on—
They're labeled now "unclassable."
The River Styx
Portrays their fix—
Marked "Perilous but Passable."

Wedell Plans To Build New Racing Plane

Speed Pilot to Enter English Race; Seeks 440-Mile Craft.

James R. Wedell, speed flier, who left Washington Airport yesterday in the plane which he flew 5-month-old Sue Trammell 1,400 miles to Johns Hopkins Hospital for treatment, has two difficult jobs cut out for 1934.

"Jimmie" plans to win the 11,000-mile race from England to Australia scheduled for fall, in addition to building a plane designed to make 440 miles per hour. He also plans to build the plane he will use in the England-Antipodes flight.

Although he holds the present land plane speed record, 305.33 miles per hour, the little flier is going after his own record with the new plane. This ship, he says, will have a landing speed of about 120 miles an hour.

He will build a slower plane for the 11,000-mile race, because fuel will have to be carried for long distances. Prizes of $55,000 have been posted and the race is expected to bring together the great fliers of the world.

Charts, maps and other material concerning the England-Australia hop provided by the War, Navy and Commerce Departments were in the red cabin plane when Wedell left for his home at Patterson, La.

Mystery Ends

Ickes Himself Reprieved Mall Trees, He Reveals.

The mystery of why the Mall development program suddenly was halted was solved yesterday. Secretary of the Interior Ickes stopped the work.

Ickes revealed it was by his order that cutting down of trees for the development of the Mall was stopped abruptly after 19 trees were cut.

"I was in the hospital, and I began to hear a lot about complaints over trees being cut down," he said. "I hate to see any tree cut, personally, and I thought it might be a good idea to go up there myself and see what can be done about saving some of them.

"I simply ordered the cutting to stop, and am going to visit the project myself in a day or two, and see if it really will be necessary to remove those trees," he said.

Vernon G. Owen Grand Master Of D. C. Masons

Elevated Deputy Succeeds Harry G. Kimball in Annual Elections.

Vernon G. Owen, former deputy grand master of Masons in the District, has been chosen grand master to succeed Harry G. Kimball, who has been head of Blue Lodge Masonry here since December 27, 1932.

As retiring grand master, Mr. Kimball was given a suite of dining-room furniture, a secretary, a parlor rug and a parlor lamp from the 44 lodges of his constituency. The gifts were presented by George W. Felde, of Warren G. Harding Lodge, No. 39. He also was given the gold diamond-studded jewel of a past grand master, the presentation being made by C. Fred Cooke.

Mr. Owen has been in business here for 35 years, operating the business established by his father.

Havana Police Battle Rioters

Fight Starts at American Store; Snipers Start Shooting Again.

Havana, Dec. 28 (AP).—Bullets spattered in Havana streets again tonight, starting with a vicious fight in the shopping district between labor pickets and employes of an F. W. Woolworth Co. store.

Police, answering a riot call, dispersed the crowd with clubs, firing at least 100 shots into the air. Snipers perched on roofs and housetops took advantage of the racket to begin firing on their own account in several sections of the city.

Soldiers, apparently aiming at the snipers, fired from positions close to police headquarters and several bullets entered upper windows of the Hotel Plaza, where American tourists are living.

Benjamin Fernandez Medina, Uruguayan minister to Cuba and prime mover in recent conciliation efforts, occupied the spotlight again tonight as reports of renewed conciliation movements were passed around.

Jefferson Caffery, President Roosevelt's personal representative, and all members of the diplomatic corps were luncheon guests of Admiral C. F. Freeman aboard the United States battleship Wyoming.

Chain Stores Survey Shows Profit Means

Study Here Reveals Low Cost Due Skipping Jobbers' Price.

(United Press.)

The bulk of the advantage of chain drug stores over independents lies not in reduced costs of goods from large scale buying, but in reduced margin of profit and overhead and elimination of jobbers' profits, four Federal Trade Commission studies made public yesterday indicated.

The reports, made on order of the Senate, covered drug stores in Detroit, Memphis, Cincinnati and Washington. In every case, the prices charged by independents were far higher, in comparsion with the chain store prices, than the cost differential.

For the drug business in Washington, the prices, costs and gross margins of independent distributors for 1929 were compared with those for the three principal chains combined for the same year.

Independents' Costs Higher.

The comparsion showed the selling prices of independents on the average 22.72 per cent higher than those of the chains, and their average costs 3.27 per cent greater.

The average gross margin of independent distributors expressed as a percentage of sales was 37.66 per cent (when the figures were weighted by independent distributor volume) as compared to 22.60 per cent for the chains (when the figures were weighted by chain volume).

Chain Eliminates Jobber.

The gross margin of the chain is the spread between the cost to the chain and the retail selling price of the chain. The gross margin of the independent distributor is the spread between the cost to the wholesaler and the selling price of the independent retail store.

Independent distributors in Memphis, in 1930, sold at an average price of 20.69 per cent higher than the average of two principal chains, and their average cost was 1.38 per cent higher. The average gross margin was 41.18 per cent (on the basis of independent distributor weights) for independent distributors, as compared with 28.77 per cent (on basis of chain weights) for the chain systems.

The other surveys showed similar results.

Cronin Takes Stand at Trial

"Blue Shirts Different," Tribunal Is Told by Commandant.

Dublin, Irish Free State, Dec. 28 (AP).—There is "no comparison between the Brown Shirts of Germany, the Black Shirts of Italy and the Blue Shirts here," Commandant E. J. Cronin testified today in his trial before a military tribunal on charges of seditious utterances and membership in unlawful organizations.

He made the statement when asked why he wore the Blue Shirt, emblematic of membership in the United Ireland party, opposed to President Eamon de Valera and banned by the government.

Hugh O'Reily, 38, Blue Shirt worker at Bandon, County Cork, died today of injuries received two months ago when he was taken for an automobile ride by a group of masked men and beaten.

Bomb Wrecks Office In Trucking Strike

Springfield, Mass., Dec. 28 (AP).—The office of Huck's Transfer Co. here was wrecked by a bomb explosion tonight. The company is one of several involved in a truck drivers' strike.

Many acts of violence have marked the strike, which began more than nine weeks ago. One truck terminal was bombed two weeks ago, and there have been numerous attacks on trucks and drivers. A number of trucks have been burned.

Gov. Lehman Undecided On Bench for O'Brien

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 28 (AP).—Lehman said today he had not had a chance yet to consider a proposal by John F. Curry, leader of Tammany, that Mayor John P. O'Brien be made a justice of the Supreme Court after he retires as New York City's executive Sunday. The Governor added:

"I told Mr. Curry I was not ready to give consideration to the matter of filling the vacancy in the Supreme Court. I told him I would do so at a later time."

Warning?

D. C. Job Filled, But Bid Is Made by Senator.

A shadow of what may be in store for the District Commissioners after Congress reconvenes was cast on the District Building yesterday, when District heads received a letter from Senator Tydings, of Maryland, proposing a man for a post now filled.

Tydings recommended appointment of W. D. Porter, of Hyattsville, as District insurance commissioner, although the incumbent, Herbert L. Davis, has no intention of resigning so far as District heads are aware.

The Senator made no reference to the incumbent, but said that Porter would make a good man for the job as he is familiar with the insurance business. Davis has been insurance commissioner about two years.

French Liner, Sirens Hoarse, Chased Up Bay by Cutter

Confusion Results When Whistles of 2 Craft Refuse to Blow.

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—The French liner Champlain—an icicle on her nose, a frog in her throat—unknowingly high-hatted American customs authorities today and got chased up the harbor like a vagrant. The freezing weather was responsible.

Overnight, the liner developed a "cold" in her sirens as she rocked at Quarantine. The cutter Raritan dashed down the harbor with an official boarding party, and the skipper called for a signal blast. But the Raritan's whistle had caught cold, too, and sputtered.

Whistles Just Cough.

Aboard the Champlain, Capt. Victor Barthelmy paced his bridge, wondering where the cutter could be. He heard the sissy signal through the fog but figured that funny noise couldn't be the call of a cutter.

The Champlain eased her bow toward the skyline and tried to toot three toots for the public health boat, but her whistles just coughed. The Champlain couldn't get out three blasts for the health boat, much less five for the customs cutter. So the French skipper jerked his hook and ordered his boat into the harbor. The cutter took out after him, her whistle cords laid back, her siren whining like a sick cat.

The Champlain kicked up a wake that tossed the cutter into a wallow and slipped by the Statue of Liberty. The Raritan followed, her engines huffing and puffing—her siren sputtering.

Slows Down at Battery.

The Champlain slowed down at the Battery, never knowing that the authority of the United States was on her heels. Capt. Barthelmy realized something was amiss with the customs boat—wherever it was—so he decided to stall around a bit.

"I figured the cutters were delayed for unknown reason and that I had better wait," said the captain.

The cutter overtook him there. There were explanations.

"If the cutter was following us, I did not know it," said Capt. Barthelmy. "There were no signals."

So all was forgiven.

Later both boats underwent treatments for colds in the head.

Filipinos Here Will Hold Dinner

Memory of National Hero to Be Honored.

Charles Edward Russell, author and publicist, will be chief speaker at a dinner at the Hamilton Hotel tomorrow night in honor of the memory of the Philippine national hero and martyr, Dr. Jose Rizal.

Dr. Rizal, a physician, was executed by the Spaniards in 1898. The dinner is being given under auspices of the Visayan Circle. Another speaker will be Elpidio Quirino, majority floor leader of the Philippine Senate and a member of the independence delegation now in Washingtotn.

Diosdado M. Yap, president of the circle, will preside. Arrangements are being made by Osmundo Reynante, vice president elect. Musical selections will be rendered by the Visayan Circle String Orchestra, Kurcioski and Antonio Aquino.

North Dakota Grain Embargo Is Attacked

St. Paul, Dec. 28 (AP).—John M. Sullivan, of Mandan, N. Dak., attorney for 35 North Dakota elevators seeking to restrain Gov. William A. Langer from enforcing a wheat embargo in that State, today termed the embargo a violation of the United States Constitution.

Citizens Seek Seat in House

Sanders Elected in Vote of District Opposed to Long Machine.

Baton Rouge, La., Dec. 28 (AP).—A citizens' faction in the Sixth Congressional District today was ready to set precedent by asking the National House of Representatives to seat their man, Jared Y. Sanders, jr., named in a citizen-sponsored election, instead of the claimant to the congressional post who holds the governor's certificate of election.

As the citizens' election committee which arranged yesterday's balloting in the district in defiance of the State administration gathered in the capital to canvass the returns, they received word of a friendly expression from Speaker Rainey, who said that, after reading the Louisiana law, he felt that the citizens election procedure had been legal.

Rainey further commented in answer to questions that Gov. O. K. Allen had not given the required 15 days notice for the December 5 election in which Mrs. Bolivar E. Kemp, backed by the forces of Gov. Allen and Senator Huey P. Long, was declared elected without the holding of a party primary.

U. S. Employes' Paper Appears

Weekly Is Published by Federation.

The first issue of "The Government Standards," new weekly publication of the American Federation of Government Employes, made its appearance yesterday.

The present name is only temporary, and a prize of $100 will be offered for a permanent one. Yesterday's issue carries the verbatim report of the appearance of E. Claude Babcock, president of the union, before a subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee. It also tells the story of the paycut mass meeting last week, and announces the formation of Lodge No. 100 of the AFGE.

Rep. Treadway Declines to List Outstanding Experts on Money

Does Not Care to Leave Self Open After He Criticized Fisher.

Representative Allen T. Treadway, (Republican), Massachusetts, recently aroused to sardonic criticism by Prof Irving Fisher's list of "19 men who know the meaning of money," yesterday was invited to submit a list of his own.

He rejected the offer.

"Having criticized Prof. Fisher for presuming to submit such a list, I could hardly be expected to lay myself open to the same criticism," he wrote E. C. Riegel, president of the Consumers Guild of America, who originally solicited the names from the Yale professor.

Representative Treadway could not resist adding, however:

"The public would have more confidence in the opinion of experienced and practical business men, than in those of theoretical college professors."

Mr. Riegel wired Representative Treadway that he "recognized that Fisher's list is one school of thought, but it is the school that now seems to be in the ascendancy in Washington."

"We would appreciate if you would favor us with a list of authorities of the opposed school, or any you regard as authorities," Mr. Riegel wired Representative Treadway.

"To such we will send the same questionnaire. Their replies will be included in the symposium we shall present to Congress."

He said the Guild was glad to have from Fisher "a selection of authorities to whom we could put our research questionnaire."

Change in N. Y. Politics Brings Reward to Officer

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—Capt. Lewis J. Valentine, who was demoted from the rank of inspector because his raids on political clubs angered politicians, will become chief inspector of the police department when the new administration goes into office January 1.

The announcement was made today by Maj. Gen. John F. O'Ryan, who will be the new police commissioner.

Farmers Find United Cause, Says Wallace

Interests Merged as Aid to Welfare of U. S., Convention Told.

Philadelphia, Dec. 28 (AP).—The view that "social discipline," or a merging of individual interests for the good of the community, might become the governing force for American agriculture, was expressed here tonight by Secretary Wallace.

In an address before a meeting of the American Economic Association, American Statistical Association and the Farm Economic Association, the Secretary said he had found evidence in application of the farm adjustment act that individuals would merge their interests for the good of a community.

He defined social discipline as "a willingness to modify individual behavior for the larger purposes of society," and said that without that discipline it would be impossible to undertake the difficult course ahead.

Calls for United Effort.

"If we have perspective, we know that great difficulties have been overcome by conscious effort in the past; if we have vision, we know that in the mind and heart of mankind there are potentialities that have never been tapped," Wallace said.

As a case in point, he mentioned the action of Western wheat farmers in accepting revisions of their production figures on which the Government based its estimates for reduction of acreage.

Many farmers overestimated acreage and production, but when they were shown the Government figures for total production for counties, and when convinced that those figures were right, Wallace said the individual farmers revised their own estimates.

"I truly believe that many of these men learned, perhaps for the first time, what is involved in making individual interest coincide with group interest," he said. "And having identified themselves with the group, there doubtless came to them some vision of the power that resides in group action."

Sets Counterbalance.

Wallace expressed belief that wheat farmers would live up to the terms of reduction contracts, but said it was possible that farmers in mixed-crop sections would expand their wheat production.

As a counterbalance to such a situation, which might be duplicated for all crops under production control, he said he saw the possibility of farmers in a single county banding together in association to regulate production of all major products. Then, the Secretary said, that county would think not in terms of one crop, "but of all the important adjustments agriculture as a whole must constantly be making."

Catholic Editor Honored.

George Washington Quintet Swamps Sluggish Furman Team, 52-16

Capital Five Leads, 28-5, At Half

Stein, Forward, Twists Ankle; May Not Face N. Y. City Team.

An ungainly group of husky football players, bedecked but not disguised in basket ball uniforms, stumbled, fell and were buried under an avalanche of George Washington baskets last night as the Colonials swept to their fourth consecutive victory of the season, a 52-16 triumph over Furman.

It was a slow game, sluggishly played, and costly to G. W.'s hopes for victory tomorrow night over City College of New York. Sammy Stein, star forward, turned his ankle in the second half and had to be assisted from the floor. It is doubtful if he will be able to play tomorrow. Later, as both teams threw caution to the winds and plunged headlong into the melee, Russ Ellis, G. W. reserve forward, emerged with a broken nose, and Bob Smith, Furman forward, suffered a gash over the eye. Smith continued to play, blood streaming down his face, but Ellis was withdrawn.

G. W. Gains Early Lead.

George Washington boasted a 28-5 advantage at half time, principally because of seven field goals tossed into the bucket by Bill Noonan. It got to be rather boring after the first 40 points, but G. W. continued to ply the hoop with basket balls as though each shot would decide the issue.

Jimmy Howell was the most prolific scorer of the evening with seven field goals and nine fouls in eleven attempts. Howell played a smooth floor game, but, most of the boys were off-color. Despite the apparent rough edges, however, G. W. at times played well, handling the ball expertly and dropping clever baskets.

Furman plainly showed a lack of practice, hesitating as though not knowing what next to do with the ball. The Southerners employed a short dribble, short pass attack that the Colonials found little difficulty solving. Smith and Roper were outstanding.

Bilheimer Urges Sports Emphasis

Gettysburg Official Says Fighting Spirit Needed.

Chicago, Dec. 28 (AP).—Give added emphasis to intercollegiate sports, but eliminate extravagant procedures, Clayton E. Bilheimer, director of athletics at Gettysburg College, told members of the National College Physical Education Association at their annual convention tonight.

"Instead of deemphasizing our sports," Prof. Bilheimer said, "we should place more emphasis on our intercollegiate sports, especially to participation. We should emphasize the spirit of winning. In these days of stress, strain and uncertainty, the college student should be sent out into the world with a strong competitive spirit. Today competition is keen and our students should have the benefit of that disciplinary training which they can only receive be engaging in some type of athletic activity. While we heartily indorse an intramural program, yet these activities should not supplant our intercollegiate program."

Pass Refusal Caused Arrest Says Club Head

Tulsa, Okla., Dec. 28 (AP).—Kay Iversen, owner of the Tulsa Oilers of the American Hockey Association, released without bond by Judge William R. Randolph after 14 hours in the city jail, tonight asserted Tulsa police arrested him through spite because he would not distribute all the passes demanded.

Iversen was not permitted bail last night after his arrest on a Wichita, Kans., bad check charge. He said he had just refused to issue more than 75 free admissions to city em!ployes.

Hunt Advances In National Net Play

Ritzenberg and Antignat Victims in Doubles; Parker Wins.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28 (AP).—Frank Parker, of Milwaukee, National clay court tennis champion and No. 1 favorite in the annual national junior indoor tennis championships at the Seventh Regiment Armory, forged into the quarter-final round today by defeating Barclay A. Kingman, of East Orange, N. J., Yale freshman, as the third day of play came to a close.

Parker disposed of the Yale player in straight sets, 6—3, 6—1.

All of the other seeded players joined Parker in the quarter-finals by virtue of straight-set wins.

Joseph Abrams Wins.

Joseph L. Abrams, of New York, No. 2, defeated Dick Clements, of Choate School, 6—4, 6—2. Russell Ball and George Ball, of El Paso, Tex., representing Northwestern University, both advanced easily, Russell defeating Carlton Rood, of Brooklyn, 6—3, 6—3, and George eliminating Lyman Middleditch, jr., of Cornell, 6—3, 6—2.

Jack Behr, of Roxbury School, seeded fifth; Gilbert Hunt, jr., of Washington, D. C., seeded seventh, and Robert Madden, of Pittsburgh, No. 8, won easily, Madden having the hardest match in defeating Carl Nesbit, of New York, 7—5, 6—4.

All of the favorites in the boys' singles came through with victories. Dyman Crossman, jr., of the Barnard School, New York, the No. 1 star, was extended to three sets to beat Irving Kram, of New York, 5—7, 6—1, 6—1.

In the doubles, Frankie Parker and Philip Osborne, the Lawrenceville pair, won two matches. They defeated Nathan Ritzenberg, Washington, D. C., and Lyman Middleditch, jr., of Cornell, 6—0, 6—1, then eliminated David Corson, of Roselle (N. J.) High School, and Raymond Antignat, George Washington University, 6—4, 6—4.

Canada Will Seek Harmsworth Cup

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 28 (A.P.).—formation of definite plans for a Canadian challenge for the Harmsworth Trophy held by Gar Wood was revealed today with receipt of a letter by the Canadian Power Boat Association from Peter N. Murphy, one of the backers.

Construction of the Canadian craft would be financed by border cities business men and the engines, two 20-cylinder air-speed motors, built in a Windsor factory. Three Canadian boat builders will submit designs for the hull.

J. H. Ardiel, who several years ago drove sea fleas to victory in international events, is slated to pilot the Canadian craft. Ardiel is holder of the British Empire sea flea trophy.

Tilden Defeats Pare in Pro Net Play

Enters Semi-Final Round With Richards, Barnes and Hunter.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 28 (AP). Making his first appearance in the National Professional Indoor Tennis Championship after receiving a default, "Big Bill" Tilden tonight pounded Emmett Pare, fifth seeded player for Chicago, into submission, 6—1, 6—4, 6—3, in an hour and ten minutes.

The victory placed Tilden, seeded first, in the semi-final round along with Vincent Richards, defending champion: Bruce Barnes, of Texas, and Francis T. Hunter, former Davis Cup player.

Richards, seeded second, earlier today downed Charles Wood, 5—7, 6—3, 6—2, 6—4. Both players are from New York.

Bracket Completed.

With Richards' victory, the semifinal bracket in the lower half of the draw was completed.

Barnes, who starred for University of Texas in his intercollegiate days, downed Russell Harned, of Newark, N. J., 6—0, 6—2, 6—1, with little difficulty.

The first round was completed during today's play when Pare, who is a former Georgetown University star, swept into the second bracket with a decisive 6—1, 6—0, 6—2 conquest over Tom Murray, of Palm Beach, Fla.

Helen Grawn Bows To Hollinger Girl

Beaten in Quarter Finals of Tennis Singles.

Brookline, Mass., Dec. 28 (AP).—Collapsing when the match was deadlocked, Virginia Hollinger, 17-year-old Dayton, Ohio, high school girl, rested 45 minutes and then won the set required to eliminate the defending champion, Helen Grawn, of Gross Point, Mich., 6-4, 1-6, 8-6, today in the quarter finals of the Girls' National Indoor Singles Tennis Tournament, at Longwood.

As a result of this upset victory, Miss Hollinger, who was unseeded, will oppose Louise Harding, of Brookline, in tomorrow's semifinal round. The other pair of semifinal qualifiers were the second-seeded Millicent Hirsch, of New York, and Sylvia Hatch, of Winchester.

Miss Harding Beat Louise Hedlund, of Waterton, 6-0, 6-0, and Miss Hirsch conquered Kay Parrot, of Winchester, 6-1, 6-0, in the other quarter finals played today. Miss Hatch gained the second last round during yesterday's play.

Pass Rule Change Backed by Warner

Hanley, Kerr, Dietz Concur in Favoring Shift.

Palo Alto, Calif., Dec. 28 (AP). Approval of a proposed football rule change which would allow forward passing from any point behind the line of scrimmage was expressed here today by Glenn S. Warner, veteran Temple University coach, and three other Warner system instructors.

Warner met with Coaches Dick Hanley, of Northwestern University; Andy Kerr, of Colgate, and Bill Dietz, of the Boston Braves, for an informal discussion of seven proposed alterations in the present gridiron regulations.

The forward-passing change, they agreed, would heighten the threat of a running offense as well as that of the passing attack.

301 Winners In 1933 for Westrope

First Rider Since 1908 to Achieve Feat; Adds 2 to His String.

Outbound, Gallop Along Piloted as Boy, 17, Reaches Objective.

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 28 (AP).—Returning to the saddle after a five-day suspension, Jack Westrope, 17-year-old apprentice from Baker, Mont., today rode his 300th winner since the first of the year when he scored with Mrs. A. R. Smith's Outbound in the 6-furlong third race at Epsom Downs. In the fifth race, he brought his total to 301 by scoring with Gallop Along.

Westrope, with his victory, became the first jockey to ride 300 winners since Vincent Powers achieved the feat in 1908 with 324 victorious mounts. With only two more riding days left, the little Montana rider has no chance of equaling the all-time mark of 388 hung up by W. Miller in 1906.

Scores Easy Victory.

After finishing out of the money on his first two mounts, Westrope scored an easy victory with Outbound. He took the 5-year-old son of Luke McLuke to the front at the halfway pole, and pulled away to cross the finish line five lengths in front of Cabezo, the favorite. Brookhattan, winner of his last start, was third in the field of seven.

Over a heavy track, Westrope sent Outbound galloping through 6 furlongs of mud in 1:14 4-5 to pay his backers $10.20 for $2.

The Montana apprentice originally had planned to leave Houston in time to be on hand for the opening of Tropical Park, at Miami, Fla., Saturday, but changed his plans in order to have a better chance to reach his goal.

Loses "Bug" Saturday.

The close of the meet here will see Westrope lose his 5-pound rider's allowance, known as the "bug," given apprentice jockeys. He rode his first winner last January at Oriental Park, in Havana.

Westrope has ridden before Texas crowds for nearly two months. He came with the opening of Arlington Downs near Fort Worth and moved from there to Epsom Downs here.

His outstanding feats, however, were accomplished at Arlington Track in Chicago, where he competed successfully against the best jockeys of the Nation. He also rode winners at Saratoga.

Levinsky Battles Don McCorkindale

Rules 9-5 Choice to Win in Chicago Tonight.

Chicago, Dec. 28 (AP).—King Levinsky, Chicago's boastful contender for heavyweight honors, predicts a grave international calamity tomorrow night, when he battles Don McCorkindale, conceded to be the best of English heavyweights, in their 10-round battle at the Chicago Stadium.

With Max Schmeling, German heavyweight and former titleholder, projected into the situation as a probable opponent for the winner, Levinsky is determined to defeat the Briton. McCorkindale, a corking good boxer, is just as confident of his own ability to whip the kingfish. He accepted a small percentage as his share of the purse, and is willing to gamble on his ability to outpoint the wild swinging Chicagoan.

Levinsky, who floored Jack Sharkey, and then gave him a terrific beating last September, was held a 9-to-5 favorite tonight.

4 Swimming Marks Fall At Miami

Another Is Established, and Still Another Is Tied at Meet.

Leonard Spence, Misses Kight, Govednik and Bridges Are Stars.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 28 (AP).—Four American swimming records were broken, a mark established in a class formerly without recorded figures, and the existing record equaled in another class in the first day of the second annual National Olympic stars aquatic meet in the Biltmore Hotel.

Lenore Kight, Homestead, Pa., free style champion, bettered two American records for that class, clipping 12 4-5 seconds from the 300-yard long course record, and four-fifths of a second from the 300-meter figure.

Miss Kight, who established her first National mark in the pool here last year, swam the 300 meters in 4 minutes 7 1-5 seconds, and the 300 yards in 3 minutes 45 1-5 seconds. Both previous records had been held by Helen Madison and both had been set in San Francisco.

Alice Bridges Shines.

Alice Bridges, of Whitinsville, Mass., dropped 1 4-5 seconds from the American 200-yard back stroke mark by swimming the distance in 2:48 flat. The mark bettered by Miss Bridges was established by the late Sybil Bauer at New York in 1923.

Anne Govednik, of Chisholm, Minn., was clocked in 1:21 flat for the 100-yard breast stroke, 5 1-5 seconds faster than the existing American mark posted in 1927 by Agnes Geraghty at Massapequa, Long Island.

Miss Govednik cut the 100-yard time while swimming in the 100-meter trial. In this test, she equaled the meter record of 1:49 4.5.

Leonard Spence, of the New York Athletic Club, National champion at 220 and 440 meters breast stroke, established an American mark of 8:01 1-5 for the 500-meter long course.

There was no previous American record for the distance. The world record, held by a Finn, is 7:36.8. The Biltmore meet is officially timed and under A. A. U. auspices.

Garden's 6 Months' Deficit Is $205,629

New York, Dec. 28 (U.P.).—Madison Square Garden Corporation and its wholly owned subsidiaries reported a net loss of $40,105.75 for the three months ended November 30, it was announced today. This was compared with a net income of $26,011.29 for the corresponding quarter of the previous fiscal year.

Operations for the six months ended November 30, 1933, showed a net loss of $205,629.05 as compared with $130,133.57 for the same period in 1932.

These figures do not include operations of the Boston Garden, a partly owned subsidiary, which showed a net loss of $46,750.66 for the first six months of the current fiscal year as compared with a net loss of $38,261.30 for the corresponding period of 1932.

Cards May Announce Deals Shortly—Rickey

St. Louis, Dec. 28 (AP).—Branch Rickey, vice president of the St. Louis Cardinals, said today he may have "two or three things" to announce within the next ten days, but he declined to comment on a revived report that Bob O'Farrell, Cardinal catcher, will be sent to Cincinnati to become manager of the Reds.

"I can't discuss that," Rickey said.

Impellittiere, Neusel Fight Tonight

Reds Barry to Clash With Feldman in N. Y.'s Last 1933 Card.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28 (AP).—The boxing season of 1933 fades out of New York tomorrow night with a round-up in Madison Square Garden which may not be the best, but which stands without challenge as the biggest set of bouts of the year.

It's a heavyweight festival, featuring Ray Impellittiere, the American Carnera, who stretches up some 6 feet 7½ inches and weighs an eighth of a ton, against Walter Neusel, a comparatively little fellow of 200 pounds, 6 feet 2½ inches in height. Neusel is the most recent of the foreign importations, a blond, rough and tumble German who knocked out Les Kennedy and Stanley Poreda in his first American matches. They fight 10 rounds.

Pettifer Meets Dixon.

Going all the way in length and breadth, Jack Pettifer, Great Britain's response to the Carnera influence, has been arrayed against the largest Negro still in action, Leonard Dixon, of Philadelphia, for six rounds.

Pettifer, who knocked out Jack McCoy, also of Philadelphia, in his first match here, stands 6 feet 7 inches, while Dixon rises ¾ of an inch higher. They weigh about the same, between 225 and 230 pounds, and leave little room in a normal ring for a referee.

Ordinary sized heavyweights, Reds Barry, of Washington, and Abe Feldman, of New York, are matched for eight rounds, and Eddie Houghton, of Philadelphia, and Lou Poster, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., for six.

While the Garden has had the poorest fistic year in its history, the year probably will end in a measure of financial satisfaction.

In order to get the match, Neusel, a heavy-hitting youngster, who has knocked out 23 of his 42 professional opponents, did all the gambling as far as receipts are concerned. His manager guaranteed Impellittiere $5,000 or the privilege of 37½ per cent of the gate receipts. Neusel will receive 50 per cent of the receipts, with the hope that it will total more than $5,000.

Despite Impellittiere's strong showing recently against Tommy Loughran here, Neusel is an 8-to-5 favorite. Impellittiere lost the decision in ten rounds to Loughran, but only after the only incident of its kind in New York ring history. The bout was stopped in the sixth round and a technical knockout awarded Impellittiere when Loughran suffered a deep cut in his lip. Boxing commissioners rushed to the ringside, however, ordered the bout to continue, and, despite the wound, Loughran came on to win the decision in ten rounds.

Dawson, Black Enter Final Ping-Pong Round

Harvey Dawson, ping-pong champion of Harvard University, and Edwin Black, defending champion of the District, reached the finals of the District Open ping-pong tournament last night. The finalists defeated opponents in the quarter and semifinal rounds to achieve an interest in the finals.

Dawson defeated R. Sherfy, 3 to 0, in the quarter-finals and Lee, 3 to 1, in the semifinals. Black eked out a 3-to-2 win over L. Sherfy in the quarter-finals and won by the narrow margin of 3 to 2 from Dunn in the semifinals.

The finals will be played at 8 o'clock tonight at the District Ping-Pong Courts, 1510 H street northwest.

Quarter-finals—Lee defeated King, 3-0; Dawson defeated R. Sherfy, 3-0; Dunn defeated Groff, 3-1; Black defeated L. Sherfy, 3-2.

Stanford Team Displays Pep In Hot Sun

Coach Thornhill Seeking to Prepare His Men for Unexpected.

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 28 (AP). Stanford football players, reduced to a once-a-day routine in preparation for the Rose Bowl game with Columbia Monday, worked this afternoon under a beaming sun. Old Sol has been conspicuous by his absence for the last few days as heavy clouds threatened, but produced no rain.

The Indians, however, did not need the cheering rays of the sun to enthuse them. Even the oldest rooter in the neighborhood of the sweet-scented Rose Bowl can not recall an aggregation of players displaying more pepper.

Fans Throng Field.

Coach Tiny Thornhill has no secrets from the multitude and crowds have thronged the practice field, some more interested in autographs than forward passes, but the Indians have gone their carefree way and they will be in shape—mental and physical—when the starting whistle sounds New Year's Day.

There will be no more hard work for the earnest athletes. The session today was mild in comparison to some that have gone before and tomorrow and Saturday will be even lighter.

The last two workouts will be devoted to perfecting a snappy defense against the style of play Columbia is expected to employ, bearing down heavily on ways and means to thwart forward passes of all degrees.

Lou Little's reputation as a football slicker has preceded him and the Stanford Board of Strategy seeks to prepare the active players for the unexpected. Little, they are told, is most unorthodox and will not hesitate to take desperate chances in an attempt to cash in on a possible surprise play.

One of the important cogs in the well-oiled Stanford machinery will be the sure-footed Frank Alustiza. This sophomore can kick and is at his best in getting off boots from just behind the line of scrimmage. It is doubtful if the invading Lions have seen a better quick kicker in their Eastern campaign.

Practices for Hours.

Alustiza has practiced for hours in his brief Pasadena stay at quick kicking and he seems to have drawn closer and closer to the line of scrimmage as the days passed.

Some of the rail birds seem to think they can call the shots of the teams in advance and have suggested Columbia's first play of the game will be a pass. It seems just as possible that Stanford's first effort will be a quick kick.

Duquesne Grid Team Off for Miami Game

Pittsburgh, Dec. 28 (U.P.).—Duquesne University football players held a final workout on an ice and snow coated practice field today before entraining for Miami, Fla., and the annual Festival of the Palms football game with the University of Miami.

A squad of 34 players, including 11 seniors who play their last game, and six coaches and trainers make up the official party.

Dunlap Faces Wilson for Golf Title

Wins Over Davidson, of District, While Foe Beats Thomson.

Amateur Champion Has Defeated Former G. U. Star Four Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., Dec. 28 (AP). George T. Dunlap, jr., slender wearer of the National amateur crown, and Dick Wilson, of Southern Pines, won their semifinal matches today and prepared for a renewal in the annual midwinter golf finals tomorrow of a rivalry dating back ten years.

Dunlap advanced to the final round by defeating R. P. Davidson, of Washington, D. C., 4 and 3, while Wilson earned the right to meet the champion by overcoming Eric D. Thomson, St. Andrews, New Brunswick, 4 and 3.

Dunlap Cards a 72.

In their medal play today, Dunlap appeared one stroke better than Wilson, playing out the 18 holes in 72, one over par, while Wilson took 73 strokes.

Their rivalry began when Dunlap, a regular winter resident of Pinehurst, was learning the game and playing in junior tournaments here a decade ago. Wilson then was playing at Southern Pines, 6 miles away.

Have Met Five Times.

The youngsters have met five times in competition since their junior days, and Dunlap has won four times. His one loss to Wilson was in the semifinals of the annual North and South amateur in 1929, but the Southern Pines player has always been a threat.

All of their meetings have been in this vicinity except once, when Dunlap, playing for Princeton, beat Wilson, then star of the Georgetown University team, in the intercollegiate team matches at Philadelphia several years ago.

Girl Sues Baer For Love Balm

Aerialist Seeks $150,000; Prizefighter Dodges Process Servers.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28 (U.P.)—Max Baer, contender for the heavyweight championship and new screen idol, tonight dodged detectives and process servers, who sought to serve him with papers in a suit being brought against him by Bee Starr, circus aerialist, charging breach of promise.

Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager, said, "I've heard about the suit and a process server has been hanging around the hotel all day looking for Max."

Hoffman said that Miss Starr is asking $150,000 damages from Baer. She charges she met him when he was training in Atlantic City last September, and that on the fifteenth of that month, he promised to marry her.

"She charges," Hoffman said, "that Baer said he would marry her about Thanksgiving, after he had obtained a divorce from Dorothy Dunbar. Later he got the divorce and Miss Starr was willing to marry him, but he didn't marry her.

Grayson, Stanford Star, Abed With Cold

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 28 (AP).—Bobby Grayson, star Stanford full back, was ordered to bed tonight by the team's physician, Dr. E. F. Roth, who said the fleet-footed ball carrier was suffering from a heavy cold.

Asked if there was any possibility of Grayson not being able to play in the New Year's game against Columbia in the Rose Bowl, Dr. Roth said it was likely he could start.

Grayson is the mainspring of Stanford's running attack and the fastest man on the Cardinal squad.

Annarita, Claimed Recently by Bell Stable, Takes Feature at Jefferson Park

Flowery 2d, Trailing by A Head

Idle Along Takes First; Switch, Favorite, Is Victor in Second.

JEFFERSON PARK, New Orleans, Dec. 28 (AP).—Annarita, 2-year-old daughter of Master Charley recently claimed by the Bell Stable, delivered for her new owners at the first asking when she won the Slidell Purse, 6 furlongs dash that topped the program at Jefferson Park this afternoon.

Well handled by Mel Knight, Annarita kept close to a fast pace set by Bing Crosby and lasted to win by a big head over Pupino and Simone's Flowery, which finished with a great rush on the rail. J. J. Ashe's Royal Leon was a bang-up third.

Idle Along Victor.

Idle Along, owned by Al Gaignard, ran away and hid from her field in the first race at Jefferson Park Thursday, which was at 5½ furlongs. Leslie Pichon, a New Orleans lad, was up, and he lost no time getting Idle Along away, opened a wide gap and won eased up. Credit System was second and Lightnin' Bill third.

The second race, at a mile and a sixteenth, wound up in a tight finish in which Switch, the odds-on favorite, just got up in time to beat out Skidmore. The latter had taken command from Catwalk in the stretch. Black Flash was third. Switch was ridden by Pat Petrella and is owned by R. T. Watts.

Third to Bonnie Cap.

Bonnie Cap, owned by C. N. Ingle and ridden by J. Sylvester, accounted for the third race, which was at 5½ furlongs. Outrun early, Bonnie Cap moved up with a rush in the stretch and got up in time to nip the favorite, Mynheer, and win by a neck. Norwalk was third.

The fourth race, at 6 furlongs, proved little more than a gallop for J. Kern's Flo M., W. Hanka up. Flo M. outbroke her field, shook off Fitkin and had no trouble holding a safe lead on Captain Joy, which saved ground and finished strong in second place. Quiet Chat was third.

Blighter Easy Winner.

Blighter, owned by Mrs. A. Hiller and ridden by J. Lowry, easily won the mile and a furlong race that was sixth on the card. Lowry held him in hand while Prince Farthing, Lazy Mary and Sunny Bob fought it out in the early running, sent Blighter to the front entering the stretch and had him in hand to finish four lengths ahead of Prince Farthing, which just lasted to save second place from Gay Parisian.

E. L. Kelly's St. Nazaire, with Jimmy Hunter up and a favorite in the betting, won the last race, which was at a mile and a sixteenth. Following Marabou and Darkest Hour into the stretch, St. Nazaire took the lead with a good rush and won going away from Marabou. More Power was third.

Southern Loop Head Pleased Over Outlook

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 28 (AP).—President John D. Martin, of the Southern Baseball Association, today expressed optimism over the baseball outlook for next season.

In calling a meeting of the schedule committee, President Martin issued a statement in which he said: "The splendid program of President Roosevelt is increasing employment, and is especially beneficial to the Southern States. This condition is certain to reflect itself in increased attendance at league games. Decreased attendances of the year were only normally in line with the drop in other fields."

Augustus III of Poland possessed one of the most extensive and elaborate wardrobes of any monarch. Storeroom alone for his uniforms and robes occupied two large halls of the palace. He had special dress for every occasion, and for each special dress he had a special snuff box, watch, sword, cane and other accessories.

He had so many clothes that he found it impossible to tell the royal valet which suit to bring out. Accordingly he had a large book in which, each to its own page, were accurate paintings of his many ensembles. When he selected a costume for any occasion he merely thumbed through his catalogue until he found one which suited him. His vanity is further evidenced by the fact that he required all persons to address him as "his most serene excellency."

The musical instrument illustrated above is the first piano ever made. Strange as it seems, its builder, Bartolomeo di Francesco Cristofori, called it a "Gravicembalo col Piano e Forte," which means "harpsichord with soft and loud." Eventually the instrument came to be known as the pianoforte. Later still is was shortened to piano.

Wilma Walker, who is now 21 years old, began her athletics career when most children are still trying to learn to walk steadily. At 15 months she had learned to roller skate. By the time she was 12 she was an accomplished tightwire performer.

E. Dusek Meets Browning on Thursday

Rudy's Little Brother to Give Lots of Trouble, Turner Believes.

ERNIE DUSEK, Rough Rudy's little lisping brother, is going to try again on the mat at the Auditorium next Thursday. Not long ago he was given a crack at Jim Browning's crown here and became tangled in the title claimant's famous airplane leg-scissors after 52 minutes of rough and interesting mauling. So Mons. Joe Truner is going to give him another crack at the head of the Jack Curley rassle herd, who is recognized as world champ in 14 States, not to mention British Columbia.

Browning has earned a big following here. He is different from the other rassling champs, being willing to take a chance. The result is that he lays himself wide open because of his aggressiveness, gives and takes punishment, and puts up a real show. Class is written all over him.

Little Ernie Good Man.

In Ernie Dusek, Jim is meeting no set-up. Little Ernie is big, strong and rough and asks no favors from any member of this peculiar clan of ear-scramblers.

According to Promoter Turner, who was once middleweight champ and who should know whereof he speaks, the younger Dusek is mighty close to being championship caliber. "He seldom makes the same mistake twice," Joe remarked last night when announcing the signing of the gladiators for next Thursday's fracas. "He overplayed his hand in his last match with Browning. It's my guess that he'll be able to keep out of that airplane leg-scissors this time, and if he does, he'll give the champ plenty of trouble."

Four good preliminary bouts are being arranged and will be announced shortly.

Sutter Ranked First in Dixie Tennis

Grant Second, Bryan Third in Southern Association's 1933 List.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 28 (AP).—Cliff Sutter, of New Orleans, retained his position at the head of Southern tennis performers in the Southern Lawn Tennis Association ranking announced here today. Second position in the men's singles division went to Bryan Grant, of Atlanta.

Next in order in the men's singles were Robert (Lefty) Bryan, Chattanooga; Wilmer Hines, Columbia, S. C.; William Reese, Atlanta; Arnold Simons, Louisville; Lenoir Wright, Charlotte, N. C.; Hudson Hamm, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; Kimbark Peterson, Merrimon Cunning, of Nashville; Ramsay Potts, Memphis, and Richard Covington, Asheville.

Beatrice Bryan, of Memphis, won the No. 1 post in the women's singles.

Potts Tops Juniors.

Ramsay Potts, of Memphis, topped the field in the junior singles, and Russell Bobbitt, of Atlanta, was placed No. 1 in the boys' singles, and second place went to Thomas White, of Memphis.

Malon Courts and Bryan Grant, both of Atlanta, topped the men's doubles division.

Miller Five Wins First Half Chase

Defeats Naval Reserves; Eastons Victorious.

Miller Furniture Co. defeated Naval Reserves last night at Hine Junior High School, 19 to 13, to win undefeated the first half race in Class A of the Southeast Community Center schedule. The Eastons surprised Sigma Phi Lambda by lambasting them, 35 to 9.

It took just 10 minutes of the first half for the Millers and Naval Reserves to score a field goal. In fact, the defensive play of both teams gave little chance of tossing for double pointers. Sugrue, of the Millers, put the game on ice for his quintet, coming through with three goals from the field in the last five minutes of play. Sacrey, Daly and Robertson played well for the Eastons.

Games tonight are Christ Church vs. Certified Bakers, at 7, and Congress Heights vs. Dixie Five, at 8.

Owner, "Ringer" Ruled Off By West Virginia Race Head

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 28 (AP).—The Charles Town "mystery horse" with dye fading from its coat, and Michael Krock, of Perth Amboy, N. J., its purchaser at a paddock sale, were ruled off the West Virginia turf today by J. B. McLaughlin, racing commissioner.

He directed that the horse, with black dye fading out to show its original brown coat, be kept out of racing until its identity is established.

Also until it is learned who painted the 2-year-old entered at the Charles Town track, he directed that Krock be barred.

Denies Knowing Plan.

Krock denied any knowledge of what track stewards reported as an attempt to put the horse on the tracks as a "ringer."

They reported "the horse sold in the paddock as Hustle Over has been reliably identified to us as Two Brooms and was undoubtedly going to be put over here as a 'ringer' if possible."

Krock, in reply to McLaughlin, said he purchased the horse after being told by a Mrs. Kelly, of Baltimore, that a 2-year-old of promise might be purchased cheaply.

"So far as I'm concerned, I don't know who he is," Krock told the commissioner.

Student Federation To Hear Curley Byrd

H. C. (Curley) Byrd, vice president and director of athletics at the University of Maryland, will be the principal speaker this afternoon at a special session of the National Student Federation of America. The delegates will meet at 1:15 o'clock in Hurst Hall, on the American University campus. Byrd's address will open a discussion on athletics by the group.

Another prominent speaker will be Arnold Beichman, editor of the Columbia Daily Spectator. Beichman's recent agitation against the Columbia football team's trip to the Rose Bowl game, is certain to be reflected in the discussion.

The Federation includes 150 American colleges and universities. At its meeting last year at Tulane, it expressed definite views against subsidization of college athletics. It is believed that the two remaining days of the five-day conference will continue along these lines.

Central's Reunion On New Year's Day

Alumni Association Plans Interesting Program.

The twenty-fifth annual reunion of the Central High School Alumni Association will be held Monday, New Year's Day, at the high school.

The program, the major part of which consists of athletic events, gets under way at 1:30 o'clock, with the alumni and the alumnae meeting the boys' and girls' varsities in basket ball, swimming and rifle matches. Dancing and other forms of entertainment complete the reunion day.

Raymond E. Gable, chairman of the affair, has announced the following alumni and school committee heads:

Hecht Tossers Seek Game.

Hecht Co. tossers would like to book a game for tonight with a strong unlimited team having a gym. Call Manager Al Barrett at National 5146 between 9 and 10:30 a. m., or 4:30 and 6 p. m.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SWITCH, $3.60, $2.80, $2.20; SKIDMORE, $4.40, $2.60; BLACK FLASH, $2.60.
SWITCH, slow to begin, made up ground steadily and, finishing with good courage under hard riding, wore down SKIDMORE. Latter moved up determinedly in the turn, headed CATWALK and fought it out gamely, barely failing to last. BLACK FLASH came from far out of it. CATWALK saved ground all the way, but tired from racing with FLYING FLYNN. OUR JOHNNY saved ground and held on well. ASTRAKHAN closed a big gap while racing wide. FLYING FLYNN quit.

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 2:55. Off at 3:00. Winner, C. N. Ingle's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BONNIE CAP, $6.20, $3.40, $3.00; MYNHEER, $2.80, $2.40; NORWALK, $4.20.
BONNIE CAP, in close quarters early, made up ground rapidly in the turn and, finishing resolutely, passed out MYNHEER. Latter had to race wide early, but kept the lead and, after shaking off YVETTE V., held on gamely. NORWALK, in close quarters in the turn, was blocked in the stretch. WESTY'S ROSE held on well. TEWSENELDA finished with a rush. WHIZZING D. acted badly at the post and went wide all the way. YVETTE V. and KITE quit.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:25. Off at once. Winner, J. Kern's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLO M., $9.80, $3.40, $3.20; CAPTAIN JOY, $4.00, $3.60; QUIET CHAT, $5.60.
FLO M. broke fast, shook off FITKIN and drew out into an easy lead over CAPTAIN JOY. Latter saved much ground and, finishing well, was best of the others, but never could menace the winner. QUIET CHAT held on gamely. PANTALOONS was beaten off and had no excuses. BAIGDORA made up some ground. FITKIN could not keep up.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $300; claiming. The Slidell. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:52. Off at 3:53. Winner, Bell Stable's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ANNARITA, $8.00, $4.40, $2.60; FLOWERY, $34.20, $5.20; ROYAL LEON, $3.20.
ANNARITA, hard hustled early, saved much ground entering the stretch and, continuing gamely, headed BING CROSBY and outstayed FLOWERY. Latter, showing vastly improved form, saved ground all the way and was wearing down the winner. ROYAL LEON was outrun early and closed fast. ESPERANTO, far back the first 3 furlongs, had to race very wide and closed strong. BING CROSBY was made too much use of setting a killing pace and tired. GILBERT ELSTON could not keep up.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and a furlong. Purse, $300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:17. Off at 4:18. Winner, Mrs. A. Hiller's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLIGHTER, $8.80, $4.20, $2.40; PRINCE FARTHING, $3.00, $2.80; GAY PARISIAN, $5.00.
BLIGHTER, held off the early pace, moved up with a saving of ground entering the stretch and, taking a big lead, easily held his rivals safe. PRINCE FARTHING held on gamely after dominating the early running. GAY PARISIAN, far back early, had to race wide moving up and he hung in the final drive. WILD LAUREL held on gamely in the drive but could not improve his position last furlong. SOUTHCO also had to go wide and closed a gap. LAZY MARY and SUNNY BOB quit.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:44. Off at 4:45. Winner, E. L. Kelley's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ST. NAZAIRE, $5.00, $3.20, $2.40; MARABOU, $4.00, $3.00; MORE POWER, $4.20.
ST. NAZAIRE, well handled, was kept close to the pace and, coming with a good rush after entering the stretch, passed MARABOU. Latter forced a fast pace to dispose of DARKEST HOUR and held on gamely, but could not withstand the winner. MORE POWER, outrun early, closed gamely in the last quarter after losing ground. DARKEST HOUR tired in the stretch after showing fine speed. CURRY GIRL closed a big gap. LINMAR raced evenly. SKIBO always was far back. LAPIDARY quit.

Overlin Seeks 19th Ring Win In a Row

Meets Burns in Feature Bouts at Portner's Tuesday Night.

A FISTIC hodge-podge which promises plenty of diversified action reopens Portner's Tuesday following a one-week holiday shutdown. Ken Overlin and K. O. Burns are carded in the top eight-rounder, supported by two other eights and a six.

Overlin, who recently won the New York National Guard middleweight championship, has amassed a total of 18 consecutive wins and may enter the ring Tuesday with 19 under his belt, if he can get by Tommy Rios, whom he fights in Norfolk tonight. Burns is perhaps the most promising middleweight prospect developed in Baltimore in recent years.

Great interest centers in the Roddy Davis-Joe Britten eight-rounder that will occupy the semifinal spot. In a previous encounter, Britten landed a thunderbolt right flush on Davis' chin whiskers a few seconds after the battle began, knocking him as cold as a heated taxicab. Because of his punching power, many are predicting that Britten will again stretch the Northeast lightweight on the canvas, but Davis handlers attribute his previous knockout to lack of experience and believe that he will easily outbox Britten in this return bout.

Two throwers of knockout punches—Phil Furr and Tom Basharа—meet in the other eight-rounder. Furr is a particularly devastating body puncher, while his opponent specializes in knockout shock punches to the jaw.

A six between Roma La Bona and Johnny Mayes will open the bill.

Company F Tossers Bow in Double-Header

Company F basket ball teams lost a double header last night at the Hyattsville National Guard Armory. The regulars dropped a 28-to-22 decision to the Old Dominion Boat Club of Alexandria, while the reserves bowed to the Hyattsville Independents, 28 to 20.

Jack Williams, Old Dominion center, found the cords for five court goals and one foul toss for 11 points to lead his team to victory. The Boatmen rallied after trailing the soldiers 20 to 22, in the final quarter, with Williams and Cabell dropping in the decisive baskets.

Hebrews End Block With 227 Lead

Italians Also Lose in Doubles, but Cop Singles by Pin.

One of the largest crowds of the season turned out at the Convention Hall alleys last night to witness the renewal of the Italian All-Stars and Jewish All-Stars special 10-game match, the first block of which ended with the Jewish team routing the Italians to amass a lead of 227 pins. The winners had a total pinfall of 3,114 to the losers' 2,887.

The Italians, rolling the highest game of their set, 622, jumped away to a 72-pin lead. At the end of the second game the lead had dwindled to 36 and they were overtaken in the third game, the Jewish team going to the front with a 57-pin lead. It seemed apparent by the way the leaders were crashing the maples that they would not be caught. As the finishing touch, the ultimate winners crashed the maples to the tune of a 706 game.

Pickus High Gun of Match.

The Jewish stars, placed one, two and three. "Doc" Pickus, star bowler of the Baltimore Major League, led the individual feats, pounding the maples for a 156 game and 651 set to top all other scores. Runner-up to the Baltimore star was Maxie Rosenberg, who came through with a 150 game and 640 set. Meyer Jacobson, who is leading the Baltimore bowlers with a 126 average in the Baltimore Major League, rolled a 632 set.

Ollie Pacini, the country's No. 1 bowler, rolled anchor for the Italians. Ollie added a 152 game for a 626 set. Joe Pricci, holder of the District's three-game set record, 497, took second honors for the Italian All Stars, rolling a 616 set.

Doubles to Jewish Pair.

In an exhibition doubles match, opening the activities, Abe Singer, District junior champion, teamed up with Sam Bortnick, to represent the Hebrews, and defeated Stuart Patti and Tony Maley, Italian bowlers, in a doubles match by a total of 55 pins. Maley's 370 set was high for the match.

Sweet revenge came to the lot of the Italians, who had backed Ollie Pacini against Meyer Jacobson in the singles. Ollie turned in a 332 set to beat the Baltimore flash by 1 pin. He needed 9 to win in his last frame and toppled the winning duck by a whisker.

The second block of the match will be rolled on the Temple drives New Year's afternoon.

The Lithos team retained its position at the top of the War Department League at the Arcadia drives last night, defeating the War College No. 1 team all three games. Engineers took a clean sweep over Statistics to put them but two behind the leaders and Headquarters whitewashed Construction to tie C. C. C. for the third position as the latter dropped the odd game to Finance No. 1.

Ontrich, Hydrographic, annexed individual honors with a 151 game and 373 set. Hydrographic captured high team game with 614 and Engineers toppled 1,692 pins for high team set.

Katz (Padgett Printers) led the list of individual feats in the Nation-wide League at Convention Hall, annexing both high game and high set with 136 and 328, respectively. Gortons Sea Food, with a 509 game, shared honors with Auths Franks, who had a total pinfall of 1,423.

---

High games rolled at the Arcadia alleys for qualification in the Evening Star tournament were rolled by Joe Harrison, 626; John Compton, 621; Frank Warman, 617; K. T. Embrey, 616; Red Sweeney, 606; Claude Cowan, 605; George Gist, 605, and Freddie Moore, 601. Harrison, Moore and Cowan all bowled from scratch. The latter, who is but 18 years old, did not have a handicap, not having participated in league rolling last season. This is his first attempt at tournament rolling.

Max Snellings' 371 set, for Southern Railway, and Ed Cotter's 140 game for Kimble-Lacey, featured the Takoma-Silver Spring League bowling at the Takoma alleys. Tokoma Sea Food won team honors with its 598 game and 1,667 set, winning the odd one from Lohr Real Estate. Other results were Takoma Tailors, 3; Sligo, 0; Kimble-Lacey, 2; Montgomery Country Club, 1; Fritz Billards, 3; Stewart Bros., 0; Southern Railway, 3; Takoma Tigers, 0.

Bluege, Lacking "Color," Assured Wages for Years to Come.

By Frank H. Young.

"Did you ever stop to think what a whale of a utility infielder Ossie Bluege will make us when his days as a regular are over?" Clark Griffith, Nat owner, asked yesterday as he cocked his feet on his desk and lighted one of those little flat cigars, which he presses in his library books, along with four-leaf clovers and the like. "He's a great third baseman, just about as good a shortstop as Manager Cronin, can play a mean game at second and it wouldn't surprise me if he couldn't turn in quite a performance at first.

"Bluege is one of two players, who can have a job with the Nationals for life," Griffith continued. "Yes, the other is Sam Rice." And the Nat owner might have added that Joe Judge also was listed as a "teacher's pet" two seasons ago, but would not admit that he was through as a regular and fill the role of utility man and so was given his unconditional release in order that he might sign with the Brooklyn Dodgers. Since, Joe was let out again and then was grabbed by the Boston Red Sox.

Better than Kamm.

Bluege, called Ossie in the East and Louie out West, is one of the comparatively few diamond stars who hides his light under a barrel. Ball players and Washington fans who see him perform day in and day out rate him as the greatest defensive third-sacker base ball has had in a decade or more. For several seasons, the averages have shown him ranking second to Willie Kamm, but this is one case where figures lie — and the Nats would not have traded him for two Kamms at any stage of his career as a regular.

Ossie is so quiet and unassuming that he considers the sphinx a chatterbox. He goes about his work so methodically and with so little effort or fanfare that he is not appreciated as he should be. If he had only one-tenth of Art Shire's color and showmanship he'd be as much talked of as Babe Ruth, but Ossie is what might be termed a baseball business man and has to be studied to be appreciated.

"I've never seen a fellow so quick with his hands!" other players have been heard to say on many occasions, and they also might have added that he is quick as a cat on his feet, too, and can go to either side, backward or forward, with the speed of an express train. And, after he gets the ball, the way he whips it across the diamond is something beautiful to behold. He has the only wrist snap throw in captivity, the result being that he can peg on a line from any position.

Bluege Timely Hitter.

Ossie is not a hitter as the averages go, but his record for driving in runs is remarkable. He has been performing in baseball's big show for more than 11 complete seasons, never has reached the .300 mark, yet invariably has been one of the most timely hitters on the club. Last season, for instance, he drove in 71 mates, although hitting only at a .261 clip.

In the diamond game's recent October handicap, against the New York Giants, Ossie struck out six times in the five games and made but two hits in 16 official trips to the tee, but President Clark Griffith is not holding this rather sorry showing against him. He realizes that practically none of the other Nats did anything to wire home about.

Although the Nat owner is talking about the days when Bluege is through as a regular, he admits that he is looking quite a ways in the future. "Ossie's only 33 years old," he commented, "and he'll probably be able to travel at his present clip for four or five more seasons. He has no bad habits and takes mighty good care of himself. Fellows of his type last forever."

Graduate of Sandlots.

Bluege is one of the comparatively few pro diamond stars who graduated from the sandlots. He always had a craving for the game, but never owned a uniform until he was 15 years old. In those days, he was shortstop (and that's his natural position) with a church team in Chicago. Later he played with Jimmy Callahan's Logan Squares, a famous semipro team, and was signed by the Peoria Club of the Three-Eye League in 1920. The Nats bought him in 1922, used him in parts of 19 games and sent him to Minneapolis for seasoning. He was brought back in 1923 and has been a Nat regular ever since.

Tech's Varsity Five Bows to Alumni

Berger, Russell Stars as Grads Turn in 36 to 24 Victory.

The Tech Alumni defeated the Tech varsity on the McKinley Tech floor last night in their annual tilt, 36 to 24. The teams battled, nip and tuck, throughout the first half with the score at the end of that period, 15 to 14, in favor of the grads.

Bozie Berger, former University of Maryland All-America star, was the outstanding player of the evening, whipping six goals the short time he played. Russell also showed up well for the alumni team.

Wiles and Billings, the latter spearing 10 points, were the outstanding stars for the varsity.

Grid Attendance Rises in Virginia

Richmond, Va., Dec. 28 (AP).—Football attendance in Virginia showed gratifying gains this year, reports from most of the State colleges showed today.

Although no spectacular increases were reported most of the schools said attendance was on the upgrade.

At Washington and Lee the 1933 attendance was 7,000 as compared with 5,500 in 1932 for three home games. V. M. I. had only two home games but reported the attendance was "slightly better."

Texas Polo Stars Plan Hard Drive on Coast

Austin, Tex., (U.P.).—Will Rogers' prediction that "horses will come back" apparently is being fulfilled in Texas. Aside from Epsom Downs and Arlington Downs, two costly plants for legalized horse racing, the State has gone "polo."

Topping the polo sport in Texas is Cecil Smith and his squad of Rough Riders. His team generally rated as the "world's second best," holds a 20 goal handicap on Texas turfs.

Smith and Rube Williams starred in the hard-fought East-West game this year. Smith's squad also includes Gilly Gilmore, a four-goal handicap man; Tom Mather, a five-goaler, and George Miller, who trains polo ponies for the East.

Maryland Five Ready for Indiana

First Team in Good Shape for Game Tomorrow With Hoosiers.

This afternoon Maryland puts the finishing touches on its preparations for the Indiana game tomorrow night at Ritchie Coliseum, as the Hoosiers leave for the East on a three-game trip. Marshall College is their first stop, Maryland tomorrow and Temple, at Philadelphia, Monday, completes the itinerary.

Maryland's first team of Bucky Buscher, "Spider" Chase, Rufus Vincent, Bernie Buscher and Bob Snyder, is ready for the fray. They have been going well in practice this week and should give the invaders a stiff game. The reserve situation is well out of hand, but Coach Burt Shipley hopes to get by with few substitutions.

Indiana's Record Good.

Indiana comes East with a good record, having won three of its four games, losing one by a single point. Two sophomores, Vernon Huffman, center, and Les Stout, forward, have been the sparkplugs on the offense. Wendel Walker, also a sophomore, and Will Kert and Woody Weir, the latter two veterans, round out the starting team. Others in the party are Bob Porter, Keith Campbell and Bill Coulter—all players, and Coach E. S. Dean, Trainer J. D. Ferguson and Marshall Hubbard, student manager.

Indiana will arrive tomorrow atfernoon. Sunday the squad will remain over for a sight-seeing tour of the city, proceeding to Philadelphia Monday for the game with Temple.

To Pay the Flower Bill

By Paul Gallico.

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 28 (Spl.).—As far as I can determine after a brief but searching investigation, the Rose Bowl game on New Year's Day here will be played to pay for somebody's flower bill. This may seem cryptic but there is an annual parade here on New Year's Day known as the Tournament of Roses. All the towns around here get up floats and decorate them with flowers and pretty girls and they ride around.

This is an expensive proposition even though the pretty girls are free. I hope the pretty girls are free. I would not care to think that our sacred and commercially untainted football team had been lured to the Pacific Coast to pay for the renting of pretty girls to ride on floats. I do not think President Butler of Columbia would care for that either.

Flowers are all right. Everybody who has ever walked into a florist's and paid five bucks for 10 cents worth of purple weeds tied together with bunch grass and a piece of colored string knows what flowers are. It all runs into dough. There is nothing wrong with Columbia going in for philanthropic horticulture on the Pacific Slopes. Pretty girls are something else again.

The Rose Bowl cash is cut three ways after the expenses have been creamed off the top. Each school gets one-third and the last slice goes to the Rose Bowl Committee to pay for the expenses of the Tournament of Roses. I could go on from there and tell you what the annual parade of the Tournament of Roses is for, but I have been told that I must not because the Californians are a little touchy about that, though I do not see why they should be. All the merchants and townspeople and chamber of commerce tycoons have discovered that the affair is very stimulating to trade and business hereabouts and gets their community talked about.

Pictures are printed in the papers and very often people from other States see these pictures and say—"That looks like a pretty place and if they can have all those flowers at Christmas time it must be a swell climate. Let's go there."

If one did not wish to injure the feelings of charming hosts, one would call it advertising. In fact, why be so touchy about calling it advertising? If the local football teams are willing to perform for the greater prosperity of the communities in which they live, I think that's swell.

I have always thought that football teams should be put to some more fruitful use than lugging a blown-up leather oval from one end of a field to another. And what strikes me as especially charming is that dear old Columbia, which grew very stiff-necked back East when the charity football games were being proposed to alleviate some of the suffering in the community, should unbend finally in the cause of disseminating the virtues of Pasadena in the winter time.

A Columbia-N. Y. U. game at the time it was proposed might have netted $75,000 or $80,000 for sweet charity in the home town. At that time, Dean Hawkes lectured grimly on the evils of post-season games. Tsk! Tsk! Tsk!

Columbia pays its own expenses out here, and its share of the swag is estimated at about $40,000 on an estimated $160,000 gate. If there is a sudden rush for the turnstiles on game day, this figure may go as high as $60,000. It seems like a very fair proposition all around. Everybody gets dough, the natives see a swell football game and the florists get paid. I can see nothing for the Californians to get touchy about. I called up one of them during my investigation and said: "Can you tell me in a few words what the Rose Bowl game is played for?" He said: "I can tell you in one word, 'dough'" I see nothing wrong in that. What do you think I write these pieces for—art?

The game gets tougher and tougher to figure. Los Angeles experts are drifting back from Tucson, where they have been looking over Columbia's team. They find them tough, powerful, like the way the line charges, like Montgomery and Nevel, and Barabas, Brominksi and all the rest of our heroes, think that Matal will outplay anyone on the field at end, and there you are.

They think that Stanford will win, but that it will be no picnic, and that Columbia might even do something unexpected. Is it just that we can never see any virtue in our own, that prophets are indeed without honor in their own countries?

One thing I do know—Montgomery had better not hold on to those passes too long, because that Stanford line comes hustling through to harass a passer like a gang of excited ladies charging on a bargain counter. You never saw so many hands reaching all at once. Also they had best keep an eye on that Grayson when he goes back to pass because, if his men are covered and he can't get it off, he is very likely to tuck the ball under his arm and run it farther than he could have chucked it.

I think I will go out this afternoon and try and find some flaws in the Stanfords. I still pick Columbia.

Heurich Brewers Open Season Here on Sunday

The Heurich Brewers, newly formed professional basket ball team, will make its debut Sunday against the Polish-American five of Baltimore. The game is listed for the G. W. gym at 2:30 o'clock.

The local cage team is composed mostly of former District high and college stars. They include Johnny Fenlon, former George Washington satellite; Joe Croson, who starred for Duke University; Moon Evans, late of the University of Maryland court, and Ralph Bennie, star basket baller of Eastern High School, a few years ago.

A prelim has been scheduled between the Bovello Plumbers and the Northeast Boys Club.

Lions Practice Speed and Deception

Improved Execution of Passing, Running Attack Is Stressed.

Tucson, Ariz., Dec. 28 (AP).—Work designed to add to the speed and deception of Columbia's football team marked the practice session today as the Lions whetted their offensive claws for the Indian stalwarts of Stanford at Pasadena, come the new year.

Outweighed as they are, the gridsters from Morningside Heights concentrated on improved execution of their passing and running attack, with Cliff Montgomery, Al Barabas, Ed Brominski and the two ends, Tony Matal and Owen McDowell, figuring prominently in the plays.

Wilder Exercises Too.

Newell Wilder, Columbia's field-goal counter-threat to Bill Corbus, of Stanford, also indulged again in some plain and fancy placement work. Coach Lou Little's team has presented a puzzling array of plays in its workouts here. It comes out of the huddle in a weird, criss-cross fashion and into its formation, the like of which Pacific Coast grid fans have not seen this year.

The Lions have an impressive array of second-string reserve backs in Joe Linehan, senior, and Tommy Tomb, Frank Chippendale and Sam Maniaci, second-year men of goodly experience and almost as much speed and versitality as the first-rank ball carriers.

The one drawback so far as the Columbia back field goes is the lack of weight. Barabas, brilliant sophomore, tops the list at 190 pounds, and Maniaci tips the beam at 181, but the others will go into the game at 170 pounds or less.

Lions Low Chargers.

Still there is considerable question among local critics who have watched the Lion line work as to Stanford's chance of making many yards through these positions. The Columbia forwards play a low-charging game which may worry the Indian giants.

Today's workout again was started late as the sun came out warm after yesterday's brief thundershower. Coach Little sent the squad to the dressing room soon, however, and promised to be even more lenient tomorrow and Saturday.

Morning chalk talks have been dispensed with too. The Columbia mentor feels that too much discussion of the game at this time might leave the players mentally stale.

Saturday's final local drill will be held in the afternoon instead of the morning, as was originally planned, since a goodly share of the team will attend 1 o'clock mass.

High School Highlights.

Eastern will tangle with the Washington Boys' Club tonight in the year's scholastic sports adieu. The game, which was arranged last week, will begin at 8:30 o'clock at the Boys' Club. A preliminary setto featuring a pair of unlimited fives is slated for 7 o'clock.

---

The Salem (Mass.) High School football team, which traveled to the Coast, only to be whipped by Urban Military Academy, of Los Angeles, 18-0, will return via the Capital City, where it will take to sightseeing buses. Incidentally, the players on their way to the Coast stopped here en route for 15 minutes, where they went through calisthenics at the Union Station. The team is due here next Wednesday or Thursday.

Much interest has been aroused by local scholastic followers concerning Central High's next season football schedule. A team that has not graced the Mount Pleasanters' slate for 15 years is rumored to be carded, but the officials of the school are mum as to the identity of the eleven.

The interhigh basket ball series started in 1917 and over that span Central has copped the bunting six times and has been cochampion with Eastern twice, in 1926 and 1931; Tech captured the first tournament in '17, and won the round-robin affair on four other occasions. Eastern has taken the series outright on three occasions, while Business, now Roosevelt, clinched the 1919 argument. Western has yet to be heard from.

Twin Oaks Five Wins.

The Twin Oaks Blackhawks defeated the Headquarters Battery, of Fort Myer, last night, 47-18. The Schaefer brothers, of the Hawk quintet, starred.

East's Line-up Leaves Out Feathers

Post Taken by Everhardus; Team Will Engage in Scrimmage Today.

San Francisco, Dec. 28 (AP).—After seeing Eastern football stars shuffled about in practice for the last five days, observers had their first glimpse today of what is expected to be the team that lines up for the kick-off against the West in the annual charity game here New Year's Day.

Coaches for the East, Dick Hanley of Northwestern and Andy Kerr of Colgate, were noncommittal on the subject, but those who have followed the workouts at Stanford University believe the starting eleven has just about been decided upon.

The team that appeared to have found favor was distinguished by the absence of Beattie Feathers, half back from the University of Tennessee and one of the outstanding stars of the Southern Conference.

Whether the switch is merely another of a long list of experiments was not explained, but Feathers' place was taken by Herman Everhardus from the University of Michigan. Everhardus held down the left half back position on the eleven that drilled on offensive tactics steadily for an hour today.

Laws and Everhardus, who have shown the trickiest running with the ball during the training period, have alternated at handling the safety position.

The 22 members of the squad are in fine fettle. Tom Hupke, Alabama guard, has recovered from a wrenched knee and a cut on Gailus' head has healed.

Brugnon in Victory.

Paris, Dec. 28 (AP).—Jacques Brugnon, veteran French Davis Cup player, today defeated Andre Merlin, one of the country's chief hopes for next year's team, in the quarter-finals of the annual Christmas tournament. The score was 6—4, 4—6, 2—6, 6—1, 6—3.

Stocks Extend Advance After Tax Selling

Gains Range Up to 4 Points as Turnover Drops to 1,501,360 Shares.

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—Stocks easily took tax sale hurdles today and, in a broader advance than they had Wednesday, closed with gains of fractions to around 4 points.

Volume dipped to 1,501,360 shares but the market was higher through the session and final prices were around the top.

Dollar exchange was about steady, rising at times in terms of the pound sterling. There was no change in the now familiar Treasury gold price, $34.06 an ounce.

Sales for Cash.

Stock owners who wish to record tax losses had to sell for cash, making immediately delivery and a goodly proportion of today's transactions were of that character. However, the market had no trouble handling them; on the contrary, support was well distributed throughout the list.

Doubtless recent short sellers found it expedient to reduce their commitments in view of yesterday's firmer tone and the accumulating evidence of business improvement as the year approaches its exit.

American Telephone, Allied Chemical, United States Steel preferred and Du Pont were among the stronger leaders, rising 3, to slightly more than 4 points net. Steel Common, Chrysler, United States Smelting, American Smelting, American Can, New York Central, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Consolidated Gas and Westinghouse were up about 1 to 2.

On Gaining List.

Commercial Solvents, Union Bag & Paper, Industrial Rayon, American Tobacco "B," Liggett & Myers "B," Reynolds Tobacco "B," National Distillers and Inland Steel were in the same range of advance.

The President was reported to be seeking an $800,000,000 surplus above ordinary expenditures for the next fiscal year, a prospective total of around six billions, including emergency requirements, would be met, it was assumed here, largely through borrowing.

Robey's Review

Finance Economics Business

Mere Statement That Deficit Is Now in Excess of $1,000,000,000 Fails to Show the Real Position of Government Finances.

By Ralph West Robey.

President Roosevelt perhaps is right in saying that there is no reason to be surprised by the fact that the Federal deficit now has passed the $1,000,000,000 mark. At least he is right to the extent that there is no reason for anyone who has been following the trend of Government expenditures in recent months to be surprised by the developments. This group, too, will have no reason to be surprised when the deficit passes the $3,000,000,000 mark, which it is certain to do unless there is a radical reform in the financial habits of the Administration.

At the same time I am quite unable to see how the absence of the element of surprise lessens the seriousness of the deficit. The mere fact that everyone knows we are spending money far in excess of receipts does not, in any degree, lighten the burden of the deficit on our financial system. Neither will it make it any easier to pay the taxes which will have to be levied in order to meet this debt.

Important Aspect Is the Trend of the Deficit.

The important thing, in other words, is not whether the deficit was expected, but where the present financial program is leading. The best answer to this is found in the record of the last six months as compared with the corresponding six months of last year. In the following table such a comparison is made on the basis of the aggregate figures for each month and on the basis of the average daily deficit for the month. In both years the deficits omit all expenditures for public debt retirements. The amounts are in millions of dollars.

| | Monthly Deficit | | Ave. Daily Deficit | |
| | 1933 | 1932 | 1933 | 1932 |
| July ..... | 108 | 413 | 3.5 | 13.3 |
| August .. | 122 | 251 | 3.9 | 8.1 |
| September | 8 | 18 | .3 | .6 |
| October . | 244 | 311 | 7.9* | 10.0 |
| Nov. .... | 283 | 152 | 10.1 | .5.4 |

From this table it is clear that the best month of this fiscal year as compared with 1932 was July. In that month the deficit was $298,000,000 less than for July 1932. In August the improvement dropped to $129,000,000 and in September to $10,000,000. In October the trend was reversed and the deficit was $67,000,000 less than for the same month last year. In November, there was a turn for the worse again, however, and the deficit exceeded that of last year by $131,000,000, and the first 26 days of this month the rate was even worse, the deficit being $304,000,000 larger than for the first 26 days of December 1932.

In some respects perhaps an even better way to show the recent trend is on a percentage basis. In other words one may reduce the average daily deficit of each month this year to a percentage basis of the average daily deficit in the same period in 1932. When this is done one finds that in July our deficit was only 26 per cent of what it was last year. In August the percentage increased to 48; in September to 50; in October to 79 and in November to 187. This month to date can not be reduced to a percentage basis because so far the average has been a deficit of $11,100,000 a day as against a surplus last year of $200,000 a day.

Such, then, in brief, is the record of the last six months in the Federal deficit as compared with the same period last year. Our total deficit less public debt retirements, on December 26 was $1,066,000,000. Last year the comparable figure was $1,147,000,000, or only $81,000,000 more. Unless the trend is changed there is only one outcome. That is to start the printing presses.

Goods Market.

New York, Dec. 28 (A.P.).—Moderate sales of print cloths and broadcloths were made today for January-February delivery. Finished goods are quiet and firm. Rayon fabric sales are increasing. Wool goods inquiries were more general for the day. Burlaps were firm and unchanged. Silk prints are in better demand.

Foreign Markets.

London, Dec. 28 (A.P.).—Trading on the stock exchange was quiet today, in view of the approaching year-end. Gilt-edged securities and Kaffirs lost most improvement, but Argentine rails, transatlantic issues, foreign bonds and oil shares maintained their firmness. The market closed quiet.

Paris—Short covering for year-end liquidation strengthened French issues on the bourse. International stocks remained steady. The close was steady.

Bonds Record Half Point Gain On Light Sales

Secondary Loans Provide Strength; Trading Cut to $11,914,000.

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—Strength of secondary loans was the feature of today's bond market as year-end tax selling for cash was well absorbed and switching of both speculative and investment holdings resulted in substantial price advances.

Notwithstanding the general gains, the activity dwindled sharply as "regular" transactions for 1933 income statements were no longer permissible because of the two-day delivery rule. Sales totaled only $11,914,000, par value, compared with $21,145,000 in the previous session.

Little Change in Outlook.

There was little change in optimistic business prospects. Intimations from Washington that the Government would lend a hand in meeting next year's rail maturities was helpful to the transportation list.

Small advances and similar declines ruled in U. S. Government securities. Trading was quiet in this group as the gold price was again unchanged and the dollar firmed moderately in foreign exchange dealings.

Active carrier gainers of 1 to 3 or more points included some liens of Allegheny Corporation, Central of Georgia, Chesapeake Corporation, Chesapeake & Ohio, St. Paul, Chicago & Northwestern, Denver & Rio Grande, Erie, Great Northern, Fort Scott, Louisville & Arkansas, M. K. T., Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Nickel Plate, Pennsylvania, Frisco, Southern Pacific, Southern and Wabash.

Utilities and Industrials.

Among the utilities and industrials up 1 to more than 2 points were bonds of American & Foreign Power, American Waterworks Childs Co., Detroit Edison, Goodrich, International Telephone, Postal Telegraph, National Dairy, Portland General Electric, Richfiled Oil, Tennessee Electric Power, United States Rubber, Utilities Power & Light, Warner Bros., Western Union and Youngstown Sheet & Tube.

Obligations of Dutch East Indies were up 1 to around 3 points, following reports that a conversion offer would be made by the Netherlands government.

Bonds of Germany also improved. Some Cuban issues were off 2 points and Swedish Kingdom 5½s lost 3½.

Loans to Brokers Gain $48,000,000

(Associated Press.)

Loans to brokers and dealers held by weekly reporting New York City member banks amounted to $801,000,000 during the week ended December 27, the Federal Reserve Board reported today, representing an increase of $48,000,000 for the week.

The loans for the week ended December 28, 1932, were $394,000,000.

|---|---|---|---|

U. S. Treasury Receipts.

(Associated Press.)

The position of the Treasury on December 26 was: Receipts, $12,929,671.76; expenditures, $81,578,166.78; balance, $1,072,221,087.10; customs receipts for the month, $22,631,870.45.

Receipts for the fiscal year since July 1 were $1,452,296,311.15; expenditures, $2,541,306,601.08 (including $1,094,068,856.20 emergency expenditures). Excess of expenditures, $1,089,010,289.93.

Virginian Road Nets $583,192 For November

Seaboard Air Line Earns $2,197,000 More in Eleven Months.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 28 (AP).—Operating revenue of $1,129,199.63 for November as compared with $1,061,631.28 for November, 1932, is shown in a statement of revenues, expenses and net income of the Virginian Railway for the month and for the first 11 months in 1933.

Net revenue from railway operations for the month is given as $583,192.12, a substantial gain over the figure for the corresponding month for last year, which was $522,561.22. For the period from January 1 to December 1, operating revenue of $12,287,406.32 is shown as compared with $11,592,642.20 for the corresponding period in 1932.

Operating income for November, 1933, is shown as $458,192.12, as against $392,510.03 for November, 1932. Total income for the month, however, shows a slight decline in 1933, the figure being $602,285.10 as compared with $603,757.05 in November, 1932.

Improvement in business, including an increase of $2,197,000 in the gross income for the first 11 months of this year is reported for the Seaboard Air Line Railway by Leigh R. Powell, jr., one of the receivers for the railway.

Mr. Powell reported that there was a marked increase in the number of passengers riding Seaboard trains since the road reduced passenger fares on December 1. He also announced the Seaboard's Orange Blosson Special, which runs from New York to Miami and St. Petersburg, would offer all air-conditioned trains, starting January 2.

Gross revenue for the first 11 months in 1933 was $28,763,000, as compared with $28,087,000 in the same period of 1932, an increase of $676,000.

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—Madison Square Garden Corporation in the quarter ended November 30 had net loss of $40,106 against loss of 165,523 in the preceding quarter and net income of $26,011 in the November, 1932, quarter. For the six months ended November 30 there was net loss of $205,629 against loss of $130,133 in the same period of the previous fiscal year. These figures do not include operations of Boston Madison Square Garden Corporation, a partly-owned subsidiary, which had loss of $46,750 for the six months against loss of $38,261 in the corresponding period of 1932.

Bell Telephone Co., of Pennsylvania, reports November net operating income of $971,058 compared with $1,015,165 a year ago. Gross was $4,900,824 against $5,038,347. For the first 11 months gross totaled $53,751,585 compared with $59,838,072, while net operating income was $11,096,188 against $11,772,147.

37 States' Building Rises 50 Per Cent

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—Contracts for construction projects in 37 States east of the Rocky Mountains during the first two weeks in December totaled $122,877,200, or more than 50 per cent above the total for the entire month of December last year, F. W. Dodge Corporation reported today.

Residential building projects amounted to $13,629,200, against $12,957,500 for the entire month of December, 1932, and public works and utilities contracts were almost twice as large. Nonresidential building totaled $25,423,100 contrasted with $24,944,900 for the entire month of December last year.

In the month of November contracts amounting to $162,330,600 were reported for the same area, which was approximately 12 per cent greater than for October and about 55 per cent larger than reported during November, 1932.

Curb Resumes Upward Trek; Closes Strong

Utilities Lead Advance; Sales Volume Cut to 282,000 Shares.

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—The Curb market finished strong after a steady upward trek in prices today. Closing gains ranged from one to more than three points.

Utilities led the way while alcohols, oils, industrial specialties and metals followed in close order.

The market absorbed considerable year-end tax selling, as indicated by the volume of the cash sales appearing on the tape. Sales for tax purposes for regular delivery ended yesterday.

Columbia Gas & Electric preferred soared 6 points in an active turnover. Great Atlantic & Pacific recorded a similar advance in a light transfer. Safety Car Heating and Pan-American Airways both got back most of their losses yesterday of around 3 points.

Issues closing 1 to 2 or more higher included American Gas & Electric, Canadian Industrial Alcohol A and B, Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, General Tire & Rubber, Gulf and Humble Oils, Montgomery Ward A, Newmont Mining, Waco Aircraft, A. O. Smith and Swift International.

Transfers approximated 282,000 shares compared with 774,000 for yesterday.

The Markets at a Glance

| | Wed. | Thurs. |
|---|---|---|
| Advances | 577 | 359 |
| Declines | 49 | 389 |
| Unchanged | 117 | 157 |
| Total issues | 743 | 905 |

Stocks—Advances were extended after tax selling waned, and the list averaged 2.3 points up. Gains during the day ranged from fractions to 4 points. Sales volume dropped to 1,501,360 shares.

Bonds—Strength of secondary loans was the bond market's feature. Tax offerings were absorbed and substantial gains resulted. Rises averaged a half point. Sales dropped to $11,914,000.

Curb—Prices advanced and the market closed strong. Utilities led the rise, followed by oils, alcohols and industrials. Sales volume cut to 282,000 shares.

Wheat—Presistent backsliding marked trading in wheat. Higher stock prices failed to coax the grain into climbing. Dearth of buyers was blamed. Corn and oats were mixed, but leaned to the easing side. December wheat sold at 83½; May, at 85¾.

Cotton—Prices were steady on trade and commission-house buying promoted by the firmness in the stock market and continued light offerings from the South. March closed at 10.26. The general market advanced 2 to 4 points.

Rubber—Crude rubber futures closed quiet, unchanged to 6 points higher. January sold at 8.85; March, at 9.12.

Sugar—Raw sugar was unchanged, and stood at yesterday's prices of 3.15 and 3.20; refined sold at 4.30.

Gold—Bar gold was unchanged in the United States and stood at $34.06 per ounce. In London it sold at 126 shillings and 3 pence.

Dollar—The United States dollar rose on foreign exchanges. It stood in New York, with reference to other currencies, $5.07½ to the English pound; 6.06½ cents to the French franc, and 37 cents to the German mark.

Fidelity Group Income Plan Is Approved

National Bank of Washington Votes $3 Dividend on Share Capital.

Fidelity Investment Association of Wheeling, W. Va., with local offices in the Shoreham Building, whose income reserve plan has been officially approved by the Industrial Commission of Wisconsin as a depository for reserve funds under the Wisconsin unemployment compensation act, has several thousand clients in Washington. Among them are hundreds of business and professional men.

The association was organized in 1911, with resources of $62,934.56. Today they are in excess of $20,000,000. During this time it has paid out to its clients more than $25,000,000. Larger sums were paid out in 1930, 1931 and 1932 than during any similar period in its history.

To meet these obligations, the association has never had to borrow money from any source, its officials state. During the same period the combined volume of new business exceeded the previous three-year period by 92.4 per cent. A 100 per cent approved reserve of liabilities on all contracts is deposited with the State treasurer to guarantee cash values at all times.

The income reserve plan which has been approved by the Industrial Commission of Wisconsin is used individually in the District of Columbia. The association has maintained offices locally for 15 years.

Directors of the National Bank of Washington declared a semiannual dividend of $3 per share at their regular monthly meeting held yesterday. The dividend is payable January 2, 1934, to shareholders of record December 27, 1933. Transfer books will be closed December 27, 1933, and reopened January 10, 1934.

Four companies filed their November statements of operation yesterday with the Public Utilities Commission. Washington Gas Light Co. reported net income for the month of $105,105, compared with $63,241 in November 1932. For the 11 months, it was $764,948 as against $912,194 in the corresponding period last year.

Georgetown Gaslight Co. announced net income for last month of $4,972 as contrasted with $3,692 in the month a year ago. For the 11 months, it records net income of $13,795, in comparison with $98,847 for the 1932 period.

Potomac Electric Power Co. had a November net income of $361,337.13. In the month last year, it was $398,258.06. In the 11 months of 1933, it amounts to $4,017,523.40. For a similar period last year, it was $4,048,223.80.

Net income of Washington Railway & Electric Co. in November totaled $460,969.02. In November 1932, it was $414,107.03. For the 11 months of 1933, it aggregates $1,722,319.62. In the like period last year, it was $1,709,813.18.

$3,400,000 Interest Is Paid by Detroit

New York, Dec. 28.—The City of Detroit bondholders' refunding committee, of which Mr. B. A. Thompkins, vice president of Bankers Trust Co., is chairman, announced today that $240,961,332 of City of Detroit bonds and notes had been deposited under the city's refunding plan as of December 15. This amount represents more than 85 per cent of the city's obligations to be refunded.

More than $3,400,000 of interest has been distributed to bondholders who have deposited with the committee, the payment representing the first which Detroit bondholders have received since the city defaulted on its obligations last February.

The interest distributed represents the full two-thirds of the cash interest which is payable under the refunding plan for the period from July 1 to December 15 of this year. This interest applies only to the city's tax-supported debt, as payments have been maintained without interruption on the city's street railway bonds and were resumed on its water bonds on July 1 of this year.

West Virginia Market Bulletin.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 28 (Spl.).—Because of lack of funds the West Virginia Market Bulletin, publication of the State department of agriculture, will be published once a month in the future, instead of twice, as formerly.

It will be mailed to those on the lists on the first of every month. The present circulation, which is 60,000, is free.

600,000 Hogs to Be Killed.

Bucharest, Rumania, Dec. 28 (AP).—The Rumanian government is planning to slaughter 600,000 hogs for the purpose of raising the market price of pork. The meat will be distributed among the distressed villages in Transylvania.

Commodities Continue Fall In Past Week

New York, Dec. 28.—Continued weakness in the price structure of commodities at wholesale has carried the Daily Weighted Price Index, compiled by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., to the lowest level since October 19. The index for Thursday, December 21, stood at 97.75, or 1.78 points under the previous week's figures of 99.53, and 3.70 points below a month ago when the index registered 101.45. Compared with the 71.23 index of a year ago, however, the latest index shows a rise of 26.53 points.

Comparing current quotations with those of a week ago, declines in the following commodities were noted: Wheat, corn, rye, oats, flour, lard, sugar, butter, hogs, cotton, silk, zinc, tin and silver. Coffee, copper and lambs were the only items to show advances.

Following is tabulated the Dun & Bradstreet Daily Weighted Price Index of 30 basic commodities compiled from quotations furnished by the United Press, since November 1, for this year and last. (1930-1932—100):

$1,400,000 Bond Issue.

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—A banking group composed of Blyth & Co., Chemical Bank & Trust Co., and Moncure Biddle & Co., of Philadelphia, today was awarded a $1,400,000 bond issue of the City of Pittsburgh at a price of $101.67 per hundred dollar par. The bonds bear 4½ per cent interest and are due in 1 to 20 years.

World Trade Improves.

San Francisco, Dec. 28 (AP).—A world-wide improvement in business has arrived, A. P. Giannini, chairman of the board of the Bank of America, said today in a year-end statement. He said unemployment had been decreased and many general business indices reflected improvement in industry.

Wheat Values Sink in Spite Of Stocks' Rise

Dearth of Buyers Blamed in Setback; All Other Grains Weaken.

Chicago, Dec. 28 (AP).—Persistent backsliding characterized grain values today, although a strong stock market advance coaxed them quite often to climb.

Forecasts of temperatures in the Southwest, together with possibilities of rain or snow where needed, did much to put a stop to uneasiness which had prevailed regarding likelihood of crop damage to wheat.

These factors more than counterbalanced the effect of upturns of securities, and were given emphasis by a let-up in purchase of wheat for mills and for Federal relief operations.

Wheat Closes Unsettled.

Wheat closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to ¾ lower; corn, ½ off to ⅛ up; oats, unchanged to ⅜ down, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7 cents.

The maximum setback suffered by wheat was about a cent a bushel. Dearth of aggressive new buying formed an evident bearish influence that was felt from the outset.

The fact that a decided fresh drop in temperature, which was looked for Southwest, had failed to develop served especially to handicap friends of higher prices, despite absence of a snow blanket in that region, with continuance of cold weather.

Aids to Rallies.

Transient rallies in wheat were helped not only by strength of securities but also by the fact that for the second successive day total domestic primary receipts of wheat had dwindled to around as little as 200,000 bushels. It was pointed out that yesterday's and today's gross arrivals were the smallest two days accumulation this season.

Notice was also taken of estimates that more than 9,000,000 bushels of United States wheat has so far been sold abroad from the North Pacific Coast through the aid of Government funds derived from processing taxes.

Corn and oats showed relative firmness as compared with wheat. This was due largely to extreme scantiness of rural offerings of corn.

Wall Street Briefs.

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—The Illinois Central Railroad is expected to cover its charges in December after showing a deficit of around $77,000 last month, says L. A. Downs, president. There has been a sharp pickup in the road's coal traffic so far this week.

A New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange membership sold today for $5,500, up $500.

A special director's meeting of Alaska Juneau Co. will be held on January 2, at which time dividend action is expected.

At a directors' meeting of the Illinois Central Railroad, R. E. Connolly was elected secretary and treasurer, succeeding D. R. Burbank, who resigned because of ill health.

World production of lead in November totaled 132,149 tons, against 124,280 in October and 104,043 in November, 1932, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reports. United States production was 38,459 tons, against 30,390 in October.

Clifford P. Barrett will retire as general Western passenger agent of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad on January 1. His successor will be William E. Carbone, general agent of the passenger department at Buffalo. Barrett, whose office is in Chicago, has been in railroad service for 57 years, of which 33 were spent with the Lackawanna.

Sugar consumption in the United States during November decreased 5.09 per cent, compared with the corresponding month last year, at 365,731 tons, compared with 385,342, according to B. W. Dyer & Co., sugar brokers. November was the sixth consecutive month of decrease as compared with the corresponding periods last year.

14 Nations Add To Purchases Of U. S. Goods

15 Other Countries Step Up Buying in America During 9 Months.

Larger purchases of American merchandise by 14 countries in the Western Hemisphere in the first nine months of 1933, as compared with the same period in 1932, was one of the encouraging features of this country's foreign trade improvement in that period, as reviewed by the Foreign Commerce Department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

In addition, the chamber's trade analysis shows 15 other countries in widely scattered parts of the world made increased purchases from the United States in the nine-month period.

These 29 countries, with percentages of increases, as shown in the review, were Italy, 20.1 per cent gain; Belgium, 0.3 per cent; Spain, 3.4 per cent; Poland and Danzig, 113.9 per cent; Portugal, 18.8 per cent; Finland, 7 per cent; Rumania, 14.4 per cent; Mexico, 14.3 per cent; Argentina, 9.5 per cent; Brazil, 3.5 per cent; Panama, 0.3 per cent; Colombia, 43 per cent; Venezuela, 15.4 per cent; Dutch West Indies, 47.4 per cent; Dominican Republic, 13 per cent; Honduras, 8.9 per cent; Chile, 31.1 per cent; Guatemala, 14.7 per cent; Salvador, 8.5 per cent; Nicaragua, 5.9 per cent; Bolivia, 47.2 per cent; Trinidad and Tobago, 14.5 per cent; Palestine, 51.6 per cent; Kwantung, 97.3 per cent; Iraq, 1.9 per cent; South Africa, 21.2 per cent; Egypt, 23.6 per cent; Mozambique, 11.8 per cent, and Canary Islands, 18.6 per cent.

"Five markets, United Kingdom, Canada, Germany, Japan, and France, took more than half of our exports. Sales to the United Kingdom for the first nine months of 1933 amounted to $194,854,000, 6 8 per cent less than a year ago. Exports to Canada totaled $147,797,000, a decline of 21.8 per cent. Sales to Germany amounted to $91,965,000, but 3 per cent below those for the first three-quarters of 1932. Purchases by Japan, amounting to $91,295,000, were 4 per cent below the 1932 figure. Exports to France amounted to $78,347,000, or only 2 per cent less than a year ago.

"Customers whose purchases from the United States showed a decrease, included Netherlands decrease 8.6 per cent, Sweden 8 per cent, Denmark 18.7 per cent, Russia 24.7 per cent, Switzerland 11.3 per cent, Norway 10.3 per cent, Irish Free State 37.8 per cent, Greece 71.8 per cent, Czechoslovakia 29.7 per cent, Cuba 15.2 per cent, Peru 2.2 per cent, Uruguay 14.9 per cent, China 25.3 per cent, Philippine Islands 5.9 per cent, India 34.9 per cent, Hongkong, 17.1 per cent, Dutch East Indies 29.5 per cent, British Malaya 17.9 per cent, Australia 15 per cent, New Zealand 17.6 per cent, British West Africa 17.3 per cent.

Week's Trade Failures Drop Below 1932

New York, Dec. 28.—Business failures in the United States for the second week of December have taken another considerable drop. The records of Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., for the week ended last Thursday, December 14, shows a total of 260 business defaults, against 303 and 268, respectively, in the two preceding weeks, and 590 failures in the same week of last year. This week's return was in marked contrast with the increase that was shown a week ago. Furthermore, the number continues far below that for last year and two years ago.

The improvement for the latest week is mainly in the East and in the Pacific Coast States. This is true, not only in the comparison with the preceding week, but with the corresponding week of last year. The number in the latest report was also slightly lower in the South. On the other hand, there was a slight increase in the West compared with the first week of the month. Insolvencies with liabilities of $5,000 or more in each instance, numbered 164, as compared with 192 a week earlier. For the comparative week last year, the number of similar defaults was 378.

In the Dominion of Canada, insolvencies numbered 48, which was higher than in the preceding week when the number was 35. There were 62 for the same period of 1932.

The weekly record of business failures in the United States for the year to date, with figures for the corresponding weeks in both preceding years, is given below:

Daily Reserve Banks' Credit Averages $11,000,000 Higher

The daily average volume of Federal Reserve Bank credit outstanding during the week ended December 27, as reported yesterday to the Federal Reserve Board, was $2,698,000,000, an increase of $11,000,000 compared with the preceding week and of $509,000,000 compared with the corresponding week in 1932.

On December 27 total reserve bank credit amounted to $2,674,000,000, a decrease of $12,000,000 for the week. This decrease corresponds with decreases of $25,000,000 in money in circulation and $8,000,000 in unexpended capital funds, nonmember deposits, and an increase of $19,000,000 in Treasury currency adjusted, offset in part by an increase of $39,000,000 in member bank reserve balances.

The system's holding of bills discounted declined $4,000,000 and of bills bought in open market $2,000,000. Holdings of the various classes of the United States Securities were practically unchanged.

Changes in the amount of reserve bank credit outstanding and in related items during the week and the year ended December 27, 1933 (in millions of dollars), follows:

British Tighten Import Curbs On Beef Cattle

In order to protect domestic producers and to avert a threatened break in prices, quota restrictions have been imposed on beef and cattle imports into the United Kingdom and further reductions may be made in the import quotas on bacon, ham and other meats, according to a cablegram received in the Department of Commerce from Commercial Attache Lynn W. Meekins, London.

The importation of canned beef from foreign (non-empire) sources is to be subject to control, that of chilled beef reduced by the same extent as during the first quarter of 1933, and that of frozen beef by 30 per cent below quantities imported during the first quarter of 1932. Negotiations are also proceeding for readjusting the proportions of boned and boneless beef imported under the classification of frozen beef.

Additional reductions in the import quotas of bacon, ham and other cured pork from the principal non-empire suppliers, amounting to 7 per cent during the quarter beginning March 1 and an additional 3 per cent during that beginning June 1, are being considered, if justified by prospects of domestic production.

Announcement also was made of an import prohibition against beef veal and beef veal offals from the Irish Free State, reductions in the quantities of slaughter and feeder cattle imported from that country, and an agreement that imports of such cattle from Canada during the first three months of 1934 are not to exceed those during the corresponding quarter of 1933.

Baltimore Grain Prices.

Baltimore, Dec. 28.—WHEAT—Shipments from elevators, 2,200 bushels. Stock in elevators, 1,329,685 bushels. Opening prices were: No. 2 red winter, garlicky, spot, domestic, 89½; December delivery, domestic 89½; January delivery, domestic, 90. Receipts of wheat running light and demand is fairly good here for No. 2 red winter, garlicky. Off grades hard to dispose of.

CORN—Receipts, 3,004 bushels by car. Shipments from elevators, 116 bushels. Stock in elevators, 16,275 bushels. Receipts of corn from the nearby territory are running light and trading is moderate. For yellow and high-colored mixed there is a fair domestic demand. Cob corn quoted at 2.75@3.00 per barrel for carloads prime nearby yellow on spot. Offerings fair. No. 2 yellow corn (old) arriving here by car quoted at 63@64 per bushel with transit billing.

OATS—Receipts, 2,491 bushels by car. Shipments from elevators, 2,723 bushels. Stock in elevators, 56,871 bushels. Receipts of oats show considerable variation in weight, being mostly light. Demand fair in a jobbing way. Good, heavyweight oats are relatively scarce, and such command a good premium. No. 2 white oats, 48@52 per bushel as to weight and position.

Note—On all sales of oats to the local trade, excepting those on track, there is an additional charge of 1¼ cents per bushel for storage and elevation, which is paid by the buyer.

RYE—Receipts, 3,241 bushels by car. Shipments from elevators, 76 bushels. Stock in elevators, 90,035 bushels.

HAY—General hay market is quiet. No surplus of good timothy. Prices range from 12.00 to 14.00 per ton, as to grade and kind. The poorer grades of hay are hard to sell at any price. Market irregular on everything below No. 3 timothy.

CHEESE—Receipts, 80,233; irregular; prices unchanged.

RAW SUGAR—Quiet and unchanged today. Offerings consisted of one small lot of Cuban for prompt shipment at 3.20 and some duty frees for December-January shipment at 3.15, but refiners showed no interest.

The market for refined was quiet and unchanged at 4.30 for fine granulated.

SPOT COFFEE—Firm; Santos 4s, 8¾; Rio 7s, 8⅜. Cost and freight offers included Bourbon 3s and 5s at 9.00@9.15.

Power Production Boosted in Week

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—Electric power output last week amounted to 1,656,616,000 kilowatt hours against 1,644,018,000 in the previous week and 1,554,473,000 in the corresponding week last year, the Edison Electric Institute reported today.

The gain over last year was 6.6 per cent. The previous week's rise over the 1932 period was 5.2 per cent.

In the New England district output was up 6.7 per cent compared with 7.1 per cent the week before; Middle Atlantic, up 6.1 against 4.1; Central industrial up, 9.6 against 8.2; West Central, up 3.1 against 2.4; Southern States, up 1.5 against a decline of 0.9; Rocky Mountain, up 16 against 14.0; Pacific Coast, up 2.7 against 1. per cent.

Daily Oil Yield Is Reduced by 92,412 Barrels

The total daily average for the United States was 2,321,166 barrels, as compared with 2,413,578 in the week ended December 16. The Federal allowance is 2,210,000 barrels.

Production in Kansas was well below that State's 112,000 barrels limit, at 107,370 barrels, and down 620 barrels from the preceding week's average. Kansas was the only State with large production to come within the Federal figures.

In California the reduction from 496,750 to 477,000 barrels still was 27,000 barrels above the allotment. Eastern fields, up 300 barrels to 124,000 daily, were 800 barrels high, and the Rocky Mountain States, cutting production 40 barrels, average to 79,750 a day, were 2,250 barrels above their allowable.

Exchange Adds New Rules on Stock Listings

Regulations Apply Also to Issues Now Traded In on Market.

New York, Dec. 28 (AP).—The New York Exchange yesterday announced drastic changes in its listing requirements designed to prevent corporations from influencing the market values of their own shares.

The committee on the stock list will require that:

1. All companies listing stock after January 31, next, must make monthly statements of the amount of their own shares which corporations may have purchased.

2. After December 31, next, all corporations listing securities must disclose all existing options in respect to own securities.

3. And after January 31, the committee on the stock list will inquire into all circumstances surrounding the issue of new securities by listed companies, to prevent concentrated holdings from being inequitably distributed.

All Listings Covered.

The committee also announced that these regulations would apply not only to new listings, but that all companies now having their securities listed would be asked to comply.

The announcement by the committee on the stock list said the committee had long urged corporations not to trade in their own shares. It pointed out, however, that starting with the panic of 1929, a number of companies, "in an honest attempt to prevent their stockholders from suffering undue losses, undertook to reacquire some of the outstanding shares." It explained, however, that when a corporation acquires its own shares, it in effect reduces its capitalization, and when it sells such shares, it increases its capitalization.

Under the new regulations, the exchange seeks to have such purchases given fullest publicity, and in order to prevent sudden dumping of such shares back on the market, will require separate listing of such shares when sold.

Regulations on Options.

In regard to options, the exchange has for some itme required in listing applications information as to those outstanding, save those issued pro rata to stockholders, to officers and employes under stock purchase plans, and "offers of stock to be taken in a block with four months from the date of such offer." Options are in effect privileges to acquire stock at fixed prices, which may be exercised should the market value of the shares rise.

Regarding the third step, the committee said, "for some time past there has been a rapidly growing tendency on the part of corporations, particularly of corporations which have recently been operated unprofitably, to raise fresh capital by issuing additional shares of stock which were either to be sold upon the exchange or to be distributed at prices based upon the quotations of transactions made on the exchange.

Additional Stock Sales.

"While the exchange has always been reluctant to hamper unnecessarliy corporations seeking additional financing or a wider distribution of their securities, it is obvious that the above designated methods of disposing of additional stock, particularly when the amount to be issued is substantial and concentrated in a few hands, may tend to influence unfairly the quotations made on the exchange.

In view of this danger, the committee on the stock list intends, in the case of additional issues of stock by listed corporations, to inquire into all circumstances pertaining to the new issue and the methods to be used in distributing it.

The committee on the stock list's announcement said that in view of the importance of these proposals, it had obtained the approval of the exchange's law committee.

Food Prices In Past Week Drop Six Cents

New York, Dec. 28.—A drop of 6 cents in the current Weekly Food Index, as compiled by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., reflected the distinctly downward trend in wholesale food prices during the past week. This was the most drastic decline since the last week of July when it fell 9 cents, and brings the current index to the lowest level since May 23. The index for December 19 stands at $1.87 and compares with $1.93 for the preceding week and $1.67 for the corresponding week of last year.

The commodities contributing to this week's decrease included flour, wheat, rye, corn, oats, lard, butter, sugar, eggs, hogs and lambs. On the other hand, barley, hams, coffee, potatoes and cattle were slightly higher.

The Dun & Bradstreet Weekly Food Index of wholesale prices (the sum-total of the price per pound of 31 articles in common use) compared with preceding weeks and years is given herewith:

| | 1933 | 1932 | 1931 | 1930 |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Dec. 19 | $1.87 | $1.87 | $1.98 | $2.47 |

Steel Prices Unchanged.

School Lunch Preparations Being Pushed

Regional Centers Will Provide Food for 4,000 Children.

Regional cooking centers will be established for the preparation of hot lunches for Washington's 4,000 needy school children, Robert L. Haycock, chairman of the school lunch committee, announced yesterday after a conference between school officers, the District Commissioners and relief authorities.

Pending setting up of these centers, the free lunch program will be inaugurated when schools open next Tuesday, with a down-town cafeteria providing food for dispensation in schools that now have equipment for serving. These schools benefited from a private charity lunch fund last year.

Before the end of next week, many schools that have never served lunches are expected to be included in the program. Work of installing facilities in these schools will begin at once, Mr. Haycock said.

School officers in the field have been asked to provide the officials with a list of needy children. Names and addresses of these children, together with their parents', will be sent to the district relief headquarters. On the basis of this information, appropriations will be made by relief officials to carry on the lunch program.

Pole Will Aid Island Banks

Puerto Rican Problems to Be Studied by Former Comptroller.

John W. Pole, Comptroller of the Currency during the Hoover Administration has been appointed a special assistant of the Federal Reserve Board to handle banking problems in Puerto Rico.

Pole is expected to work out means for Puerto Rican banks to become members of the Federal Reserve System. At the present time, the island is served by branches of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

Conference Slated On Birth Control

Three-Day Session to Open Here January 15.

The first birth control and National recovery conference ever held in Washington will assemble January 15 at the Mayflower Hotel, it was announced yesterday by the National Committee on Federal Legislation for Birth Control.

Subjects to be discussed in the three-day conference include National and international population problems; religious, moral and ethical aspects of birth control; medical problems; and the social and economic phases of control. The conference will end with a dinner, when the speakers will be Mrs. Margaret Sanger, Dr. Ira S. Wile, Prof. William McDougall, Dr. T. Wingate Todd and Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman.

Among sponsors of the conference are Mrs. Dean Acheson, Amelia Earhart, Mrs. Victor Dupont, sr., Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Fannie Hurst, Inez Hayes Irwin, Mrs. Otto Kahn, Miss Anne Morgan, Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, Mary Roberts Rhinehart, Mrs. Charles Cary Rumsey, Mrs. Sidney F. Taliaferro, Samuel Untermyer, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Hendrik Willem Van Loon and Alma Gluck Zimbalist.

New Bailiff Named.

Thornton J. Goods will succeed John W. Brookfield as bailiff of the Alexandria Police Court January 1, when Judge Frederick G. Duvall will begin his four-year term as civil and police court justice. Mr. Brookfield has served for the last ten years.

600 Vatican Workmen Dropped for Economy

Vatican City, Dec. 28 (U.P.).—Pope Pius XI today ordered the discharge of 600 workmen in Vatican City as a New Year's retrenchment measure. They were employed on beautifying the roads and gardens of the papal state.

The pontiff retained 400, however, to complete the landscaping plans, now nearing completion. Other projects are to be suspended.

Stately and regal Jessica Dragonnette, who will be featured tonight in a program of song at 8 over WRC. Her solos include "Darling," "Meditation," from Massenet's opera, "Thais," and "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life." Rosario Bourdon, conducts the orchestra.

EVEN through Milton Aborn's company has departed from Washington, Gilbert and Sullivan's ever-popular operettas will be on the air soon. As if they were ever off.

Estelle Wentworth's company, which will lead off with "The Mikado," January 9, over WOL at 8:30 p. m., knows Savoyard stuff blindfolded. The company will present in tabloid form "The Pirates of Penzance" January 16, "Iolanthe," January 23, and "Trial by Jury," January 30.

Miss Wentworth, a Washington girl, producer and director of the operettas, and former member of the original company of Bostonians that did G. and S. backward and sidewise, is hard at work now directing a cast of 15 principals, a chorus of 30 and an orchestra. The orchestra wasn't on hand during "Pinafore" the other evening. It will be this time.

The cast includes Alma Harris, premiere chanteuse; Elliott Button, tenor; J. Raymond Daine, tenor; Mildred Sherman, contralto; Ira Meyer, barytone; Eugene Stevens, bass; Harry Yeide, barytone, and Lucy Chaconas, soprano.

So "if you want a receipt for that popular mystery" known to the world as "a second trombone" . . . put it down on your "little list" and don't swear a "great big D" if you miss this opportunity of G. and S. for perhaps the fiftieth time.

Whitecaps.

WRC—Reception to Carlos Gardel, South American singer, 1 p. m.; Kipling birthday program, 3:30 p. m.; "Modern Columbus," S. P. B. Mais, 4:30 p. m.; Jessica Dragonette in a program of featured numbers, 8 p. m.; "The Play's the Thing," 3-act comedy of the theater, First Nighter program, 10 p. m.

WMAL—Symphony concert of the Tcherepnines, father and son, 11 a. m.; "Education for Intelligent Citizenship," talk by Dean John Withers, of New York University, 6:15 p. m.; "Robin Hood," drama with music, 7:15; "The Clock and the Dresden Figures," descriptive composition played by Frank Simon's 45-piece symphonic band, 10 p. m.

WJSV—"The Song Vendor," a new program featuring an opera tenor, 5:45 p. m.; Zoel Parentau's Orchestra, Harold Van Emburgh, soloist, 6:45 p. m.; "The March of Time" reenacting outstanding news events of the year, 8:30 p. m.; Alexander Woolcott, "The Town Crier," 9:15 p. m.; Gladys Rice, concert soprano, selections from musical comedy and opera. Accompanying orchestra with Howard Barlow features "March Slav" and overture to "Die Feldermaus," 10:45.

WOL—Northern Dramatic Company, presenting an original skit, "This Loneliness," 7:30 p. m.; Paul Tremaine and his Orchestra, 8:30 p. m.; prize fighters from Madison Square Garden, 9:30 p. m.

Always electric . . . never dull in its recasting of news events, "The March of Time" will reenact outstanding headline startlers of 1933, over WJSV at 8:30 tonight.

The last 12 months, packed with more front page fireworks than any year since the World War, will flow into your room, leading off with the dramatization of Franklin D. Roosevelt's Inauguration March 4.

Unfolding the New Deal, the review will show how the President successively triumphed in the banking crisis, established the NRA, the A. A. A. and other governmental agencies, brought about legalization of beer and then pushed repeal, took the country off the gold standard and is striving to raise commodity prices by gold purchasing.

Equally peppered with major developments, the field of foreign affairs furnishes material for the reacting of Adolf Hitler's domination of the Reich.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull playing a leading role at the ill-fated World Economic parley at London and the Pan-American conclave at Montevideo . . . and the United States' recognition of Russia, probably the most important single item in international affairs, will complete the outstanding features of the broadcast. Other events outside of the fields of politics and public happenings, will be dramatized.

Dramatis Personae:

President Roosevelt, William Adams.

Mrs. Roosevelt, Marion Hopkinson.

General Johnson, Ted di Corsia.

Hitler, Westbrook van Voorhis.

Hull, Frank Readick.

Maxim Litvinov, Frank Gould.

Every lover of Rudyard Kipling's lusty barrack room ballads, will listen in today to a special program celebrating the birthday of the English writer over WRC at 3:30 p. m.

Although "The Road to Mandalay" has been more hammered and chopped at than almost any other popular piece on the air, it still retains an appeal that only Kipling could project from snatches of colorful life of the Orient. "A whackin' white cheroot" . . . "Wastin' Christian kisses on a heathen idol's foot" . . . that's color.

Maudlin sentiment has never been topped with the picture created in the hanging of "Danny Deever" and ringing cockney chants of "Gunga Din." Then there's "Fuzzy Wuzzy."

The broadcast will review a number of interesting phases of Kipling's career with Ben Adams, political editor of the Literary Digest, as commentator. A concert orchestra conducted by Joseph Littau will play musical settings

Elder Michaux, who harrangues his congregation over WJSV mornings at 7, is rather perturbed. It seems the music of his theme song, "Happy Am I" and "The Colonel From Kentucky," fox trot featured by Eddie Cantor, are one and the same thing.

The elder doesn't listen to Eddie when he broadcasts over WRC Sunday nights at 8 . . . he is in bed by that time. His friends told him the shocking news.

We can sympathize with the elder when he says he doesn't like his hymn mistaken for a jazz number . . . but that has happened before. Sig Spaeth, Broadway music critic and joy of the Players Club, can play numerous sacred pieces more than faintly reminiscent of dance orchestra stuff.

New York publishers of the "Colonel From Kentucky" have promised to discontinue the song after careful research established its dual personality.

• • • •

Charlie Luke has been broadcasting for some time on Tuesday mornings at 11 over WRC. Jim McGrath, announcer, got interested and decided to put his personality into the program.

So from now on the program will be called "Around the Baseburner." Which means it's a scene in a country store with characters chawing tobacco about an old-time "pot-bellied" stove with an "isinglass" window in the front.

Charlie will play the part of Uncle Eb and he also will do Little Willie. McGrath sings for aforesaid Willie and plays several instruments.

These are an Australian "schlaufus" (ocarina to you), which Jim says is the "mooiest" instrument on the air, and a Patagonian octaviza. Jim won't talk about this instrument. He won't even show it to you. He didn't even show it to Paul Whiteman when he was a member of his band.

Jessica Dragonette popular soloist, sings fetching numbers tonight over an N. B. C. network at 8. "Darling," a composition by Rosario Bourdon, conductor of the accompanying orchestra, will be featured.

The orchestra will open the full hour of diversified entertainment with "March Slav," by Tschaikowsky. Miss Dragonette's other solos will be "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" and "Meditation," from Massenet's opera, "Thais."

Frank Parker will sing "Do You Know My Garden?" and will be heard with the orchestra in "Stormy Weather" and "Love Is the Sweetest Thing." The entire ensemble will offer gems from "Roberta" and "The Desert Song" from the Romberg operetta of the same name.

Ripples.

There are several Winchellian "mergers" looming on the horizon over at WRC. They are not going to "pftt" . . . "become one" or "aisle it" . . . they are just going to get married.

Bill Coyle, announcer, will stride up to the altar with Maud Alice Gautier, of Hartford, Conn. Her uncle is Mayor of Miami, Fla., and was in the car with Anton Cermak when he was assassinated by the "king killer."

John Mayo, WMAL announcer, will marry Louise Cook, of Washington, in September.

Don, announcer, WRC, who rooms with Bill Coyle, and Lillian Trotter are planning to take the awful jump. Miss Trotter is a concert pianist with the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra.

S. P. B. Mais, British author and traveler, who has been rediscovering America as a "Modern Columbus" for listeners of the British Broadcasting Corporation and N. B. C., completes his tour of the United States today at 4:30 p. m. over WRC, after a trip of more than 10,000 miles.

Since October he has visited 37 States and the District, traveling by train and automobile. Yet, in spite of the speed necessary, he has obtained a clear picture of the country through his powers of observation.

After viewing the natural wonders, climates, scenic beauties of the United States, he agrees that Europeans have an entirely untrue mental picture of the United States. He recommends that English listeners follow his example and visit America when they travel.

The United States offers every type of climate except the tropical, he pointed out. Mais plans to return to Europe after a final broadcast, a "Farewell to America," which will be delivered next Tuesday.

Fred Waring's Pensylvanians will arrive in Washington Sunday night to play at the New Year's dance at Washington Auditorium. So WJSV will entertain them that night at 6:45 when several members of the band will present features over the air.

Kate Speicer, 12, with Aunt Sue and Polly on WMAL at 5:15 daily, is writing the stories which are read during the program by Arthur Godfrey, announcer.

The announcer is pinch-hitting for Dorothy Stewart. You know her as Aunt Sue, who lost her little boy in an accident a few days before Christmas. She will return to the air New Year's Day.

PUBLIC NOTICES

OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONERS OF the District of Columbia, December 11, 1933. All the preliminary requirements of law as provided for in Section 2, Public Act No. 307, approved December 15, 1932, having been complied with, such as service of notice to property owners and advertisement of notice of public hearing, and public hearing having been previously held by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia pursuant to said notice and advertisement, it is hereby ordered that pursuant to the provisions of said Public Act No. 307, approved December 15, 1932, the street area (or street and alley area) as shown in green on plat filed in the office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia, and numbered as Map 1783, is hereby ordered closed, same to take effect on and after January 11, 1934, the title to the land comprised in said area so closed to revert to the abutting property owners, as shown on said map; the said streets (or street and alley area) hereby ordered closed being described as follows: Closing 4th street between Sheridan and Van Buren streets northwest; closing 3d place and 4th place between Sheridan and Underwood streets northwest; closing Tuckerman and Underwood streets between 3d and 5th streets northwest; also closing alleys as acquired in squares 3269, 3271, 3284 and 3285. Any and all property owners interested must file objections, if any, to said closings in writing before the effective date of this order; otherwise said order shall become effective on January 11, 1934, as aforesaid, and the streets (or street and alley area) shall on and after said date become closed in accordance with the provisions of said act. MELVIN C. HAZEN, GEORGE E. ALLEN, JOHN C. GOTWALS, Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

OFFICE OF THE BOARD OF EQUALIZATION and Review, District Building, Washington, D. C., December 29, 1933. In accordance with the provisions of the act of Congress of August 14, 1894, and amendments thereto, the Board of Equalization and Review will be in session in the District Building (room 105) from and after the first Monday in January, 1934, until and including the first Monday in June, 1934, for the purpose of hearing and determining such complaints as may be made in respect to the new assessment of real property in said District. The books containing the returns of said assessment are open to public inspection and can be seen at the office of the board between the hours of nine o'clock a. m. and three o'clock p. m. of each secular day. To insure due consideration all complaints shall be filed at the earliest possible date. The law requires that the equalization and review shall be completed as nearly as practicable on the first Monday in June, 1934, after which date no other or further complaints as to valuations will be received, and when approved by the Commissioners, the assessments will constitute the basis of taxation for the next succeeding period of one year, and until another valuation is made according to law. Blank forms for making complaints can be had on application. WM. P. RICHARDS, Assessor and Chairman of the Board of Equalization and Review. 29,30

Pieces of Eight

Worley Meets Success

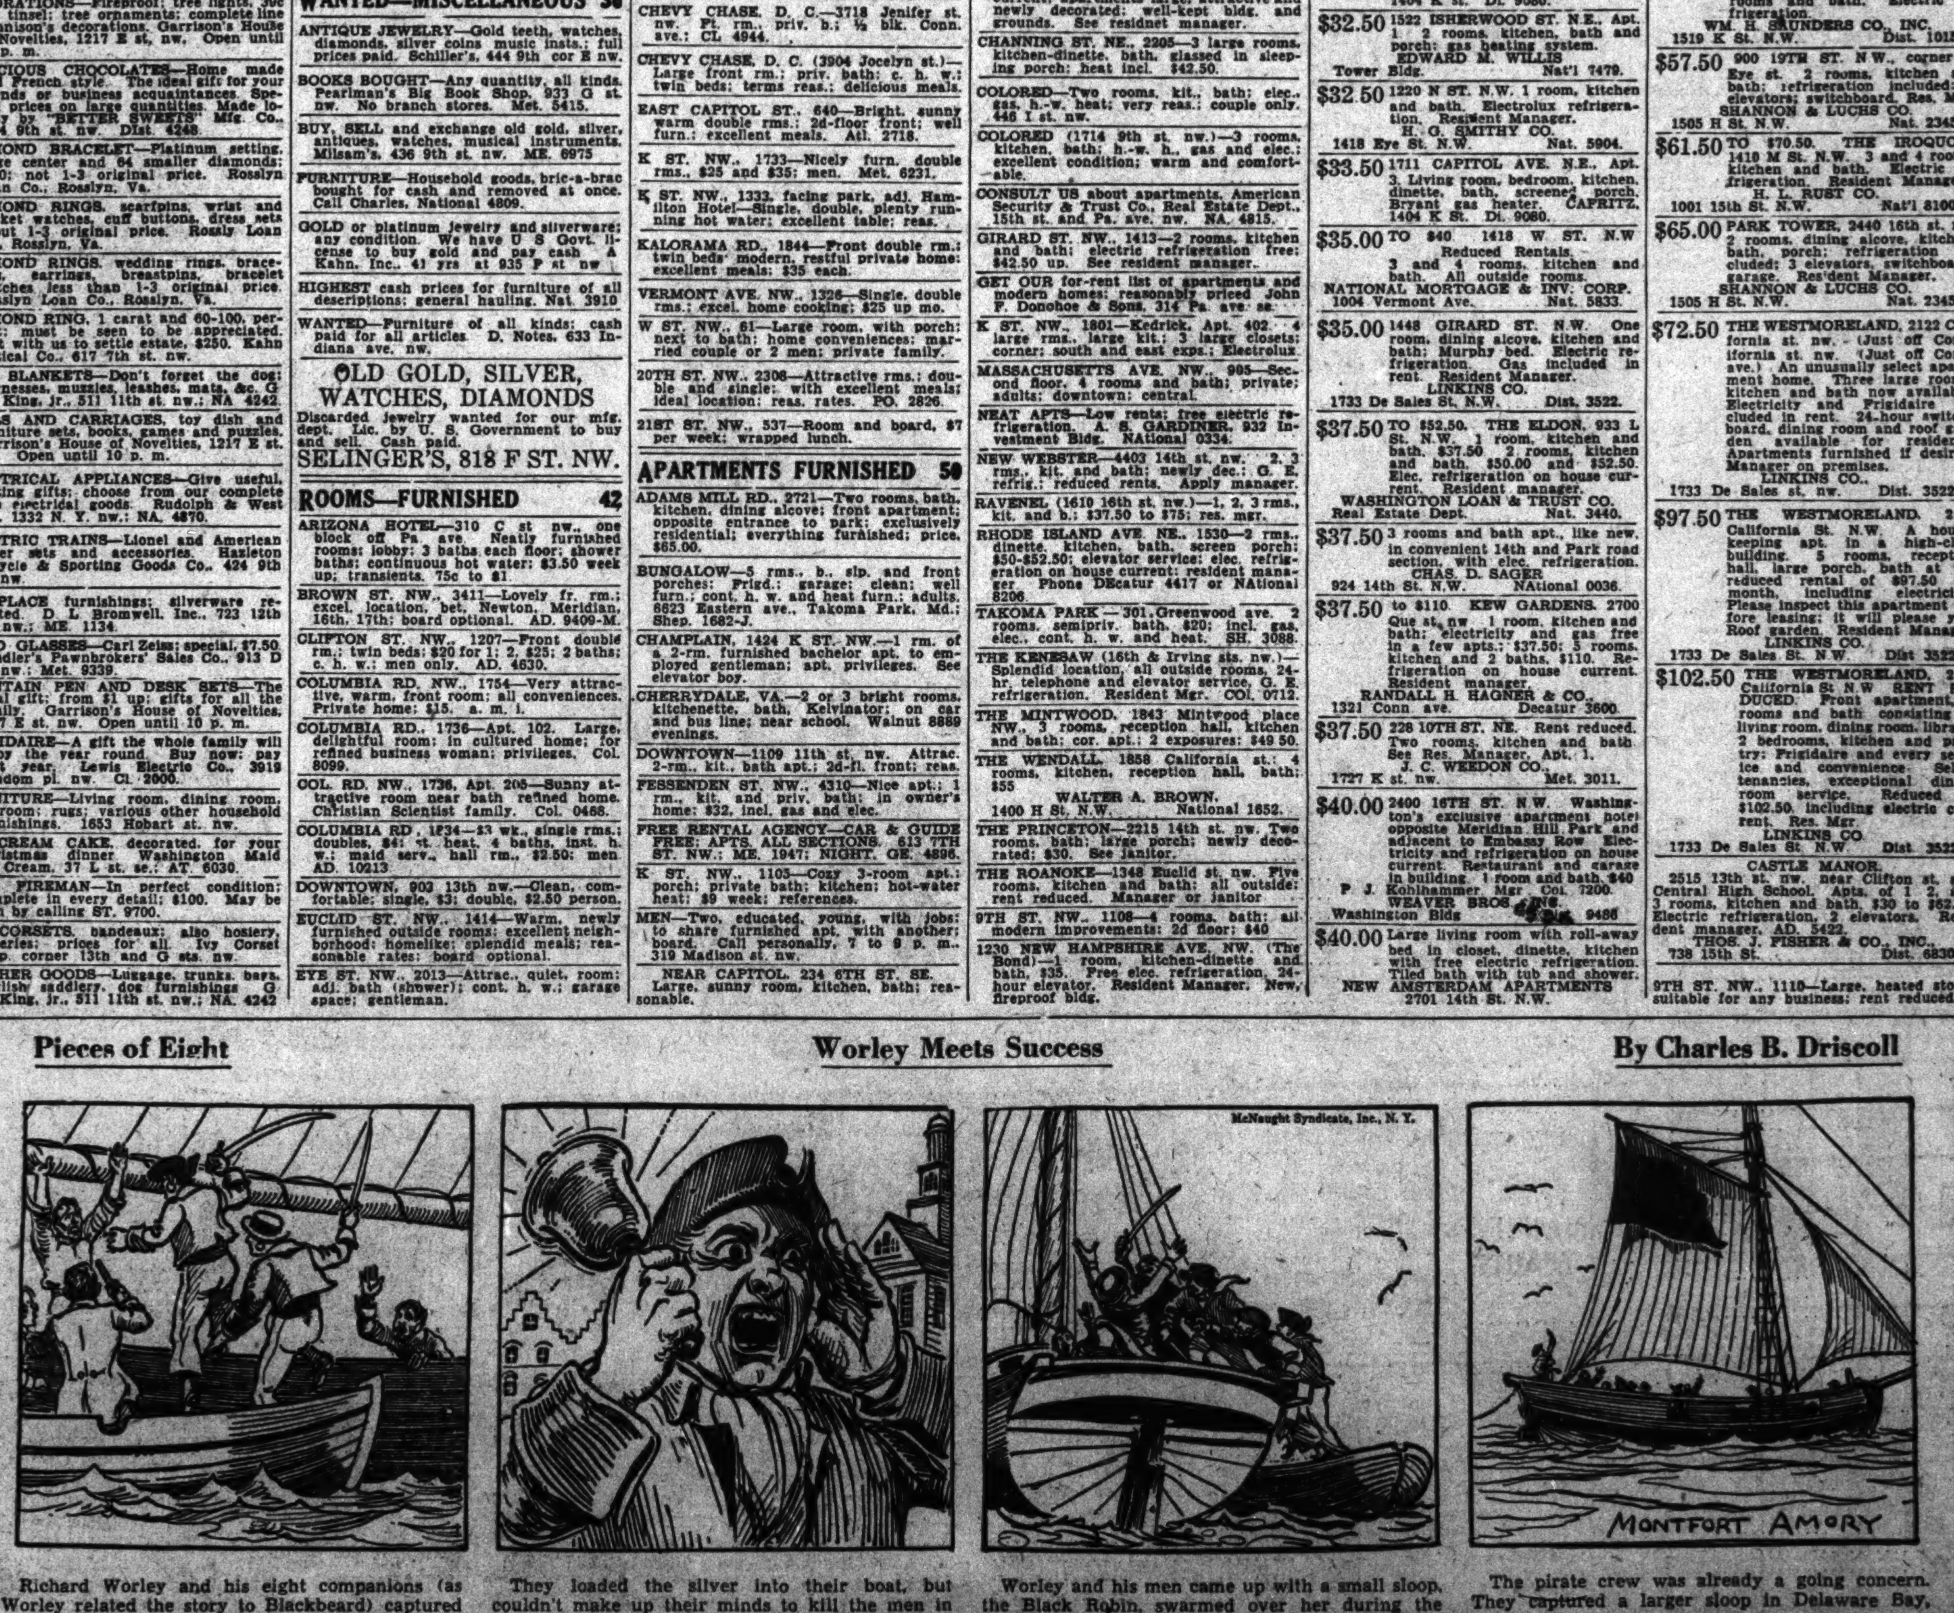
By Charles B. Driscoll



McNaught Syndicate, Inc., N. Y.
MONTFORT AMORY

Richard Worley and his eight companions (as Worley related the story to Blackbeard) captured their first prize at Newcastle, Pa. It was a shallop carrying household goods and silver to Philadelphia. The amateur pirates boarded from their open boat.

They loaded the silver into their boat, but couldn't make up their minds to kill the crew of the shallop, so rowed away downstream, leaving the shallop to go on to Philadelphia to spread the alarm of "Pirates in the river!"

Worley and his men came up with a small sloop, the Black Robin, swarmed over her during the night, and took possession. Several black sailors on this vessel joined up with the pirates, and the others were allowed to go ashore.

The pirate crew was already a going concern. They captured a larger sloop in Delaware Bay, mounting six guns and laden with rich cargo. Worley now swore his men to loyalty on his own stolen cutlass, and made them sign articles.

Walt Mason, Himself

Ornamental.

The dandy of the olden days from modesty was quite exempt; he would attract the public gaze or lose a limb in the attempt. You've seen his picture in old prints, you've marked his hat with flowing plumes, his garments of a dozen tints that glittered in the drawing rooms. His cuffs and collars were of lace and he wore silks and satins, too, and kalsomined his noble face just as the modern damsels do. He also wore a costly wig, and diamond buckles on his shoes; when he appeared in all his rig his coming was important news. He was admired and not disdained, he was observed with much delight; no moralist was deeply pained by gazing on so grand a sight. But times have changed and nowadays the man who walks in gay attire is scorned by all the sober jays, and there is no one to admire. A man must walk in somber rags, and if he wears a necktie red, he'll hear a lot of dreary gags that make the blood rush to his head. And if he wears a purple hat it will be argued that he's fast, his moral tires have all gone flat, and he will reach the dump at last. And if he wears a gaudy suit, men will denounce him, and they'll say, "He looks like some cheap racetrack tout, who backs the ponies every day." There is no color and no dash in modern costumes, modern ways, and if one tries to make a splash he'll draw not less than thirty days.

Britain Feels Other Navies Violate Pacts

U. S. Accused of Failing to Follow Building of Smaller Ships.

London, Dec. 28 (AP).—Britain's decision to build bigger cruisers and agitation for an increase in naval building next year is generally justified here on the score that inferiority on the sea threatens the English navy.

Other powers are charged with failure to live up to the spirit of the London and Washington naval treaties. Disappointment is also expressed because the United States and other countries failed to follow the British lead in building smaller ships.

Naval experts assert this country will be lucky if it has 40 effective cruisers in 1936 instead of the 50 allowed under the London treaty. It is pointed out that Britain agreed to that limit only with the provision that "other powers reduce correspondingly their projected programs."

Claims were advanced that no fewer than 32 new cruisers have been laid down since then by the other four signatory powers, the United States, France, Italy and Japan.

The British government in July, 1930, pointed out it accepted also a "maximum total of 150,000 tons for destroyers subject to reductions in submarine strengths of other powers." Here, too, it was claimed the treaty has been ignored with 115 submarines laid down by other signatories.

Advocates of a big navy have opened a heavy bombardment.

Winston Churchill heaped coals on the fire with an attack on the disarmament conference, in which he charged the United States with making "the most beautiful speeches of all, while making the largest increase in its naval and air forces."

Sea Scout Membership Nears 26,000 in Surprising Gain

Coming Events.

Thursday—Boy Scout Stamp Club meets at Scout headquarters.

January 18—Scouters' supper, Western Presbyterian Church, 5:30 p. m.

January 20—Courts of honor and review, Takoma Park Presbyterian Church.

January 27—Courts of honor and review, Powell Junior High School.

Every Monday and Wednesday at 5:45 p. m. instruction in life saving and swimming in the boys' department, Y. M. C. A.

The total number of Sea Scouts registered on October 31 was 17,637, a 30 per cent increase for the year. There are 7,100 leaders registered, bringing the total to 24,737.

By the end of this year the total number of Sea Scouts will reach 19,000 and the total number of Sea Scouts and leaders 26,000, it is indicated.

This is the sixth consecutive year there has been a substantial increase in the Sea Scout membership and the most remarkable feature is that the increase has become bigger each year in spite of the many difficulties that confront the promotion of all organizations at this time.

Troop 43 Gives Banquet.

Troop 43, conducted by the National Baptist Memorial Church, held its first Christmas party Saturday night at Sholl's restaurant. Carols were sung, games played, and a story told around the camp fire by Scoutmaster Anderson, of Troop 54. Santa Claus made a surprise visit with gifts for each Scout.

A Course for Scout Leaders.

Speakers are being chosen from among Washington scouters. The group will be organized into four patrols, limited to 32 men. The new scouters training room in the basement of the new Scout headquarters, 1018 Vermont avenue, will be used in the course.

Topics to be covered in the principles course are: "The Nature of the Boy;" "A Scout Program Which Meets the Boy's Needs;" "Educational Objectives;" "Scout Objectives;" "Methods of Education;" "Scouting Methods of Education;" "The Project Method and Scouting Projects;" "Troop Program Building;" "Yearly Outdoor Program of a Scout Troop;" "Troop Administration;" "Ceremonies in the Scout Program;" "The Boy's Reading Program;" "Education for Character;" "Character Values of Scouting and How Obtained;" "The Relation of the Troop to the Parent Institution;" "The Working Relation Between Troop Committee and the Troop;" "The Measure of a Good Troop;" "Scout Advancement and Specialization;" "Scouting Applied to Life."

Scouts Enjoy Splash Party.

A Course for Scouters.

Several Scouters are expected to enroll in the camp leadership course to be given at George Washington University Thursday evenings, February 8 through May 24. It is a college credit course.

C. M. O. Banquet Given.

More than 100 members of the C. M. O. (Camp Roosevelt Honor Society) banqueted at the Calvary Baptist Church Wednesday. Dr. George O. Sanford, chief engineer of the Bureau of Reclamation, gave an illustrated lecture on the construction of Boulder Dam.

New Badges Received.

New embroidered badges for junior assistant scoutmasters and senior patrol leaders are now in stock at headquarters. The green bars are combined with the first class badge. Only first class Scouts may be senior patrol leaders or junior assistant scoutmasters and the combination of the first class badge and either the senior patrol leader or junior assistant scoutmaster bars makes it necessary to purchase now but one badge for either office held

Anniversary Planned.

Looming large on the Scouting horizon for the new year are the plans for the celebration of the twenty-fourth anniversary during Boy Scout week February 6 to 12.

Scout leaders plan to mobilize the entire Scout membership of the United States on February 10 as a dramatic demonstration to the Nation of the service value of Boy Scouts.

A Scout citizen ceremony, four-year Scout recognition ceremony, formation of the Old Scouts Association and the presentations of the President's award are also planned for anniversary week.

Roosevelt Award Sought.

Many Scout troops, Sea Scout units and Cub Packs are filing their applications for the President Roosevelt award for growth and permanence in 1933. All applications must be filed at scout headquarters within the next few days.

New Troops Forming.

Several new troops are in progress of forming and will be among the earliest on the roll of 1934 new troops. Among them will be a troop conducted by the Church of the Ascension at Silver Spring.

Scout Calendars Given.

Scouts Camp Despite Cold.

There may be snow on the ground and the breeze that blows across Chesapeake Bay may keep the Scouts on the move, but nevertheless Troop 20, conducted by the Ingram Memorial Congregational Church, has spent the last few days at Camp Roosevelt, and Troop 54, conducted by the Chevy Chase Baptist Church, will go to camp on Saturday, spending New Year's Day at Camp Roosevelt.

Troop 18 Plans Banquet.

Troop 18, conducted by the Church of the Brethren, Fourth street and North Carolina avenue southeast, will hold the annual parents' night banquet January 5.

Camp Paper Issued.

D. C. Loan Head On Air Tonight

Manager to Discuss Home Aid Problems.

Problems confronting the District office of the Home Owners Loan Corporation will be discussed by Paul J. Frizzell, manager, in a radio talk over Station WMAL at 8:45 p. m. today.

By revealing conditions in Washington, Mr. Frizzell said he hopes to obtain better cooperation from the public and real estate and financial houses in meeting his problems.

Copies of the address will be mailed to anyone notifying the local home loan office, Mr. Frizzell said. Some one will be on duty until 10 p. m. today to receive such requests.

CORRECTION

By error, the price of Society Brand Suits in The Hecht Co.'s advertisement in The News' Week-End Enterprise was printed as $22.50 instead of $26.50. We regret this typographical error, but these suits are real values at their correct sale price of $26.50. The Sheldon 2-trouser suits and overcoats were correctly quoted at $22.50.

Roosevelt Given Key By Legal Fraternity

President Roosevelt yesterday was given a jeweled key of Phi Delta Phi, international legal fraternity, of which he is a member. J. Will Press, jr., Marion, N. C., president of the fraternity, made the presentation. The members voted the key to their most celebrated brother at their annual meeting last summer.

200 Attend Kiwanians' Family Day Program

Work by the Kiwanis Club in caring for the crippled children of the Weightman School was discussed yesterday by Mrs. Beulah Drake, principal of the school, at the annual Family Day meeting of the club.

More than 200 members, their wives and children, attended the meeting, presided over by Dewey Zirkin, president of the club. The past presidents of the club presented a bouquet of roses to Mrs. Dewey Zirkin. Children of members opened the program. Mickey Lansburgh, Bynum Hinton, jr., and Newman Marsh were featured.
